Foreword

Glenbard East offers to its students many opportunities to develop their interests in many areas. The students are prepared academically and socially to meet the obstacles, frustrations, disappointments, successes, and happiness of everyday events of their future life.

G.E.'s extensive academic and extracurricular programs help the incoming freshman to decide on a career. Throughout the student's four years at Glenbard he is confronted with a choice of subjects and extracurricular activities. At the end of four years the student is prepared to decide what he wishes to do, whether this is college, a trade, art, drama, music, or business.

High school is full of enriching experiences both academically and socially which the student will constantly look back on for guidance as he faces the difficulties of the future.

The 1966 ARIES has attempted to show the opportunities available at Glenbard East which prepare students to enter the society of their choice after graduation.

Dave Richards works a math problem on the board for the benefit of his fellow students.

Academics program aids all students

As each student varies as an individual, so does his vocation. It is the responsibility of a school to meet the needs of each student as an individual. Glenbard East has fulfilled this responsibility in a full and well-rounded academic program.

College-bound students have a wide range of preparatory courses to choose from. Along with math, science, English, social science, and language courses, Glenbard East provides supplementary courses such as notehand and personal typing. Each of these courses plays an integral part in developing students to face college life successfully.

Students not planning to attend college may learn trade skills or obtain a profitable background in business. The industrial arts department of Glenbard East offers courses in various fields of industrial arts. The business department supplies students with typing and shorthand skills as well as training in bookkeeping, office machines, and many other areas significant to a thriving business world.

Spanish students listen to tape recordings as they follow along in their book.

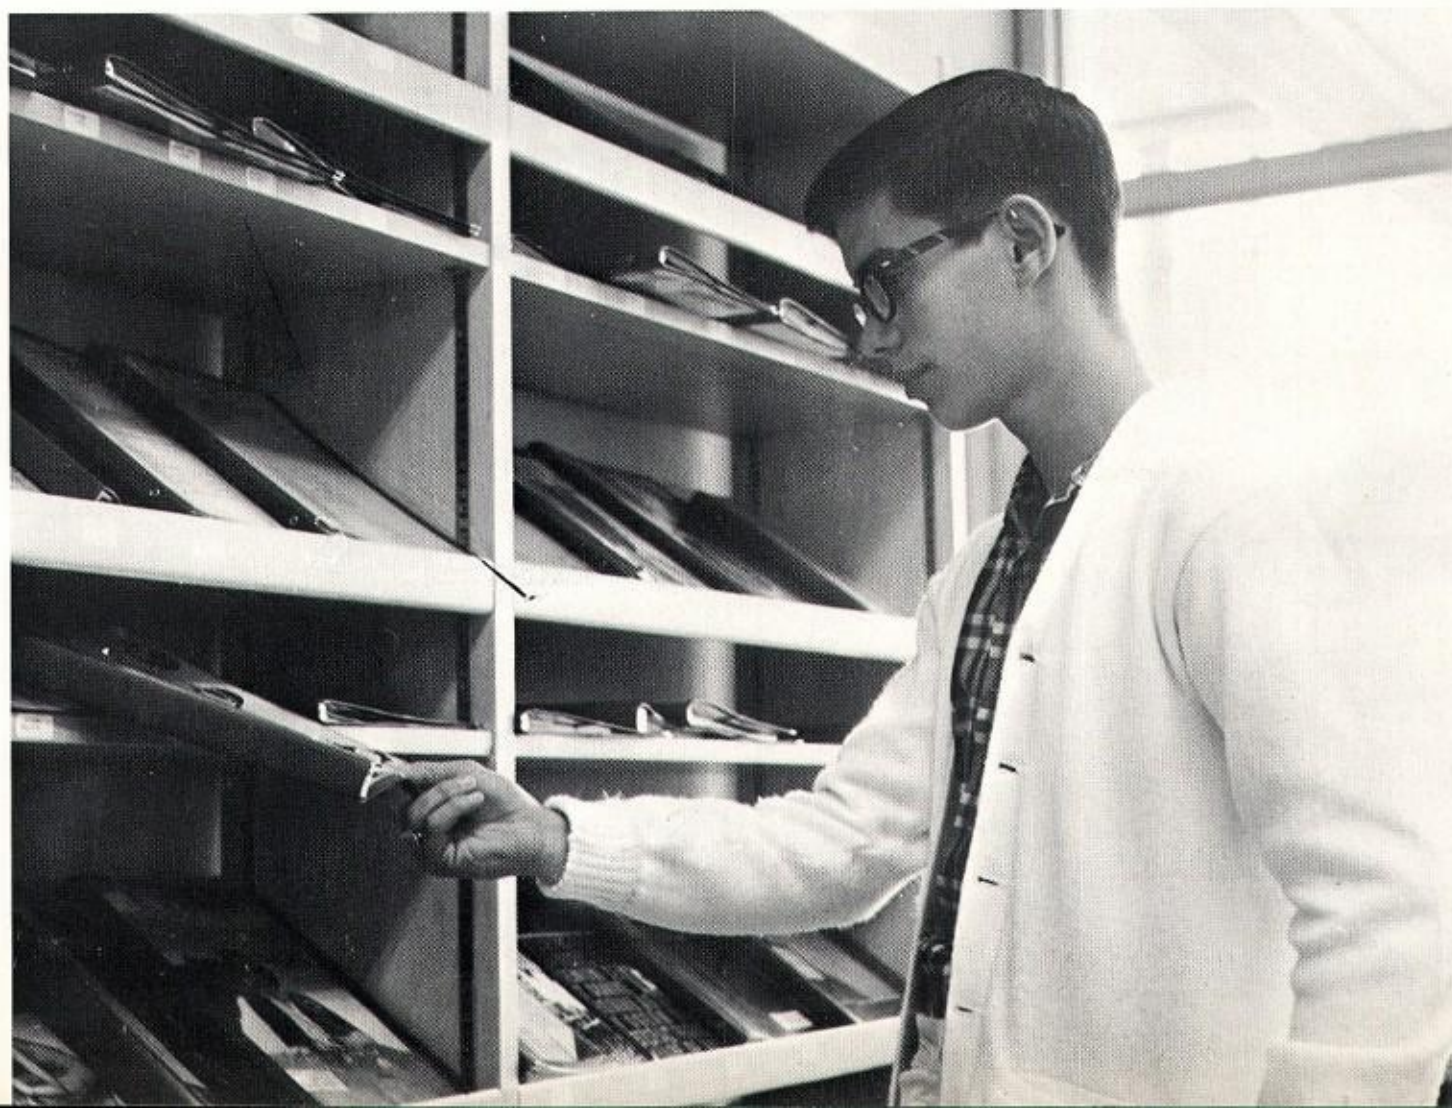

Jan Ward learns the most effective way to keep the audience's attention as she gives a speech in her speech class.

Dick Ballinger and Valerie Vyn prepare a slide as Dee Ness gets the microscope ready in a physiology class.

Mike Law spends time in the library after school doing research for his term paper in English.

Mrs. Wenc's shorthand class learns to take dictation quickly and efficiently.

Practical arts offered to G. E. students

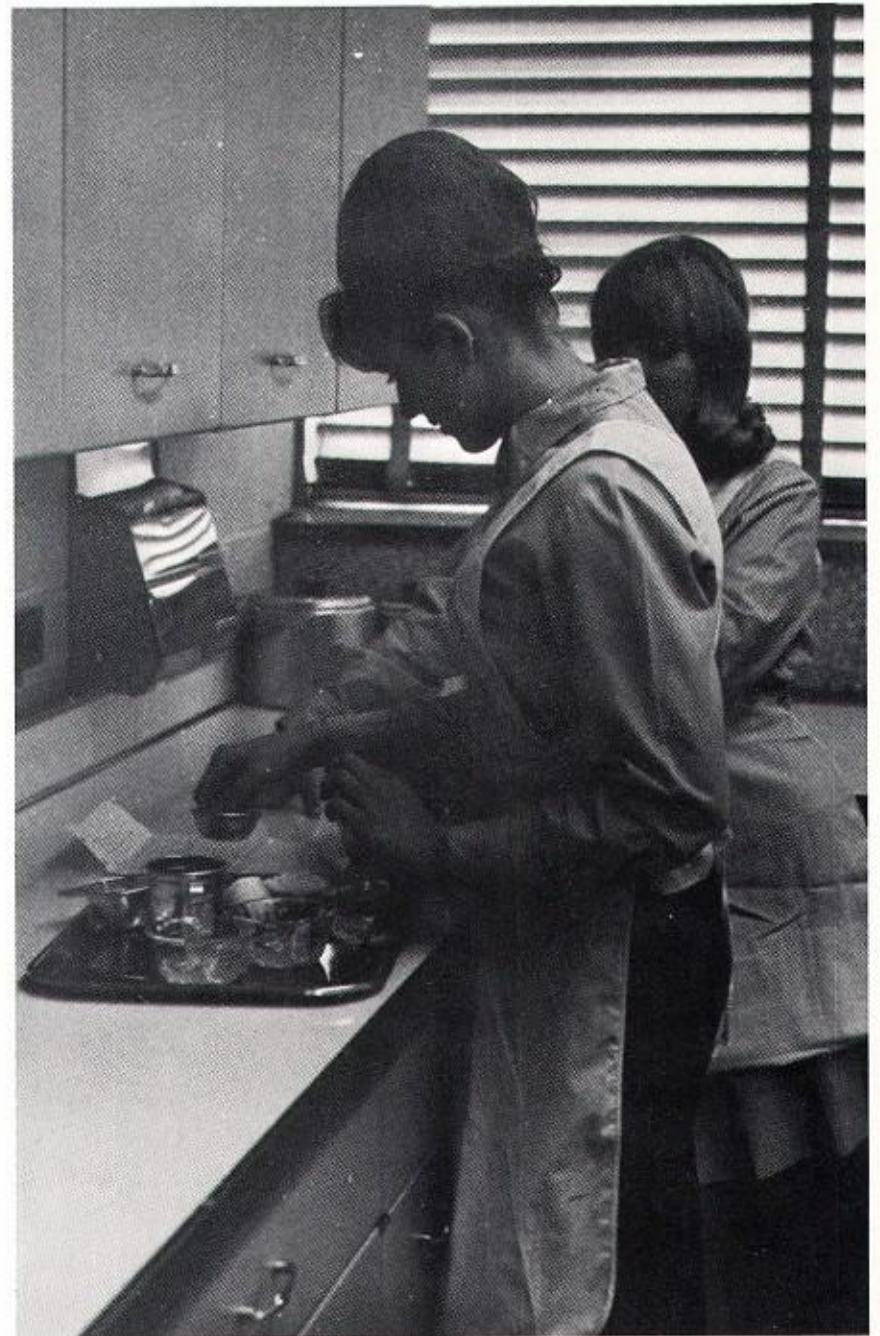

Mr. Bernasek contemplates a business letter before presenting it to the class.

Typing students learn to concentrate on the material rather than on their fingers.

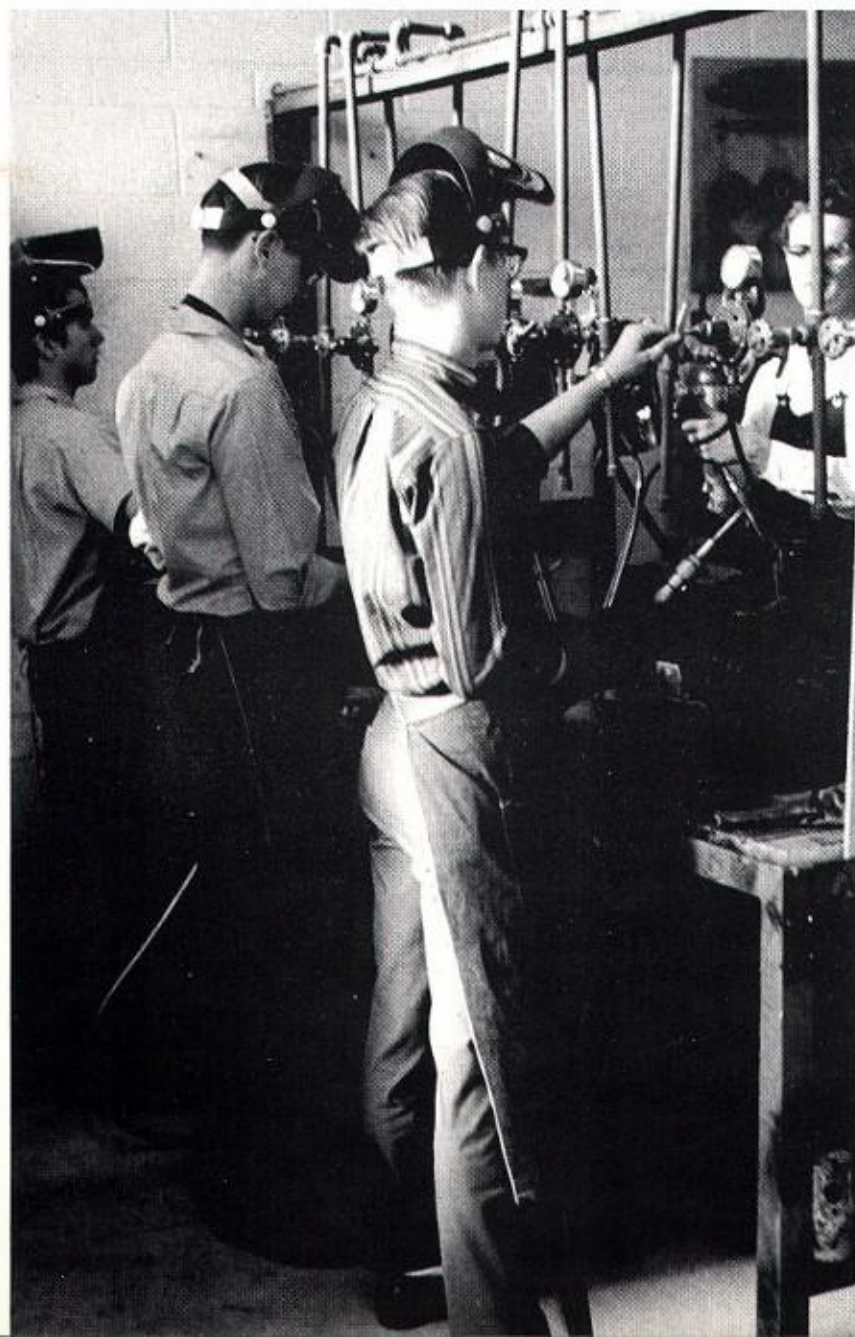

Joe Krenzel and Ron Sholand labor on soldering an electric circuit in an electronics course.

Linda Rafferty and Inez Richardson measure the ingredients for a recipe in their foods class.

George McDaniel, Ken Erickson and Dave Axelson acquire the basic techniques of welding in class.

Mrs. Scholfield aids Connie Eder in putting buttonholes in her clothing garment.

Students learn profitable skills

Mrs. Davis explains the different styles of home furnishing as the girls follow in their text book during a home management class.

The victorious Glenbard East Rams carry Coach Lovin off the field after beating West Leyden to claim the conference championship.

Marty Olson shows how practice helps as he performs an "iron cross" in the gymnastic meet against Willowbrook.

G. E. athletes rack up fine records

Mr. Astroth, assistant principal, looks with pride at the athletic awards accumulated by Glenbard East students over the years.

Glenbard East offers to its students many opportunities to develop their skills in athletic competition. Glenbard has nine competitive sports teams: football, cross country, basketball, wrestling, gymnastics, track, tennis, baseball, and golf. The girls also have four competitive teams: bowling, tennis, badminton, and archery. Besides the competing teams G.E. has a large intramural program for the boys and G.A.A. sponsors many sports events for the girls.

In G.E.'s short history the athletic teams have accumulated outstanding records. G.E. has had an Elite Eight basketball team, a conference football team having a record number of all-conference team members, a cross country team placing third in state competition, a champion state singles tennis player, a wrestler and gymnasts placing in state competition. Glenbard students know the satisfaction of entering competition ready to work towards a victory for their school.

Sue Hughes concentrates on the procedures of archery as she prepares to release the arrows.

Jim Roberts fights for the jump ball with a Downer's South team member.

Barb Anderson sings "Ave Verum" during a chorus rehearsal for a performance in March.

Drum major Jeff Messenger leads the Glenbard East Band during the Homecoming parade.

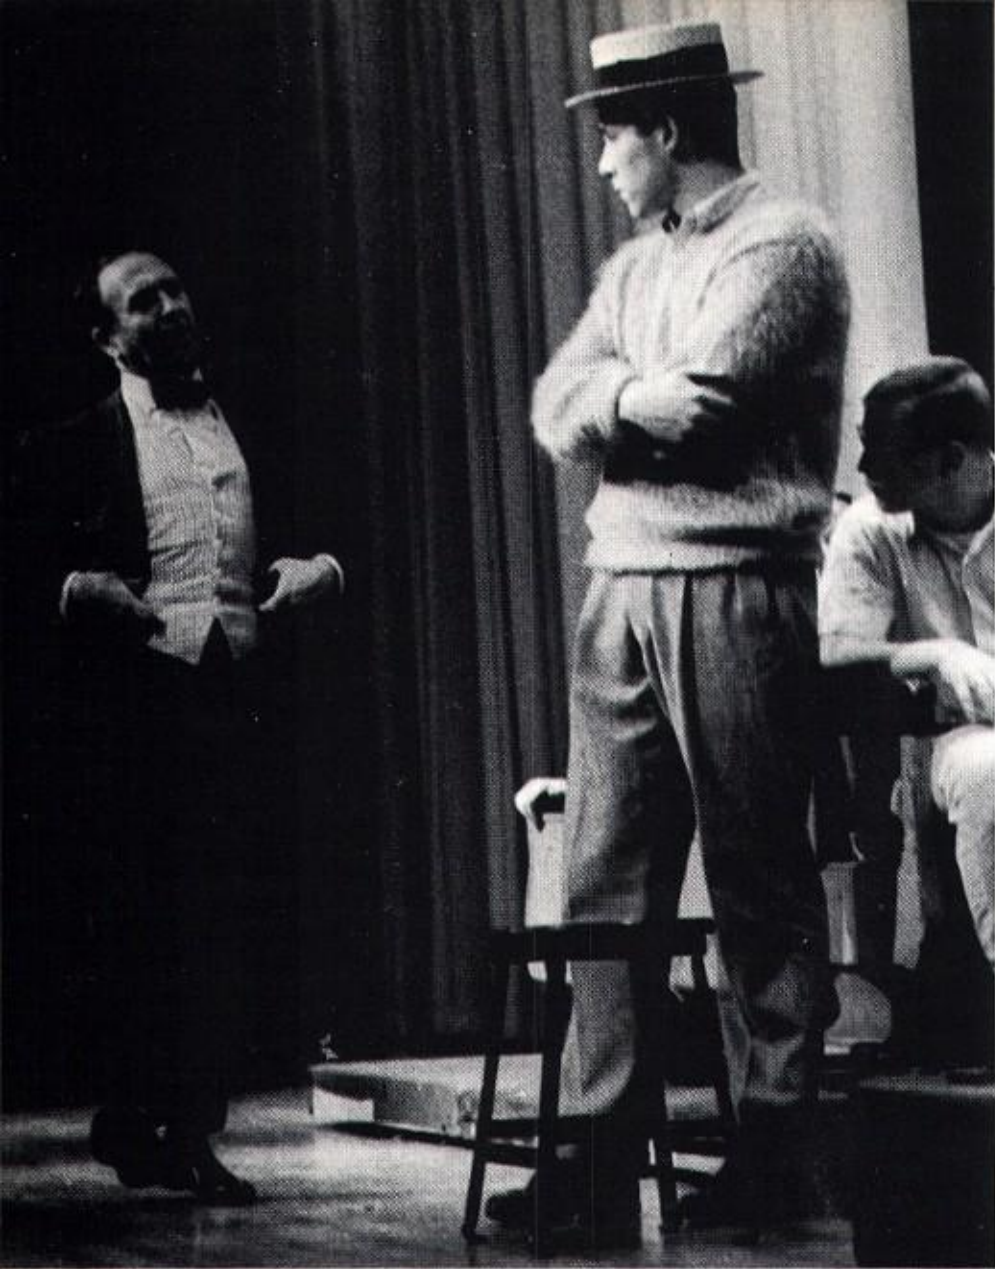

Margaret Swett performs on the string bass during the orchestra's rehearsal for a concert.

G. E. students develop musical talent

The marching band stands at attention in the GE formation during half-time at the homecoming game.

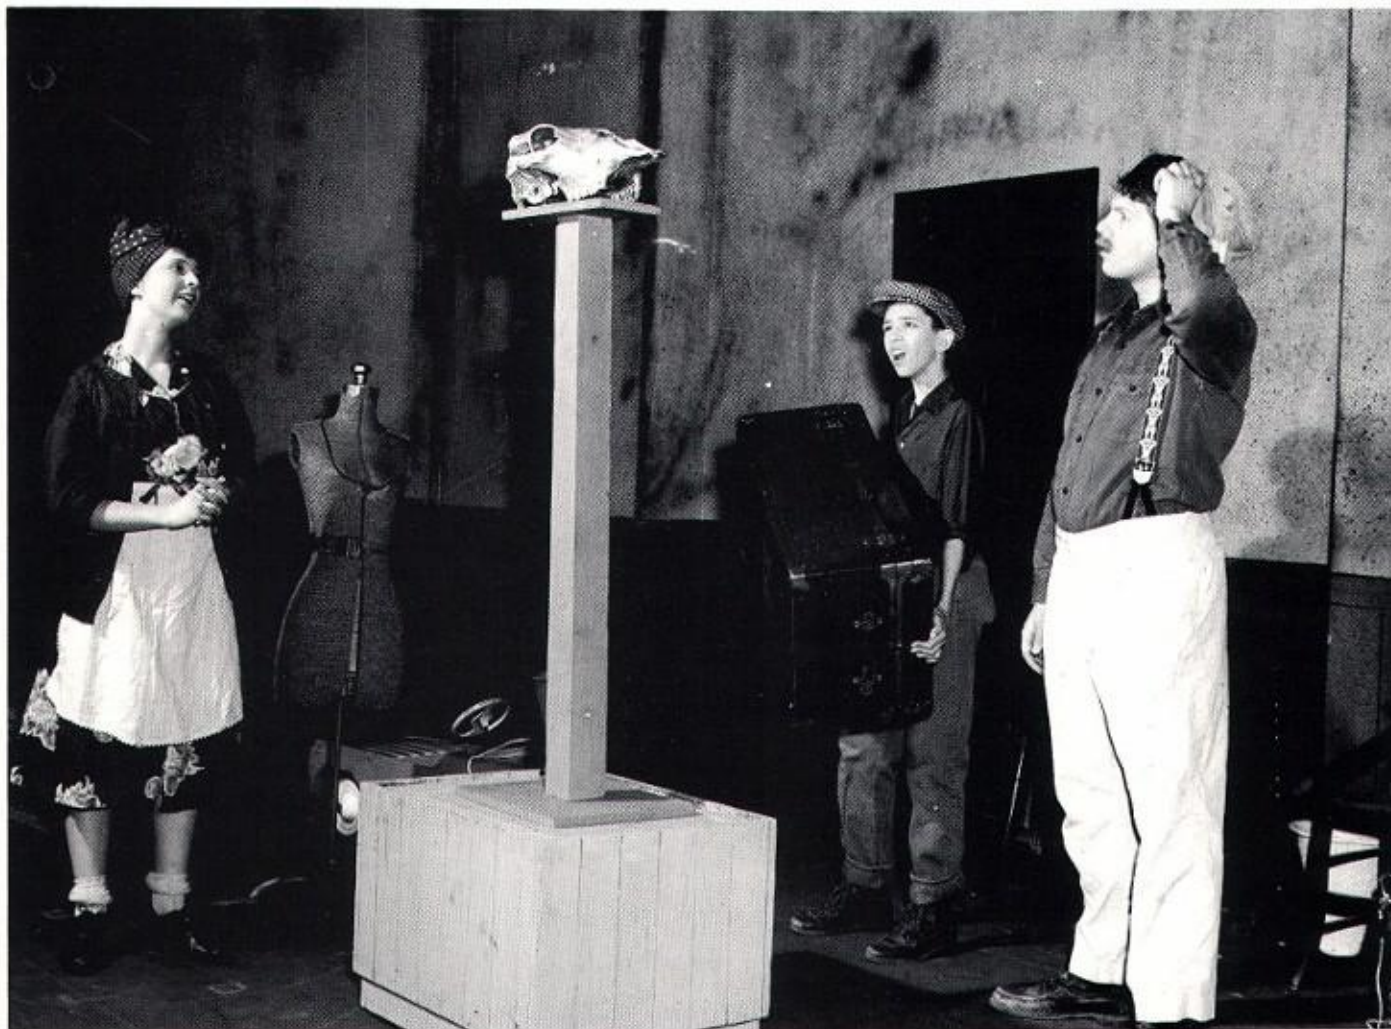

Eric Christmas, Canadian actor, offers Bob Aseltine some advice during a rehearsal of "Music Man," as Jim Gieseker looks on.

Miss Lipke, art teacher, shows Ed Bedard the proper way to fashion pottery.

During one of the Drama Department's production, "The New Tenant", Sue Foley, Rob Lindley and Allen Sulzenfuss, gaze in bewilderment at the new tenants' possession.

Loanne Trakselis and Sharon Plonka analyze the technique used in "Head of Time" during a trip taken by the Cultural History class to Midway Studios at the University of Chicago.

Sue Sena helps the art department hang an art display in the main foyer.

Art and Drama Courses encourage creative student

The Glenbard East art and drama departments were developed for the benefit of all students. Not only are talented students encouraged, but the individual programs provide opportunities for any student who wishes to participate.

The art department promotes interest through activities directed at the student body. Many eye-catching art displays are seen in the main foyer of the building. The work on display is usually produced by outstanding students.

The drama department of Glenbard East provides excellent outlets for students that desire experience in the various aspects of the theater. During each school year, the drama department presents four all-school plays. Every play creates a great need for many students to fill varied positions. In all capacities, whether acting or working on a crew, the students gain self-confidence through working with many people, knowledge in the skills of the theater, and a feeling of accomplishment.

Joy Nyman and Barb Ward gain experience in page layout while working on the school newspaper.

Radio Club members try out the new radio and transmitter which they bought with the money they earned selling fire extinguishers.

Organizations are formed for the purpose of grouping individuals with a common interest. The organizations at Glenbard East are numerous, and cover a vast horizon of interests, including academic, career, service, social and hobby organizations.

Career-minded students gain knowledge and encouragement from organizations designed to meet their particular needs. Such publications as Aries, Echo, and Ramblings provide experience for aspiring journalists. Caduceus is an organization devoted expressly to the girls who wish to enter the field of medicine. Future Teachers of America supplied participants with helpful activities such as student-teacher day at local grade schools. Thespians, a nationwide organization, aided students interested in the theater as a career.

Students interested in scholastic fields find enjoyment in science, math and language clubs. Organizations such as these avail time for both students and teachers to pursue more complex aspects that cannot be included in a regular class.

For those active in social events, hobbies, and service organizations, Pep Club, Radio Club, Auto Club, Glen-Teens, and many others are available.

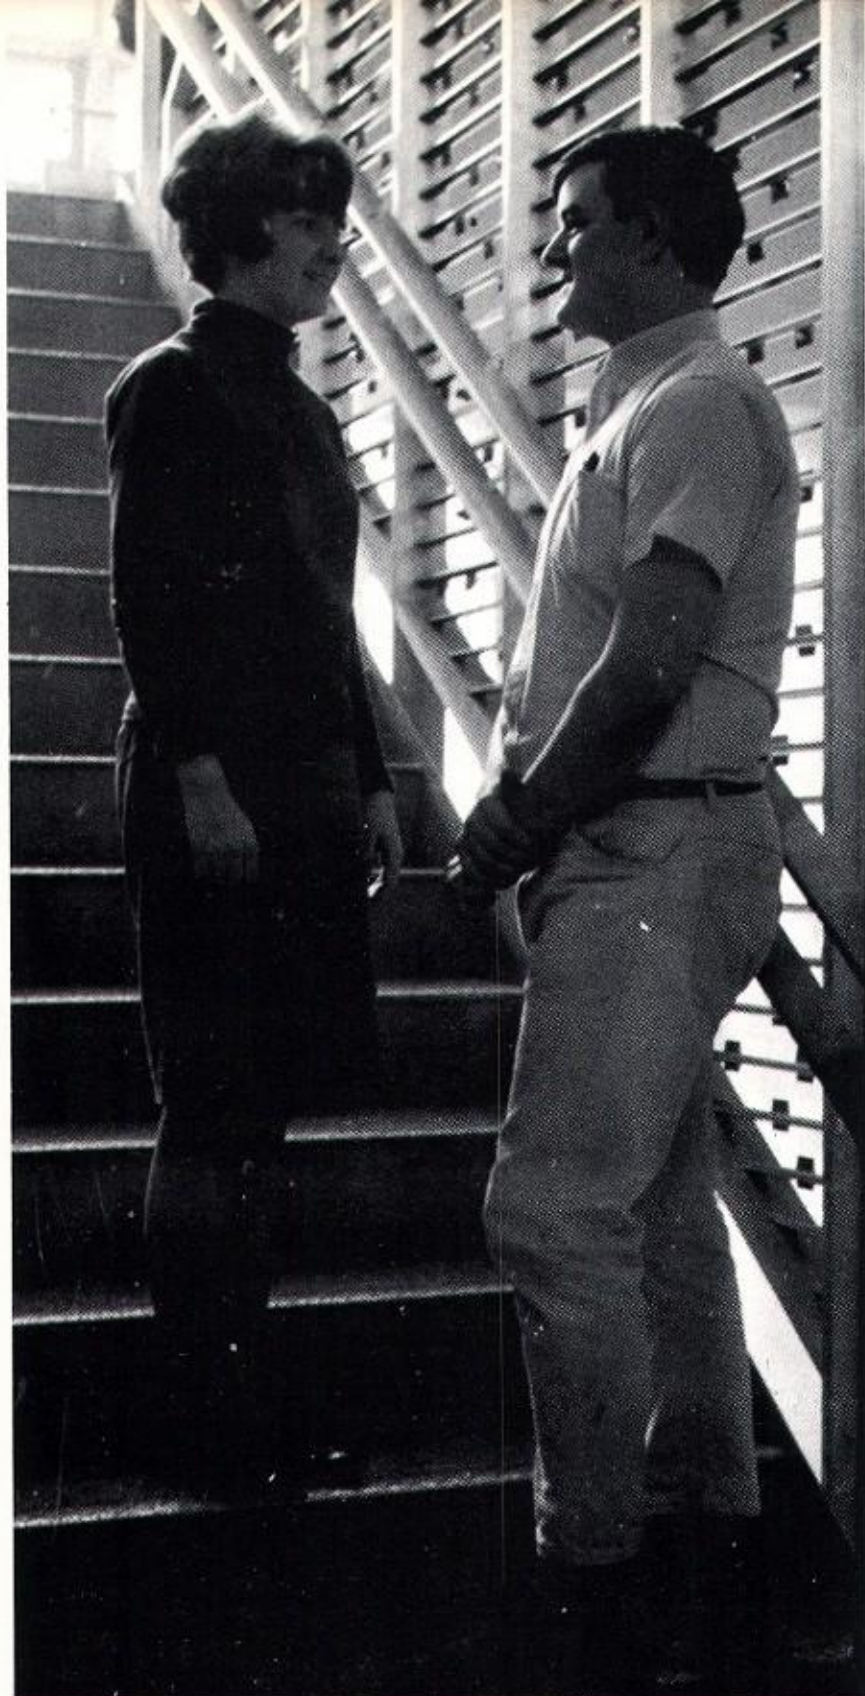

Diane Makal, Caduceus treasurer, takes attendance at a meeting while waiting for the guest speaker to arrive.

Organizations cover students' many interests

Thespian club members meet to discuss plans of future plays which they will present to the school.

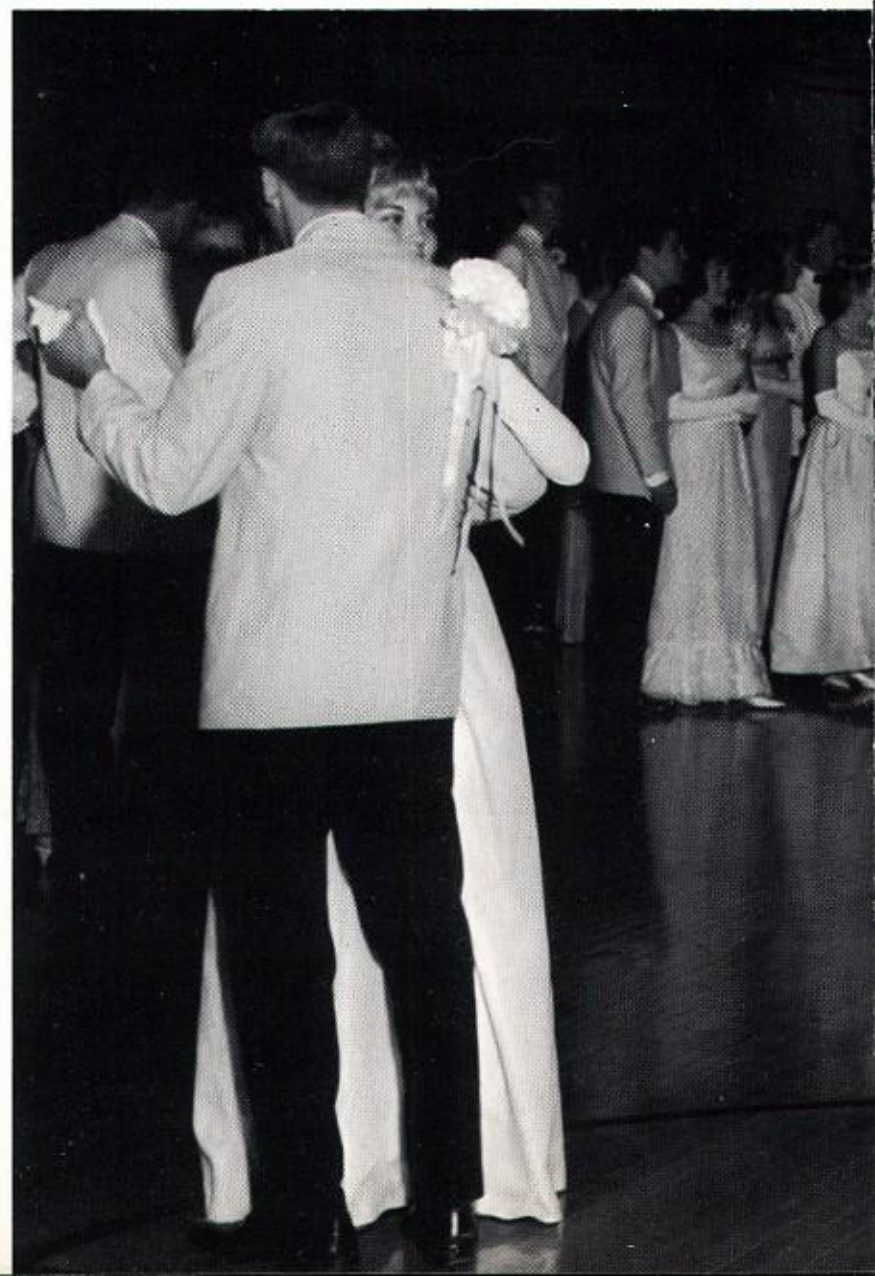

Linda St. Joan and Chuck Geigner informally discuss the social activities of the coming weekend.

Glenbard East, like most high schools, has been the focal point for social activities of its students. The many varied activities have brought the students appreciation of all aspects of social life.

Informal activities such as sports events, pep rallies, and socials, give students an opportunity to overcome self consciousness in a friendly relaxed atmosphere. On the more refined side, formal activities such as the prom, give students a chance to practice social skills which will be expected in later years.

The numerous plays, concerts and art exhibits given by Glenbard East help both the participating and observing students gain and develop an appreciation of the arts.

It is through activities such as these that students become socially acclimated, therefore confident and mature in facing the future.

Students gather in the halls for a few minutes of conversation before classes begin.

Activities center around social life

Dr. Stoakes supervises East and West

Mr. Stoakes, Superintendent of the Glenbard School District, has now completed his fourth year as superintendent. His job, officially, is to supervise Glenbard East and West and the connected activities.

Although Dr. Stoakes' office is at Glenbard West, he is often seen at Glenbard East, devoting his attention to some of GE's problems.

Dr. Stoakes graduated from the University of Iowa with a Masters of Arts degree and taught Mathematics and science before attaining the position of Assistant Superintendent of Schools at Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Just two years ago, Dr. Stoakes earned his PhD at University of Colorado.

Since his coming to District 87, Dr. Stoakes has seen both Glenbard East and Glenbard West add classrooms to their structures, while enrollment figures have risen sharply. He has spent a great deal of time coordinating plans for building additional schools in the district while remaining very much a part of the plans and operation of the two existing schools.

Mr. Rider directs school affairs

Mr. William Rider, Principal of Glenbard East, carries the great responsibilities of running a large high school and still remains in constant touch with many of its smallest affairs. Students have often found Mr. Rider a warm, understanding man and an administrator who looks at the students' feelings with an indiscriminating eye.

During this past year, Mr. Rider supervised and helped streamline the closed lunch program, building jobs, and the expanded services offered at Glenbard East.

Having previously taught and coached in a high school, Mr. Rider is acquainted with all facets of a high school and is experienced in solving Glenbard East's problems. He completed his education at the University of Illinois, where he received his Masters of Science degree.

Mr. Rider presents athletic and academic honor awards at the fall honors convo.

Administration upholds East motto

Mr. Astroth, assistant principal, surveys GE's football field just prior to a varsity game.

As Glenbard East's growth mushrooms, new responsibilities and problems besiege the administration. A solution to many of these new problems is channeled to three people: the dean of boys, Mr. Hutt, the dean of girls, Mrs. Hughes, and Mr. Astroth, assistant principal.

Mr. Hutt and Mrs. Hughes manage disciplinary problems and absences. Both attempt to solve any problem with an understanding of the student involved and all the possible causes. Often the students and the dean reach solutions acceptable to both.

Mr. Astroth, assistant principal, maintains order in the behind-the-scene activities at Glenbard East. His duties include arranging curriculum, handling financial affairs, and contacting substitute and student teachers. Mr. Astroth devotes most of his time and energy to help create a smoothly functioning school.

Together, the three administrators provided needed assistance for Mr. Rider, guidance for the students, and helped instill and maintain GE's slogan, "Right Attitudes Mean Success."

Special Services made available to students

As a result of the vast number of students attending Glenbard East, the administration has found it necessary to provide special services which offer guidance and direction and solution for problems that have arisen.

Mr. De Mol, the school's social worker, serves as a special counselor for those who wish to consult with him. His advice often enables students to face problems with a better understanding and a new outlook.

Mr. Baldis provides a patient and understanding source of learning for Glenbard East's EMH students. Through his efforts, handicapped students learn to live as profitable citizens.

Injuries and illnesses must be expected and GE's nurse, Mrs. Rogers, deals with these problems. Mrs. Rogers aids these students and sees that a physician's care is administered when needed.

Miss Sanquist is responsible for the type of food consumed by those students patronizing the school cafeteria. As dietitian, she prepares the menus, and supervises their preparation and serving.

Solving a multitude of problems, the counselors efficiently administer to the needs and the progress of the students assigned to them and are ready to provide immediate guidance and help.

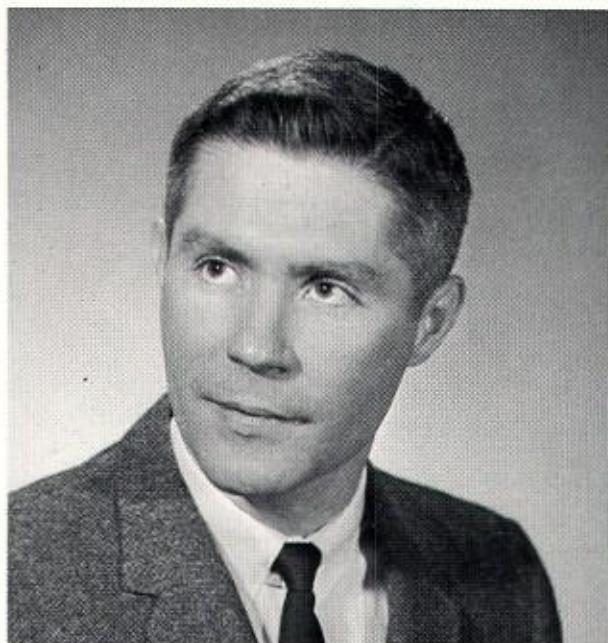

Some of the special services the counseling department provides are career, college and schedule planning. Using a wide background of resources, the counselors can give accurate advice that satisfies each student's needs.

Career Day, held expressly for juniors and seniors, gives students an accurate idea of many careers and offers practical advice. Adults active in these certain careers speak, outlining the advantages and drawbacks to the career as well as the education and experience needed. In coordination with career day, various pamphlets and books are available to the students.

College Night, offered to sophomores, juniors and seniors, enlightens students to various colleges, universities, and their programs. Admission counselors and other representatives of the major schools from throughout the nation attend and offer their services. During this night, costs, curriculum offerings, and other matters are discussed and elaborated upon. Mr. Dave Hunt, college counselor and director of guidance, also provides help in choosing a college.

Each counselor tentatively plans a student's academic program during the freshman year, and follows up on the program continuing to tailor it to the student's needs until the end of the student's high school education.

Throughout the student's years at GE, the counselors supervise and guide his activities, yet encourage the student's independence.

English students achieve expression of ideas

The English Department offers students a varied program in their four years at Glenbard East. English I, II, III are available as well as English composition, Creative Writing, Speed Reading, English Literature, and World Literature.

Each of these courses helps students gain a well rounded, liberal education. Through the study of the various forms of literature, the students gain valuable insight to many philosophies and techniques of writing. Throughout the English program, grammar and the ability to express one's ideas concisely are stressed.

For more capable students an honors program is offered. The courses cover much of the same material but delve more deeply into literature, presenting the philosophies in novels and essays.

The English Department, supervised by Mrs. Schroeder, chairman, achieves its goal of a good English background for each Glenbard East student.

G. E. Library holds wealth of information

Any student activity, even the slightest research, is helped by the wealth of resources which the library contains. The library contains a large selection of encyclopedias, magazines, pamphlets, and books, all of which make possible a surplus of information on almost any subject. In addition to the indexes available to the student, the librarians answer any question or offer help to any student in finding the answer.

Providing students with the confidence and pride so necessary to public speaking, as well as instruction in theatrical arts, the speech arts department offers courses such as dramatics, debate, and public speaking. Mrs. Meyer, department chairman, supervises the courses and insures every student of receiving qualified instruction in public speaking. The department also produces the school plays and presents many masterful productions.

Students gain competence in languages

Foreign languages, becoming an important facet of world relations, is realistically and practically taught by GE's language department. A wide diversification of languages, Russian, Latin, French, Spanish, and German, provides students a background that is useful in many careers.

Using language labs, the department has updated its teaching methods and has given students the best opportunity for learning a language. The ALM program (Audio-Lingual Material) provides students with a high degree of competence in a language. Specially planned texts and tapes, which are recorded by the inhabitants of the country, provide students the necessary basic skills for fluency.

In addition to classroom teaching, instructors often tutor or otherwise aid the students after school. Each student is offered help and enthusiastically encouraged to accept it.

Field trips, specially planned lectures and presentations, movies, and resource materials are also provided for students, that are interested in background of the foreign land and language.

Because of the extra effort and attention, the students conclude two or more years of a language with as good, if not better, knowledge of the language as any student from another school.

Members of an American Problems class take advantage of the few minutes before the bell to study in preparation for a test.

Throughout the year, the social studies department presented varied courses to make the year more productive for the students at Glenbard East. The different courses in history, geography, and social sciences gave participating students a clearer understanding of human behavior.

The courses in history, such as Latin American, American, Russian, and World History, help students develop a knowledge of different cultures, a knowledge essential in understanding the motivations of mankind. The cultural history course grouped art, history, and music into one class, which illustrated the relationship between the arts and history.

Classes in political science and economics showed the systems which man has used to regulate his culture. Sociology acquainted the students with the numerous problems of man and his society. American Problems presented social and political problems which exist in our nation today.

The honors program was initiated to fit the abilities of selected students. The freshmen students had a choice of World History, which was designed to give the students a better understanding of present world cultures, or Social Science I, designed to give the students a course of study to help explain the present world situation. Sophomore students in the honors program took Social Science II, an introductory course in basic theories of social science. Juniors, by recommendation, participated in United States History Honors. This course provided a study of the United States during its entire existence. Selected seniors took Senior World History, a course designed to present in greater detail, the state of present world cultures.

Math Department offers varied program

John Hughes, Neil Hoglund, and Ken Lykken listen attentively to Miss Faist's lecture in their Math III honors class.

Offering two different programs to GE students, the math department satisfies the needs for both the students who will go to college and the student who will not.

A basic or general math program, provided for those that will not go to college, provides the student with a knowledge of mathematics necessary for holding a job. However, the student is not limited to just the basic courses and may, if he wishes, and qualifies, take additional courses in math.

A more advanced program is provided for college-bound students. Courses in algebra, plane and solid geometry, trigonometry, and college algebra prepare the student for math taught in colleges. This program stresses more the theoretical math and the necessary logical thinking.

For the students capable of accelerated courses, an honors program is offered. Through four years of the honors classes, a student will advance from algebra to calculus.

Another program that was limited to seniors only, was an experimental course which used a text from the series of texts that the freshmen, sophomores and juniors used.

By offering these two programs, Glenbard East's math department neglects neither the college-bound or non-college-bound but manages to satisfy both groups' needs.

G. E. Science keeps pace with world events

Frank Kerr heats water to prepare for a biology experiment.

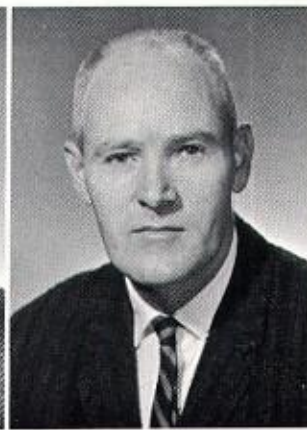

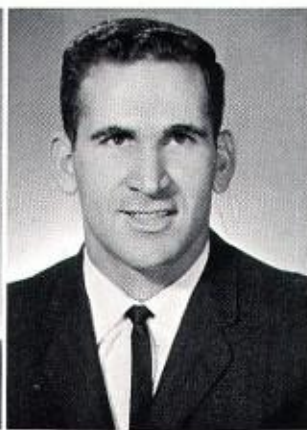

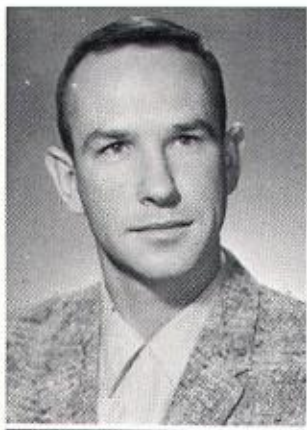

Although the scientific world is constantly increasing in knowledge, GE's science department is rarely left behind. This year the science department continued to offer three improved programs: BSCS Biology, CHEM Study Chemistry, and PSSC Physics. Each of these courses incorporates new material in its texts, and, due to its specially constructed format, achieves a comprehensive review of the field of study.

Recognizing that not every student is scientifically minded nor college bound, the department offers two programs. A physical science course introduces students to a general overview of the scientific world.

For the college-bound students, lab subjects, such as physics or chemistry, provide the necessary instruction required in college. Although the courses also give a general view of a specific field, the student receives a comprehensive picture of the subject.

Throughout the four years at Glenbard, the student is given the most advanced and comprehensive instruction in the science discipline.

Varied program offers boys a challenge in P. E.

GE boys' physical education program, recognized as one of this area's finest, provides male students the opportunities of being physically fit and enjoying an active sports life.

Offering such activities as football, basketball, baseball, volleyball, recreational games, gymnastics, tumbling, tennis, wrestling and track, students also receive a unit of classroom Driver's Ed. in the sophomore year.

Boys P.E. department chairman John Cates supervised the four levels of activities and made sure that each boy received correct instruction for the areas in which he is weakest.

The department also offers interested students an intramural program, giving the boys who are not on competitive teams a chance to experience competition.

The end result of the department's program is showing boys that developing a healthy body is both important and possible.

Girls' P. E. Department emphasizes creativity

Striving to give Glenbard East's girls a wide background in all phases of athletic activity, the Girls' Physical Education Department has introduced fundamentals of various sports. Through the teaching of these various sports the girls gain knowledge of each sport and good sportsmanship as well as learning how to function as a team. Different classes are allowed to compete in some sports, making the units more interesting.

Dancing plays an important part in Glenbard East's physical education course. Folk dances are taught and the girls are given a chance to learn the dances of various parts of the United States. Later, the folk dances of other countries are also taught to the girls. At the completion of this unit the students must present a folk dance of their own creation. Perhaps the most creative course offered is the unit in modern dance in which the girls are able to express themselves through movement.

On the whole the Girls' Physical Education Department has successfully provided an excellent physical education program.

Art and Music offer aesthetic outlet

Art and music, two creative expressions of an individual's spirit, are represented by two of Glenbard's educational departments. These two departments offer outlets for students that desire to express themselves aesthetically.

Offering a number of courses, the Art Department provides for the student with average ability as well as the truly artistic student. Courses dealing with art in general and specific areas, such as advertising art or ceramics, provide interested students a varied, individual program.

Glenbard East's music department also offers a selection of programs for students seriously interested in music. The chorus, recognized as one of the better choirs in the area, provides an activity for the singers at GE. Both band and orchestra were available but limited to those students that had played instruments before. The chorus, band and orchestra strive for both individual and group achievements. The Music Department received support from the booster clubs, which are composed of adults.

Together, the two departments add to the cultural atmosphere that is so important. Several times a year, a concert is presented by either the chorus, band, or orchestra, and the Art Department occasionally hosts art displays from nearby universities.

Students profit from practical art courses

Glenbard East's Driver Education Department gave each student an opportunity to gain a working knowledge of traffic situations and laws. Each student was also given the opportunity to apply his knowledge in actual behind-the-wheel experiences. Films and diagrams were provided by the American Automobile Association, making the teaching even more effective. With this knowledge, future drivers will be safer ones.

Another important practical arts course offered at Glenbard East is made possible through the Business Education Department. In this course, students who wish to go into a business career, go on to college, or just look for part-time work, are taught secretarial and clerical skills which they will need. A wide variety of these courses is offered which enables the student to prepare himself for a place in the business world.

The industrial arts program at Glenbard East offers students a broad field of subjects to choose from, allowing students a wider and more liberal education. Any student, with the help of Mr. Sasko, department chairman, may plan a program that will fulfill the requirements of a trade. Metalworking, woodworking, mechanical drawing, auto essentials, mechanics, and architectural and machine drawing are offered, each giving a student the desirable background for a trade later in life.

For students wishing to further their industrial education, extracurricular activities are available that familiarize the students with possible careers after their graduation. The industrial arts program also offers to the college-bound student a practical knowledge of such fields as auto mechanics or engineering.

Making available such extensive courses in the industrial arts program is a solution to a twofold problem. It offers students, who are not going on to college, the opportunity to learn a trade before graduation and enter that trade as a skilled laborer. It also offers college-bound students a basic knowledge of industrial fields and serves as an introduction to later studies.

Glenbard East students were enabled to learn home-making and culinary skills by taking the courses offered by GE's Home Economics Department. Three courses, Clothing, Food and Nutrition, and Home Management provide students a practical knowledge.

In the Clothing course, the girls learn the basic techniques in sewing. Starting with simpler designs, the girls soon develop the ability to create their own designs. During the year, a fashion show is given in which the clothes that the girls have made are displayed.

In the Food and Nutrition course the students are taught to prepare a variety of foods using various methods. They also learn the nutritious values and importance of different foods and of a balanced meal.

In the Home Management course the girls learn the basic essentials needed in decorating and managing a home, as well as a general background of personal adjustment.

All of these courses play an important part in preparing these girls for their responsibilities as homemakers.

Helping the administrators in the paperwork and small jobs, the office help and secretaries kept the school's affairs running as smoothly as a new Cadillac.

Keeping track of students' attendance, the attendance office processed and reviewed the various excuses with the co-operation of the deans. Each day absentee lists were compiled and distributed, admittance passes were written and an overall list of absences was made up.

The counselor's secretaries performed three major tasks. Students were sent conference slips, and a smooth influx of students was maintained. College applications and high school transcripts were processed. The last duty was to maintain a constant file for each student's schedule and grades.

Functioning as receptionists and general help, the main office's secretaries directed students and visitors to appropriate departments as well as oversaw the financial affairs of the school's organizations and departments.

Together, the secretaries allowed GE's students and administrators to enjoy an efficiently run school.

This year, ARIES enlarged its book to the 9 x 12 collegiate size. The increase in size was due to the higher student enrollment and an attempt to improve layout.

The executive staff, composed of Sandy Killelea and Mary Oehler, directed the activities undertaken. Executive Editor, Sandy Killelea supervised the editorial staff. Mary Oehler, business manager, headed the business staff. Miss Ashinhust was faculty adviser.

The editorial staff was further divided into smaller staffs, each specializing in one section or phase of the yearbook. Section editors selected various photographs which represented a full scope of student activities and school. Club photos, individual underclassmen photos and senior pictures were taken and organized. The copy staff wrote articles on all school organizations and activities. The end result was a full report on the school-year 1965-66.

The business staff was responsible for the payment of the ARIES production costs. The staff raised this money through selling subscriptions and advertisements for the yearbook. The staff also raised money by running the concession stand at home football games and by holding a Basketball social.

The ECHO editorial staff wrote and edited over 200,000 words this past year. Issued fourteen times a year, ECHO made every attempt to give its readers the full scope of school, student, organizational, and sports news in each edition.

The page editors and their assistants, headed by Judy King, edited and rewrote all articles submitted by reporters. After shaping the stories to good journalistic styles, they sent the copy to the printer. At the last deadline, the copy was pasted together and sent to the printer for the last time.

Two days later, G.E. students received the issue of ECHO. The business staff, supervised by Rick Mons, distributed the ECHO. In addition to distributing the paper, the business staff sold advertisements and subscriptions, both of which helped finance the paper. The business staff also sponsored other money-making activities as brownie sales, picture sales, and basketball socials.

At the beginning of the year Marty Blomme, Jim Goetz, Alice Iden, Judy King, Rick Mons, and Barb Ward attended the Illinois State High School Publications Association Convention at the University of Illinois in Urbana. After two days of attending programs designed to provide publications with helpful suggestions, the group came back to Lombard with many ideas.

Both business and editorial staffs were directed by Jim Goetz, Executive Editor. Mrs. Fleming was faculty editorial adviser and Mr. Mitchell was faculty business adviser.

Ramblings publishes literary magazine

Claudia Collins works late after school on a deadline for Ramblings.

Ramblings, the school literary magazine, published one issue this year. This issue was filled with art, articles, essays, poetry, and short stories, contributed by the students of Glenbard East. Each contribution was evaluated for publication by the section editor, the executive editor and the faculty adviser, Mr. Hayden.

The magazine's main objective was to give the students an opportunity to write and publish creative material. Many English and art teachers sponsored and encouraged students to submit material to Ramblings. After reviewing and approving material, the editorial staff shaped the form the magazine was to take.

The business staff planned and sponsored several money making events such as brownie sales and a social. For the first time, the activity ticket covered the magazine yet salesmen still scurried about, selling additional copies to the students who did not have activity tickets.

Jack Thompson was executive editor of the 1965-66 Ramblings. His staff consisted of two section editors: Lee St.Dennis, Art editor, and Claudia Collins, Literary editor. Joanne Fairman was Business editor.

Solving extra-curricular school problems was only one of the many functions of Inter-Club. It co-ordinated the activities of various organizations, assigned non-conflicting dates for general club meetings, and prearranged all selling dates. Inter-Club consisted of a representative and an alternate from nineteen clubs. The representative reported the decisions of Inter-Club to his original club whether a service club such as Glen-Teens, Tri-S-Teens, Future Teachers of America, or Caduceus, an academic club such as Spanish Club, French Club, or Science Club, or an honorary organization such as Mu Alpha Theta, G-Club, or Artisans. Other clubs such as Anglers Club, Auto-Tech Club, and Radio Clubs, formed primarily for leisure time, also sent representatives.

Possibly one of the hardest jobs that Inter-Club had was setting up the yearly Student Council school calendar which had to include all dramatic, musical, and social events sponsored by Glenbard East organizations.

Students who wished to form a new club at Glenbard East had to have the specific permission of Inter-Club, along with the sponsorship of a faculty member.

The officers were: Mark Van Clay, president; Glenda Klein, vice-president; and Paulette Fleishman, secretary. Faculty sponsor was Mrs. Ruisard.

Student Council at Glenbard East played a role of responsibility and importance in all school affairs. Each class elected school representatives to act upon the wishes and desires of the particular class and to inform the class what measures Student Council took action on.

Among its activities Student Council sponsored Homecoming, the Christmas Post Office, and A.F.S. week. Other money making projects were school event calendars and sweat shirt sales.

This year's Homecoming theme was "Ram Round-Up." The Friday night activities were highlighted by a "Tug-o-War" with the Frosh-Soph team against the upperclassmen. The evening was climaxed with a sock hop.

This year's Christmas Post Office was another important project. "Santa Clause" visited each section to distribute the Christmas cards sent for a slight charge to students for their friends.

Student Council members sponsored A.F.S. week to make money for next year's foreign exchange student. Ineke Van Kessel, at a special A.F.S. convo held in the spring, gave a speech about her life and country.

Student Council primarily operated to govern the student body, and to bring about changes benevolent to all. The Council was led by President, Dave Carroll; Vice-President, Linda Burt; Secretary, Barb Anderson; and Treasurer, Darrell Rist.

Pep Club, one of Glenbard East's most popular organizations, gives the student body the opportunity to directly support their athletic teams.

During the year Pep Club was responsible for student transportation to football and basketball games away from home and pep sections at both home and away games.

Pep Club's first social function of the year was the turn-about "Kick-Off" dance, celebrating the first football game of the season.

Pep Club helped organize Homecoming activities with a rousing pep rally before classes to establish the high spirited atmosphere necessary for victory. Pep Club sponsored the release of helium-filled balloons after each varsity touchdown, and sold mums at the game.

Pep Club also won first place with their Homecoming float entitled "Leyden's Last Stand."

Pep Club sponsored various projects to promote school spirit, such as red, white and black days, the selling of Ram Buttons, Pep Week, and the annual Spring Tea, where the next year's officers were announced.

The Club functioned smoothly under the capable leadership of President, Lynda Witt; Vice-President, Linda Soderstrom; Secretary, Rose Bellock; and Treasurer, Pam Glynn; with the guidance and aid of Miss Wickboldt and the rest of the council.

G-Club promotes excellence in competition

To become a member of the Glenbard East Letterman's Club, a student must have achieved athletic excellence in a particular field of varsity competition, representing Glenbard East.

Coach Weber, club adviser, said, "The primary goal of G-Club is to establish the reputation for the spirit of excellence at Glenbard East through the lettermen. Their example, both on and off the field, is meant to typify the best at Glenbard East."

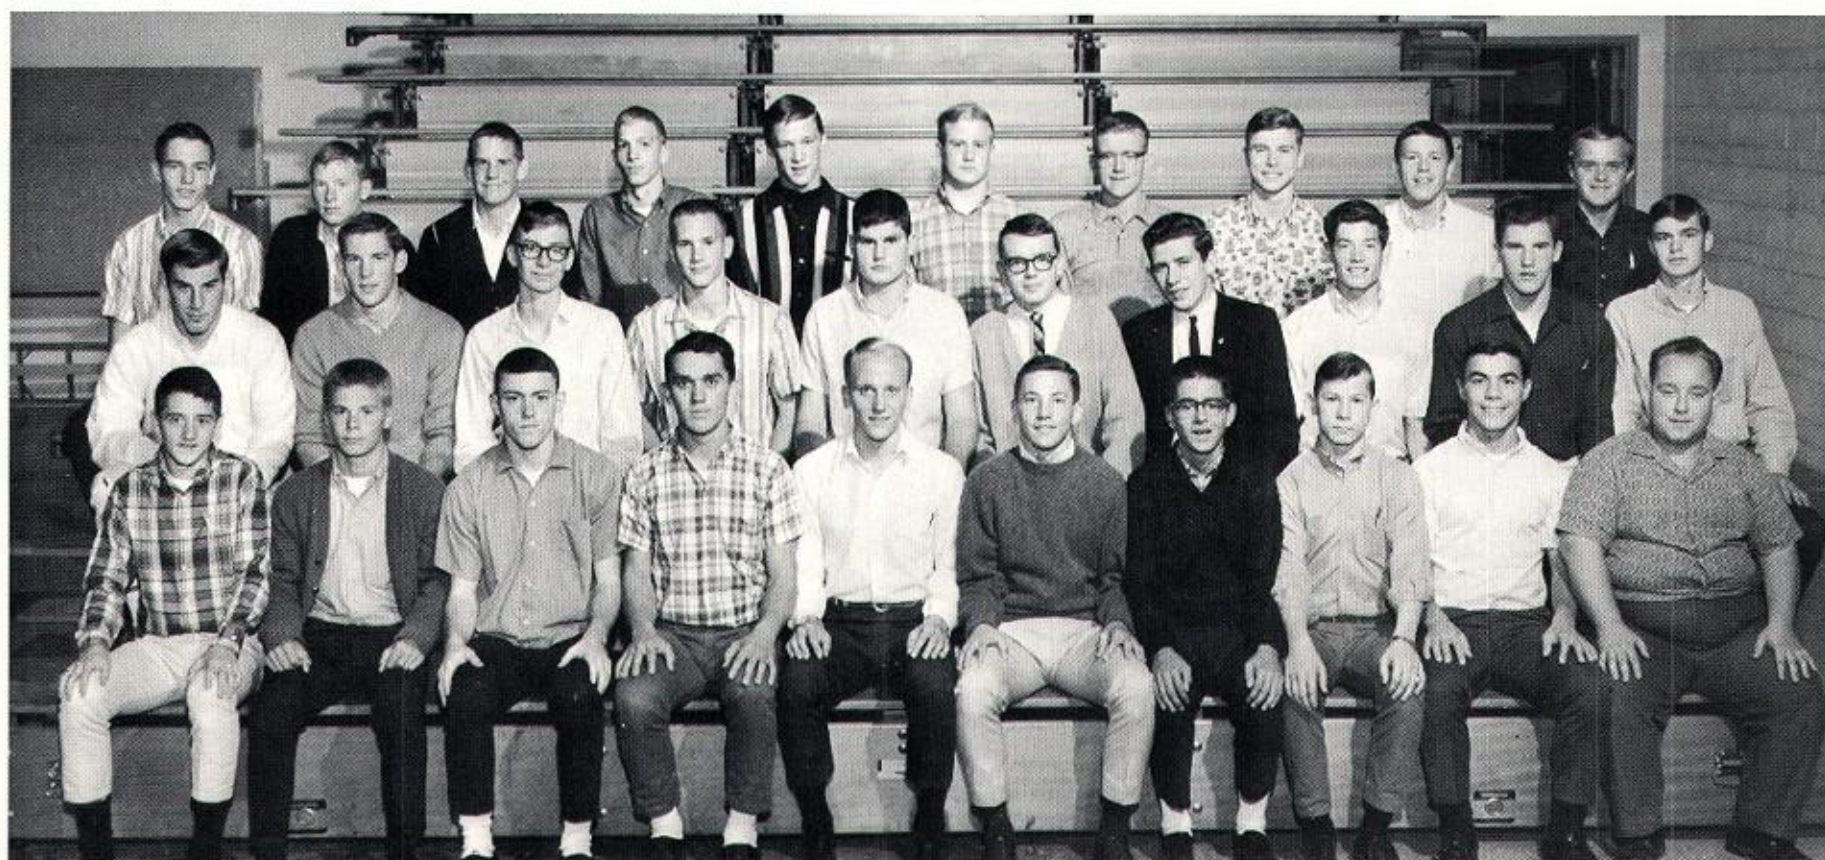

This year, G-Club raised the necessary expenses needed to support the club, through the selling of popcorn and through the printing and selling of football programs at all four home games. The annual lettermen's outing and social were highlights of the '66 year. In addition to these activities, the lettermen did all the ushering at athletic activities. Another of the lettermen's projects was the Hall of Fame, a showcase where pictures of all state competitors are kept.

Glen-Teens donate many service hours

Sue Gerhardt, June Harris, and Linda Girardi thoughtfully listen as Peg Redig gives a report at a Glen-Teens planning meeting.

Combining service to the community and participation in school life, Glen-Teens created an effective service club at Glenbard East. This past year Glen-Teens attained many of its high goals.

Their first drive provided food, clothes, and a turkey for a needy family during the Thanksgiving holidays. They also sponsored the Sadie Hawkins turn-about in November, which built up the scholarship fund. The money was awarded at the end of the year to a deserving senior Glen-Teens member.

Glen-Teens opened East's Yuletide season with the annual Candle Light Service, featuring a choral reading, musical pieces by the orchestra, and an invocation by one of Lombard's ministers.

In February, the club organized their Semi-Formal dance. This was one of the big dances of the year.

In the Spring, the last event was a Mother-Daughter Banquet, where the member's mothers got acquainted and the girls met for the last time before the school year ended.

In addition to these special events, the club made money by holding brownie sales. They also suggested and performed many service projects.

These many activities filled Glen-Teens' program and satisfied the students interested in the activities of this club.

Tri-S-Teens is a girls' service organization at Glenbard East. It has been in existence for two years under this name; previously the name of it was Junior Red Cross. The council members changed the name because they sought to expand the types and areas of service projects it performed.

Tri-S-Teens held various fund raising events in order to pay for the service projects. At the Homecoming football game, they sold red, black, and white shakers, promoting school spirit and at Christmas time, Tri-S-Teens sold Candy Canes preceding vacation.

Various activities they participated in were highlighted by their filling of Christmas stockings for sick children at Elmhurst Hospital. They also sang Christmas carols throughout wards, increasing the Christmas spirit in the hospital.

At each monthly meeting, Tri-S-Teens either made useful articles, sewed, or heard a guest speaker such as Ineke Van Kessel, East's foreign exchange student, or a representative from Patricia Stevens. As part of their service projects, they visited old people's homes, orphanages, and lower income districts to try to help the people there.

Thespians attend National Convention

Glenbard East's dramatics club, Thespians is an honorary organization which is affiliated with the National Thespian Society. GE's troupe, No. 2489 began in the spring of 1964 with a desire to raise the quality of dramatics at Glenbard East, and to increase the appreciation of the theater.

Thespians met twice a month, the first meeting of the month devoted to the business of the club only. The second meeting presented a specially planned program. A Shakespearean actor and a college drama professor came from nearby colleges to speak to Thespian members. A few members of the school's dramatic department demonstrated some scenes from the theater of the absurd.

Besides the monthly meetings, Thespian committees planned other activities. Often Thespian members and dramatics class students attended plays in and around the Chicago area.

Their biggest project of the year was raising money to attend the National Thespian Convention at Portland, Oregon at the end of school. They sponsored the musical, a sock-hop, and a Christmas fund-raising sale.

Bob Aseltine headed the executive board which directed the activities of Thespians. Bob Pennington was vice-president, Sue Foley was secretary, Cynthia Futterer was treasurer, and Linda Larson was the scribe.

Students gained admission into Thespians by working a hundred hours in two different areas of dramatic productions, and by demonstrating a sincere interest in the theater. The faculty adviser, Mrs. Meyer, invited those qualified students to become members of the organization. At the Thespian banquets in December, and in June, the club held formal induction ceremonies for new members.

Artisans ably demonstrate talent

Artisans is an honorary service organization whose members have contributed to Glenbard East in the field of art. Individually, club members made posters, worked on scenery for dramatic productions, and participated on various decoration committees as well as on the staffs of other organizations. Artisans provided recognition for many people who spent considerable time and much effort toward perfection of school projects.

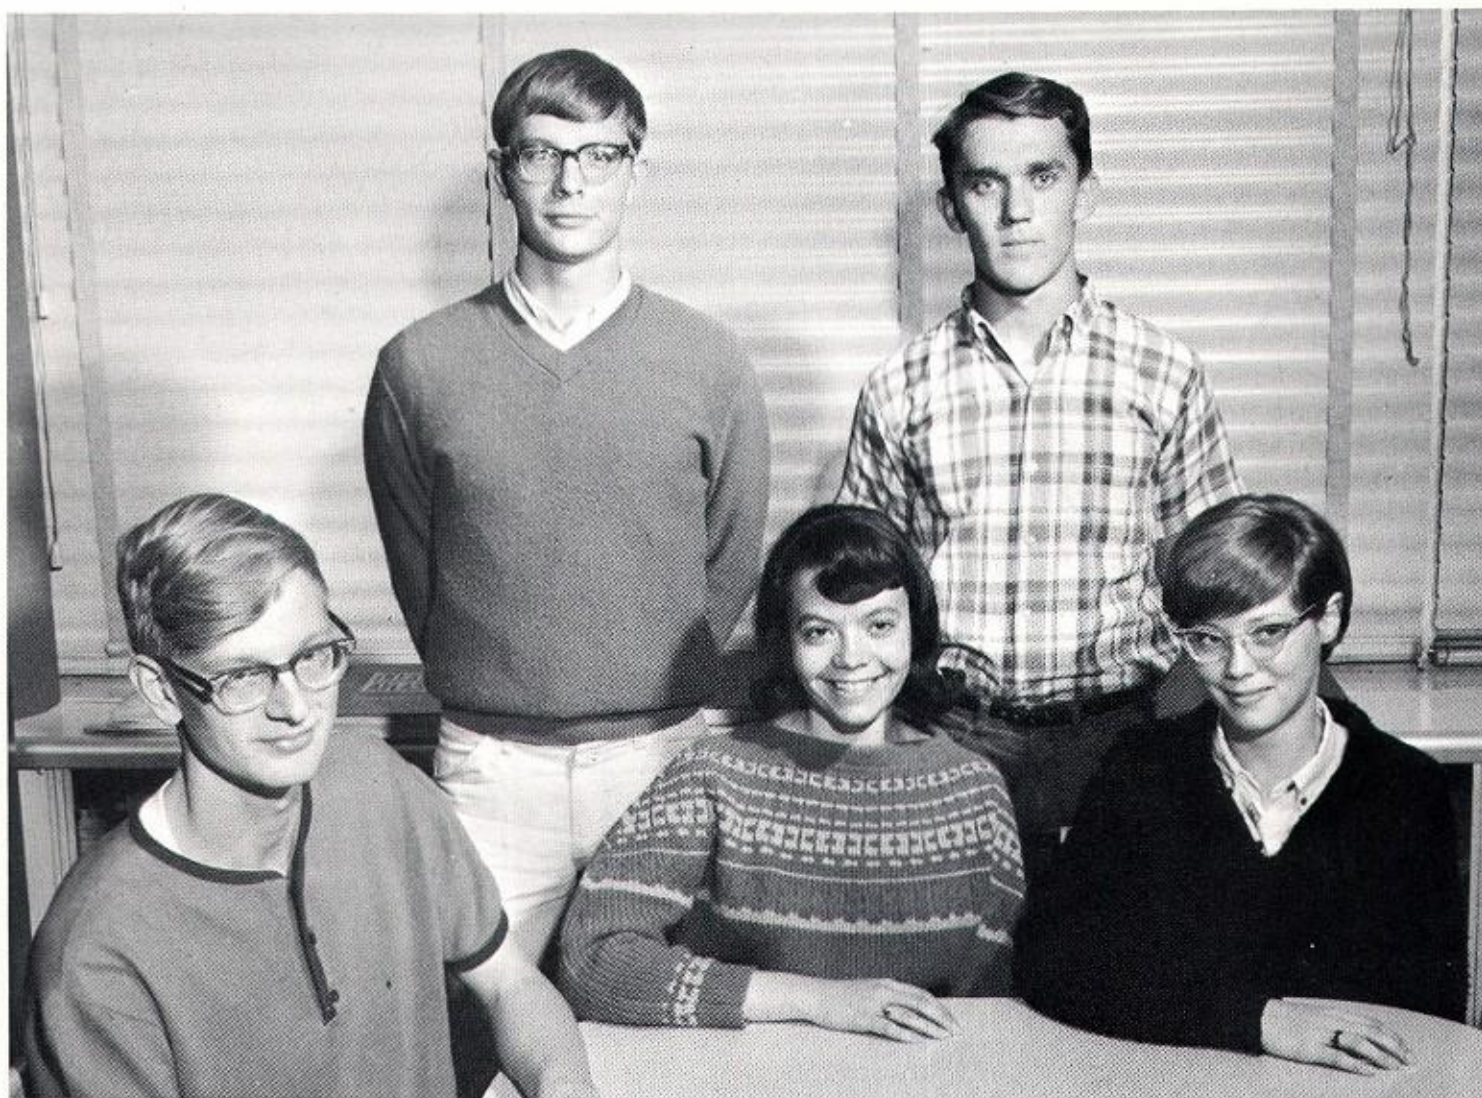

During the year, Artisans participated in many activities. They began the year with a frantic effort to build a float for Homecoming, which they managed to complete Friday night. For several years, their money-making project involved the selling of G. E. pins, which they molded and painted. The biggest project of the year was the traditional Christmas-time decoration of the huge window over the lower main entrance of the school. Many townspeople and students saw and appreciated this display, making the effort and time involved well spent.

Besides several field trips taken throughout the year, the club had a picnic in the spring to welcome new members, who were accepted only after they had shown they were willing workers.

The officers for the 1965-66 school year were: President, Mark Van Clay; Vice-President-Treasurer, Debbie Rominger; and Secretary, Debbie Anderson.

Mu Alpha Theta recognizes math students

Paul Luczak, Tom Toff, and Shirley Fritz laugh at the perplexity of a problem during a meeting of Mu Alpha Theta.

Mu Alpha Theta, Glenbard East's honorary math club, is a chapter of the National High School and Junior College Mathematics Club. Mu Alpha Theta recognizes students who are accomplished in math. Prospective members of the club must maintain a "B" average in all subjects and be enrolled in Algebra II or a subsequent math course.

Making membership of Math Club is quite an honor. With seventy-six members Mu Alpha Theta is one of the larger of Glenbard East's clubs.

With a common interest in math Mu Alpha Theta members have an opportunity to meet and discuss fields of mathematics not usually taken up in high school.

This past year Vice-President Dan Bottoms planned and arranged for guest speakers for the monthly meetings. Math Club members also delved more deeply into the subjects and ideas not discussed in regular class sessions, such as topology, mathematical puzzles and probability. Climaxing the year was the annual Math Club picnic.

Mu Alpha Theta officers with the help of the sponsor, Miss Faist, kept the club functioning. The officers were: Bruce Thompson, president; Dan Bottoms, first vice-president; Marcia Brink, second vice-president; Linda Shubert, secretary; and Ross Bauer, treasurer.

One of the highest honors that high school students can receive is membership in the National Honor Society. Students were selected for membership in this organization because they had made unusual contributions in four general areas; scholarship, leadership, service, and character. They were chosen only after extensive screening and consideration of their past records. To retain membership, students had to maintain their high scholastic average as well as outstanding participation in school and community affairs. Forty-four juniors and seniors were inducted into the Glenbard East Chapter of the National Honor Society in May, 1965. This was the largest group of new members Glenbard East ever had. This reflected favorably on the student body since so many students qualified.

The impressive induction ceremony of the Honor Society, held in the spring, has become a tradition at Glenbard East. The ceremony consisted of lighting four candles that represented scholarship, leadership, service, and character. As the candles were lit, the officers of the previous year gave short speeches which explained the significance of the four qualities. New members then lit their own candles, which symbolized the eternal light of knowledge, and pledged to continue their performance.

Following the ceremony, a meeting was held under the supervision of the club sponsor, Mr. Beyers, to elect new officers. Those Chosen for the 1965-66 school year were; Dan Bottoms, president; Dave Truesdell, vice-president; Darrell Rist, treasurer; and Lynn Ostrowski, secretary.

Hi-Y promotes good sportsmanship

Hi-Y member Mike Schroeder prepares to shoot practice set shot before a club game.

Hi-Y is an organization which offers evenings of sports and outings to its members. During the 1965-66 year Hi-Y had two major money raising projects. Members sold cokes at all of the home basketball games and in the spring of the year they washed and polished cars. Part of the money raised from these projects was contributed to the YMCA in Glen Ellyn. Membership in the YMCA gave the club the use of its gym facilities and swimming pool.

This year the Hi-Y sponsored a tobogganing night and several camp outs in the spring for its members.

Hi-Y met every other Thursday evening at seven thirty. The meetings often included movies, discussions and plans for outings. On Gym Nights members either played against each other in basketball and other games, or went swimming.

The faculty advisers, Mr. Hedrick and Mr. Bass, helped promote the good sportsmanship desired by all of the Hi-Y's members.

The club is affiliated with the YMCA. The president, Don Barnet; secretary, Jeff Bartels; treasurer, Cliff Nolan; sergeant at arms, Steve Stock; and chaplain, Dick Lofgren.

Campus Life attends monthly rallies

Campus Life, formerly Youth for Christ, has completed its second year at Glenbard East.

Campus Life was counseled by Wheaton College and is affiliated with the National Youth for Christ organization.

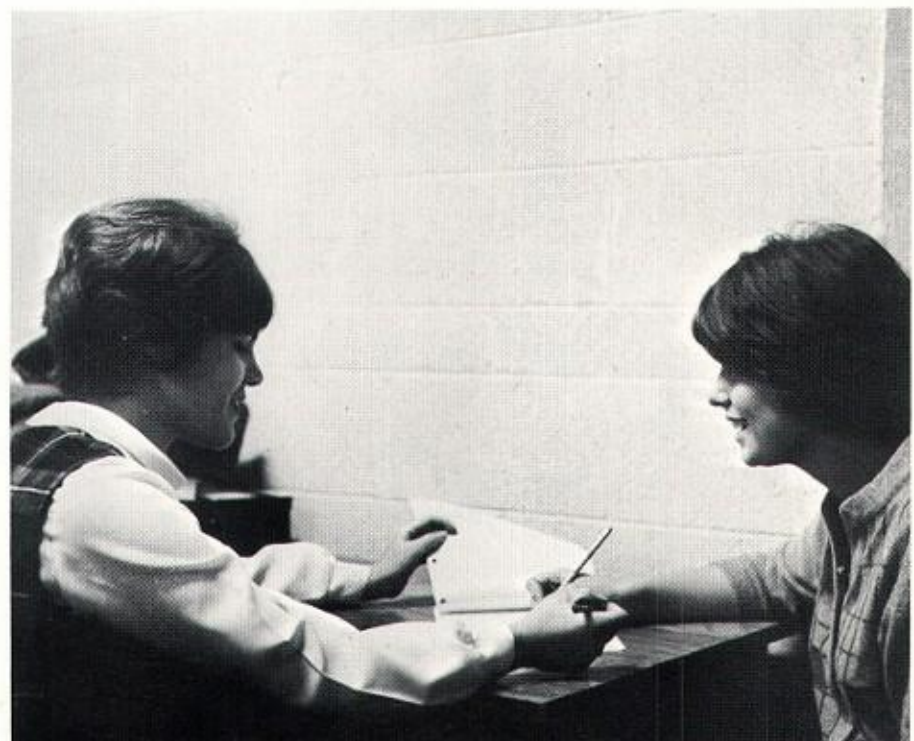

Once a month the members attended rallies at various schools in the area that also sponsored a Campus Life Club.

Two of the highlights of the year were the Hootenanny and Fun Night sponsored by Campus Life. The Hootenanny was held at North Side Park in Wheaton and featured the music of Sonny Fleming. Fun Night was held on November 12, and included sports and games ending with a speaker affiliated with Campus Life.

Meetings were held every other Tuesday morning in the Chorus room at seven-thirty. A skit usually started each meeting, followed by musical entertainment or student-participation singing. The club invited college students, counselors, and teachers to speak at its meetings. Occasionally Mr. Vic Grahman, the area counselor for Campus Life, came and spoke to the group. All Glenbard East students were invited to the meetings regardless of their religious beliefs.

The chairman of Campus Life was Jim Postlewaite. The council members were Dave Vail, Cathy Carlson, Carol Benson and Gary Opfer. The co-sponsors were Mr. Anderson and Mr. Martens.

Los Gringos participate in Spanish traditions

John Hamer asks a question during a "Los Gringos" meeting, which aided members of the club in understanding certain Spanish speaking countries.

"Los Gringos" is Glenbard East's Spanish Club. Club members, gringos, are students interested but not fluent in the Spanish language.

Members enthusiastically received the Christmas posada, a processional from house to house, during which entrances to the houses was denied until the procession arrived at the last house. This march represented the journey of Joseph and Mary to Jerusalem and their futile attempt to find lodgings.

Members of Los Gringos also saw slides and heard of the travels of a speaker who had travelled through several Spanish speaking countries. When Jose Greco, the famous Spanish dancer performed in Chicago, Los Gringos members attended. Pan American Week highlighted the year for the club to promote and spread good will to our southern neighbors. Each day in this week Los Gringos sponsored an activity.

The members not only increased their knowledge of the Spanish language, but also came to appreciate Spanish life and custom.

Miss Staedke and Mr. Hescott were co-sponsors. The officers were Ellen Martin, president; Glenda Klein, vice-president; Linda Birek, secretary; Sue Gonzales, treasurer; Ruth Wright, ways and means chairman; and Kathy O'Donnel program chairman.

Le Cercle Francais, Glenbard East's French Club strives to encourage the members to attain an interest in the people of France and their culture. At the monthly meetings, where the business and affairs were directed entirely in French, an atmosphere of the French civilization was present. At one of the meetings members of Le Cercle Francais planned that the club would invite the French students going to the Chiropractic school on Roosevelt Road to one of their future meetings to give a talk on France. The students came and gave an interesting talk about their lives in France. At another meeting, Miss Ebans, a student teacher at Glenbard from Wheaton College, gave a talk on current politics and happenings in France.

In order to raise money for the scholarship fund, the club sponsored a number of activities; among these was the Foreign Language Christmas Party. Extra activities of the club this year included the annual dinner at a French restaurant, Maison Michel, in Chicago, where the members ordered in French.

Under the advice of Mrs. Ferguson the activities were organized by the officers: Barb Lowden, president; Ellen Gouldsberry, vice-president; Suzy Beavers, secretary; Tim Grassel, treasurer; and Maureen Cugier, publicity.

German Club visits "Old Town"

German Club President Dave Strother hands tickets to "The Diary of Anne Frank" over to members of both German Club and the varsity football team, Chuck Geigner, George Vanicek, and Neil Falconer.

Deutsche Verein Club, Glenbard East's German Club, is an organization designed to give its members educational and entertaining information of Germany and Germans. The club sponsored several large events in addition to its regular meetings.

In early fall, German Club sold tickets to its members at a reduced rate for the school play, "The Diary of Anne Frank." After the play, the organization sponsored a "coffee hour" for its members and their families.

Later, in November, members toured the "Old Town" section of Chicago. They left G.E. immediately after school, toured "Old Town" for two hours and then returned home. The author of the only guidebook on "Old Town" guided the club through this famous section of Chicago.

Just before Christmas vacation, the club visited the Chicago area again and attended a special program at the museum of Science and Industry. The program provided an authentic German meal and program.

Latin Club wins honors in contests

S.P.Q.R. was extremely active last year. Highlights of the many events that stimulated interest in Roman culture were Latin Week, Slave Day, the Saturnation Party, and the Roman Banquet.

During August, Latin Club sent seven delegates to the Junior Classical League Convention at the University of Southern California. In the various contests at the convention, Tim Michel took first place in Roman History and Life; Dan Bottom placed second in Grammar; Barbara Darcy took first in costumes, and Chris Johannsen placed first and second in two different swim meet events. Linda Darcy, Kathy Fenton, Bea Dropson, accompanied by Mike Gawel and Mrs. Halligan, club adviser, also attended the convention.

In October, Latin Club representatives attended the Northern Chapter Junior Classical League Convention at Pekin, Illinois. The students went to workshops for fund-raising, costumes, and banquets, and won honors in six of the twelve contests held there.

The annual candy sale, movies, and brownie sales enabled students to raise money for their trip to the summer convention. The rest of the money raised provided the scholarships for Latin students who planned to continue the study of Latin in college.

The officers were: Consuls, Cathy Blake and Dan Bottoms; Censor, Judy Marsden; Praetors, Kathy Fenton and Chris Johannson; Aediles, Patti Baker and Keith Miller; and Questors, Barbara Darcy and Jim Brandenmuhl.

F.T.A. sponsors Student Teacher day

President Mary Gaddis, and Barb Anderson, conduct an F.T.A. meeting prior to the Student-Teacher Day which FTA sponsored.

Future Teachers of America, dedicated to help members learn about the teaching profession, is one of Glenbard East's newest organizations. The William E. Rider Chapter of the FTA formed in the spring of 1965.

The club sponsored various activities to acquaint the members with actual teaching. They sponsored a Student-Teacher Day in November. Any student who had maintained at least a "B" average in the course and received permission from the instructor of the course, could teach a class. The club also participated in Cadet Teaching. Members observed classes at local grade schools and then were able to teach one or more classes.

The FTA also strove to acquaint its members with special education. A large project of FTA was the learning of braille and translating texts into braille for local schools. The organization showed a movie at GE to help pay for this project. Following its interest in special education, three members, Sue Benjamin, Sharon Schroeder, and Pat McDonald, attended a special education workshop at York High School sponsored by the teachers in this district. The workshop contained lecturers, guest speakers, films, and a hootenanny, all of which featured the subject of physical and mental retardation. On the second day of the workshop, the delegates visited various special education departments of different schools in this area. Later, on December 13, three teachers from local schools spoke about the mentally retarded at a general meeting.

Officers of FTA were Mary Gaddis, president; Shirley Fritz, vice-president; Barb Anderson, secretary; and John Hughes, treasurer. Mr. Lindsey was faculty adviser.

Caduceus officers are: Ruth Schneider, Pamela Zahn, Diane Krystosek, Diana Mackal, Pat Vodden.

Caduceus promotes medical careers

Caduceus membership was open to any student interested in a medical career. The club is composed mostly of girls anticipating a vocation in medicine as either nurses or technicians.

The organization's main concern was to acquaint themselves with the many aspects of professional medicine. During their twelve meetings they had guest speakers who talked on subjects pertaining to interests of the club. Films were also shown at several of the meetings.

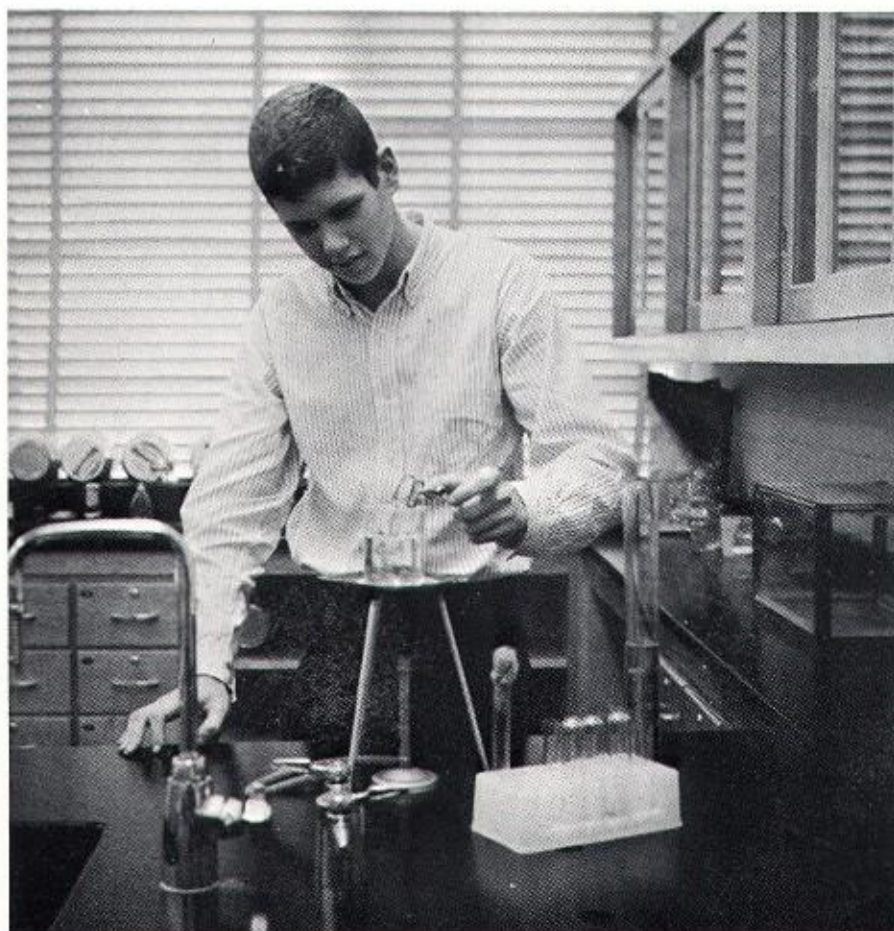

With financial aid from the DuPage County Medical Society, Caduceus was able to plan field trips to such places as the DuPage County Convalescent Home.

One of the most important projects was to prepare a portable file of pamphlets on all medical careers which was kept in Mrs. Rogers' office. Members were free to come and read the material concerning their interest.

This year, the club elected Ruth Schnieder as president, Pat Vodden as vice-president, Diane Krystosek as secretary, and Diana Makal as treasurer. There were also two members who were appointed to do special jobs. Diana Moeller represented Caduceus in Inter-Club and Pamela Zahn worked as Publicity Chairman. These girls helped Mrs. Rogers to organize a club which was beneficial to all its members.

Students at Glenbard East who demonstrated a special interest in any field of science such as electronics, biochemistry, or engineering could participate in Science Club. Students who were enrolled in various science courses such as biology, physics, and chemistry, as well as students who had an interest in science but were not taking a science could join Science Club.

The purpose of Science Club was to explore specific areas of science that especially interested the members. It provided its members with reading material and visual aids that they could obtain and use in the classroom. Mr. Paskaski, the club adviser, urged members to study in the field which interested them most. This way students were able to gain more knowledge in a specific field than they learned in the classroom and expanded each other's knowledge by discussing their fields of interest.

Science Club members took field trips to Argonne National Laboratory, the Chicago Crime Laboratory, and to the Yerkes Observatory. At one of their meetings Mr. George Maier, leading authority on aquariums, lectured.

This year's officers of Science Club were President, Sue Kuhn; vice-president, Joe Krenzal; secretary-treasurer, Carol Kuhn; Publicity chairman, Steve Spoden; and program chairman, Ken Conrad.

Members of Anglers Club were primarily interested in practicing and developing proficiency in fishing. Under the supervision of Mr. Paslaski, they presented a varied program this year for all students who were interested in this sport. The summer, as well as the school year, gave the Anglers many opportunities to learn and practice various techniques.

Last summer, on a ten-day fishing trip, they traveled to Red Lake, Ontario, one-thousand miles from Lombard. Staying at a resort, they fished for six full days.

During autumn and spring the club is mainly concerned with fishing trips. These are arranged and supervised by Mr. Paslaski; the president, Al Dutshall; and the vice-president, John Konrath.

At the monthly meetings during the winter, the club gathered informally to learn about such things as fly tying, making artificial bait, and the art of taxidermy.

For entertainment, the club showed travel movies on fishing and held bait-casting contests.

One of the unique things about Anglers is that any boy is welcome to join the club on their trips and attend the meetings.

Radio Club operates station W9DLQ

Mr. Fawkes, faculty adviser, and Bob Adams, president, lead a discussion in a meeting of Radio Club.

Radio Club is the organization at Glenbard East which explores the world of communication through ham radio.

At the club's bi-weekly meetings, which were held in a room in the school's tower, the members practiced the techniques necessary for their ham radio operator's license, their ultimate goal. The newer members of the club, who had not yet learned the method of sending a message over the ham radio at a steady pace, were assisted by the more experienced members and the club faculty adviser, Mr. Fawkes.

The ham radio which the club built and operated, broadcast on station W9DLQ.

The biggest day of the year was a field day when the Radio Club took all of their portable equipment outside and tried to contact as many amateur radio stations as possible. They contacted around 250 stations from all states east of the Rockies and a few west of them.

During the year the club took a course at Wheaton College for approximately fifteen weeks which helped them earn a license. In the last weeks of November the club organized a fund raising drive, the selling of Teflon coated ironing board covers to make ninety dollars to buy a receiver.

Along with the help of Mr. Fawkes the club is led by the officers: Bob Adams, president; Phil Walder, vice-president; Laurie Willer, secretary; and Rick Scott, treasurer.

Auto Tech Club sponsors safety check

This was Auto Tech Club's third year at Glenbard East. Formed in 1962 by a group of boys who enjoyed spending extra time in the field of mechanics, this club enabled the boys interested in auto mechanics, or mechanics in general, to gain more knowledge than classroom time allowed. A person wishing to join, however, was not required to have taken automotive mechanics.

Club activities consisted more of field trips and lectures on different phases of mechanics than of actual work with machinery. Guest speakers were invited to the bi-monthly meetings in order to keep the members well informed on the background and progress being made in areas of mechanics. In the past years Auto Tech Club, under the supervision of Mr. Marlow and with the cooperation of various car dealers in the area, has held an annual auto show. This year the club sponsored an Auto Safety Check in conjunction with the Lombard Junior Women's Association.

The officers during the past year were: President, Mike Moss; Vice-President, Bob Coughlin; Treasurer, Tom Voskuil; and Secretary, Tom Bye.

Monitors supervise hall activity

Checking a student's hall pass is just one of Kathy Stephenson's duties as monitor.

Student Monitors was the largest organization at Glenbard East. Over one hundred student monitors manned various posts throughout the school during the seven periods. Members of the organization were volunteers who gave up their study halls for a monitor post.

The main duty of the monitors was to control the hallways while classes were held. Monitors asked each student in the halls for a hall pass. If the student did not have a pass or if the pass was unauthorized, he was sent to Mr. Hutt for disciplinary measures.

Another duty was to act as guides for any visitor to Glenbard East. Monitors courteously offered assistance to visitors and escorted them to the main office.

Mr. Hutt, supervisor of the monitors and Dean of Boys, required student monitors to be at their posts before the period began and to remain at their posts during the period.

Because of their courteous effective manner, monitors favorably influenced other students to accept the rules and privileges at Glenbard East.

Steve May, who is a Campus Council member, checks over the campus by the southern end of the building during his regular tour of duty.

Campus Council is an organization in which students help enforce disciplinary rules. Under the guidance of Mr. Hutt, Dean of Boys, the members helped maintain an orderly student body.

Two important duties of members were to check the washrooms for students who might be smoking, and to check the student parking lot for cars parked without parking permits. They were then to report any violators of these rules to Mr. Hutt. Campus Council members also rendered assistance to visitors at Glenbard East. By treating the students with respect and tact, Campus Council competently managed students and gained respect from the student body.

Chairman this year was Ray Novak, to whom all members were responsible. The members referred to Mr. Hutt for assistance with special problems caused by students or that developed within the council itself.

While setting the best example possible by displaying proper attitudes toward school citizenship and respect, Campus Council helped develop good student attitude and respect for the necessary rules.

Ram's choir sings to Lions

Various members of the GE chorus vocalize during a chorus rehearsal.

Glenbard East chorus, both the senior and the sophomore-freshman choirs, were active during the school year. Aside from performing a full schedule of concerts, the chorus worked on various projects to implement their scholarship fund.

The major number of concerts were performed during Christmas time. Part of the choir sang at a program held at Lombard's Community House, for the Lombard Lions Club. The choirs also performed at school during the Candlelight Service, sponsored by Glen-Teens, and the Christmas Convocation.

In March, the chorus presented a concert for the Lombard Woman's Service League. This concert which was well received, featured a wide variety of music.

In June, as all the school's activities drew to an end, the chorus attended an awards banquet, at which a deserving senior member received a scholarship.

Mr. Donald Volz directed the chorus. Elected officers were Linda Gerardi, president; Karen Johnson, vice-president; and Barb Bullard, secretary.

Orchestra participates in "Music Man"

Bill Wallace and Terry Peyton play their violins at an orchestra session.

This past year the nationally known Glenbard East Concert Orchestra continued its fine tradition with its fall and spring concert and appearance in "The Music Man" and the Christmas program.

The fall concert featured East's Chamber Orchestra in works of Vaughan William, Benjamin Britten, Ernest Krenck. A concerto Grosso of Handel was also presented.

The spring concert featured the full orchestra presenting a Passacaglia by Stague. This performance was the second performance of this work within the United States and met with great audience approval. The performance of the first movement of J. Charles Ives second symphony and a rendition of the ever popular "Sound of Music" completed the contemporary portion of the program. The program ended with the first movement of Brahms first symphony, the Bruch violin concerto and a concerto for cello and orchestra by Bachianis.

In addition to these performances, the orchestra participated in the annual Glenbard East Christmas Program. Such numbers as "White Christmas," "Land of the Drum," and a collection of traditional carols were greatly appreciated by an audience which had just experienced a fine performance by the Glenbard East Concert Band and Mr. Volz' chorus. The orchestra also performed at several schools in the surrounding area. This along with the performance in the school musical, "Music Man," rounded out a full and successful year for the orchestra.

Band fills busy year with activity

Jeff Messenger, band drum major, portrays Aladdin in one of the football game's halftime ceremonies.

The Glenbard East Concert Band, under the direction of Mr. Crews, added enjoyment to the past school year.

During the football season, the marching band presented halftime shows at the varsity football games played at home.

In December the band played several selections at the Christmas Convo, and the band provided entertainment at varsity basketball games.

Along with their regular musical program, some members of the Concert Band prepared solos and ensembles. Many of those same people entered the State Solo and Ensemble contest, held at Zion-Benton High School on April 16.

April 29, the concert band performed their Annual Spring Formal Concert. Music at this program represented all styles and periods of band music.

When the drama department presented "The Music Man," a few members of the band were selected to provide the music.

Towards the end of the school year, the band marched in both the Lilac Parade and the Memorial Day Baccalaureate, making a total of 30 performances for this year.

The Intermediate Band, whose members worked to improve their skills, acted in conjunction with the Concert Band for many performances, and will soon become recognized as a performing group.

The two bands together had an elected president, Corky Kellan and an elected council. Concert Band representatives on the council were Jim Bartholomew, John Engman, John Larson, Mary McDaniel, Jeff Messenger, Debbie Rominger, and Mark Van Clay. The Intermediate Band's representatives were Susan Hess and Lee Weber.

Record number make all-conference team

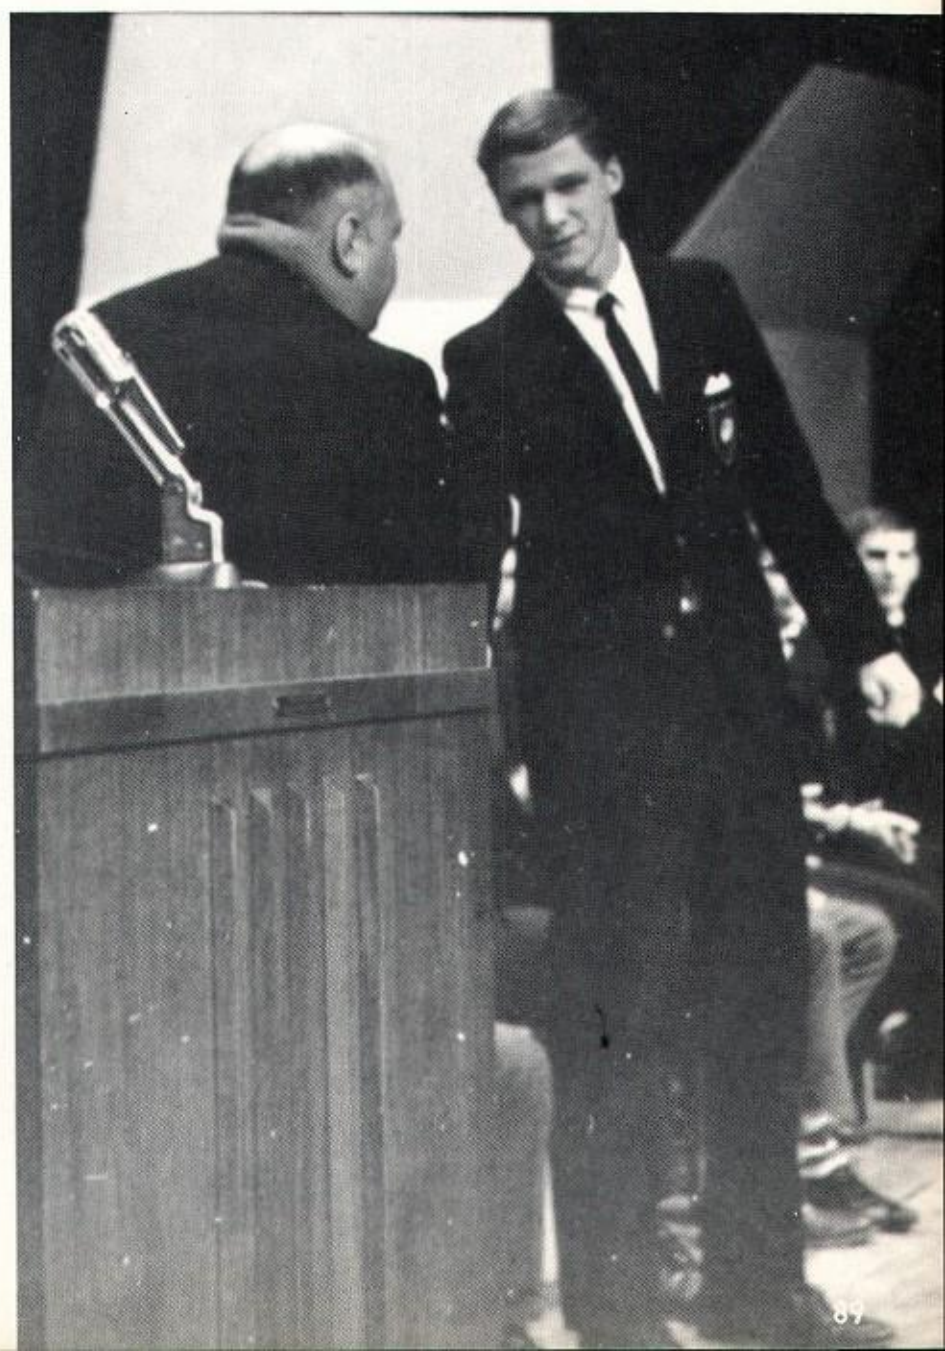

The Rams team starts play-action-pass during Dad's day come-from-behind-victory against Proviso West.

Neil Falconer (20), and Mike Hemmerich (53) show desire and team effort in the Homecoming clash against East Leyden by bringing down Leyden's runner.

Rick Chana, all-state varsity end, receives his award from head football coach, Mr. Lovin.

The Glenbard East Varsity Rams were greatly helped this year by returning lettermen George Vanicek, Tom West, Harry Bellock, and Ray Novak. The Rams linemen, who averaged 180 lbs., gave many pounds to opponents but made up for the loss in quickness and drive. This was a big factor in allowing the backs Scalzo, Novak, Wier, Vanicek and Falconer, to gain a combined total yardage of 2388, over a thousand yards more than all the opponents' yardage.

G.E.'s most valuable player and the conference scoring leader was Halfback Mike Scalzo. Scalzo finished the season scoring a total of 49 points. Another fine back for the Rams was George Vanicek, who not only did all the kicking for the Rams, but had a fine running average, almost 8 yards a carry.

The defense for the Rams proved to be the toughest defense in the conference, allowing only 52 points to be scored against them. An exceptional player for the Rams was Mike Hemmerich, who set a school record with 111 tackles. Other standouts on the defense included Karl Nilsen, Neil Falconer and Bob Pryor. George Vanicek led the pass defense with six pass interceptions.

The '65 Rams had a record number of all-conference players. Rick Chana, Ray Novak, John Wier, Mike Scalzo, George Vanicek, Tom West, John Vogt and Mike Hemmerich made the conference team. Honorable mentions went to Harry Bellock, Bob Pryor, Dick Gerlack, Mark Erickson and Neil Falconer. Rick Chana also made several of the all state teams.

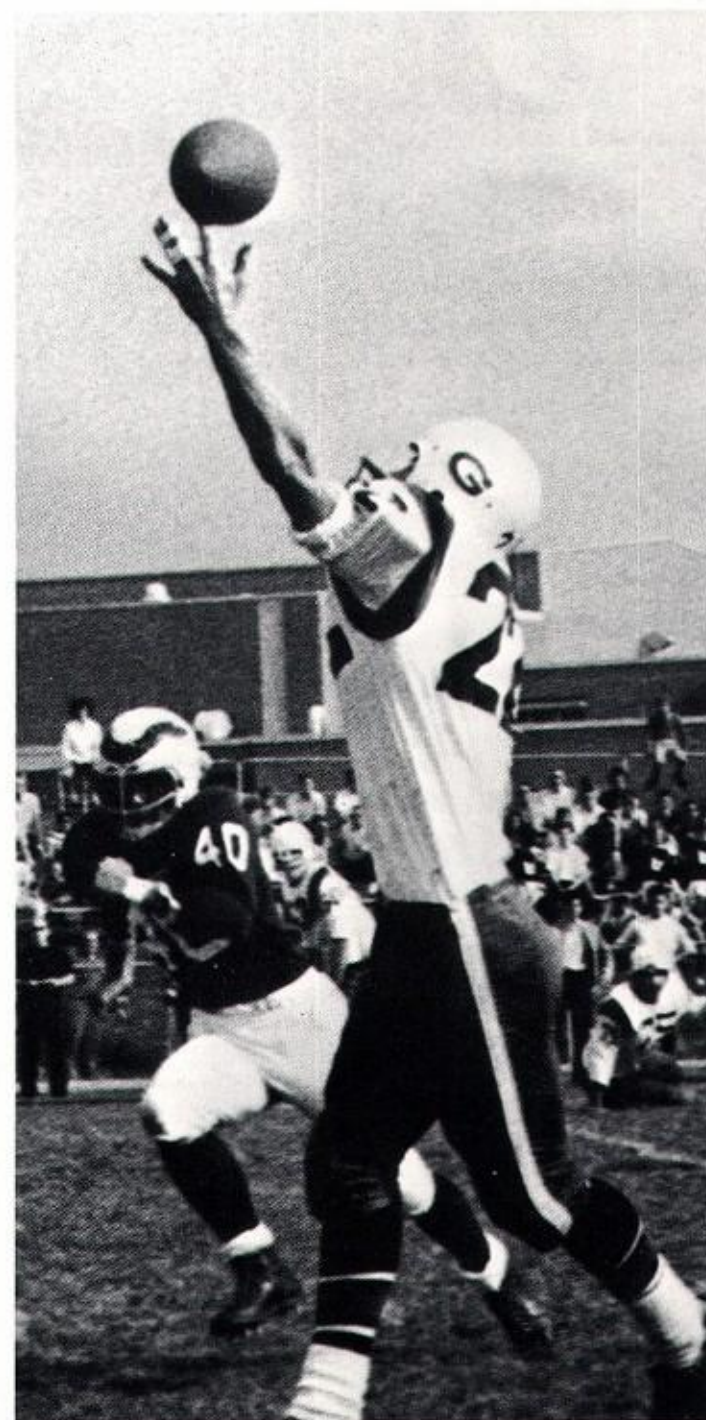

Ray Novak (10) runs for a 5 yard gain during the Proviso West game.

Varsity Rams take conference title

Under the direction of head football coach, Mr. Jim Lovin, the Varsity Rams fought to an undefeated season. This year was the first in the tough Des Plaines Valley Conference and the Rams showed that they were not to be dealt under. The Rams, finishing first in the Des Plaines conference with a record of 7-0-1, compiled the best record in G.E.'s football history.

The Rams began the season by crushing Immaculate Conception, 21 to 7. A week later the Rams faced a heavily favored Morton West team, who were the defending conference champs. Going into the locker room at halftime the Rams enjoyed a 7-0 lead. However at the start of the second half, the fired-up Morton team scored a quick touchdown and conversion, tying the game at 7-7. From then on it was a game of ball control with both teams eating up the clock. With less than three minutes left in the final period of play, the Rams started a drive from behind their own 20 yard line. Combined with halfback Mike Scalzo's quick drives and quarterback Ray Novak's sharp passing, the ball was brought to the Morton 4 yard line where the Rams finally stopped. The battle ended in a 7-7 tie.

The next two games against St. George and Downers Grove South were easy victories for the Rams.

The Homecoming game against East Leyden marked the first time in three years that Glenbard has won its Homecoming game.

The game that really decided the conference lead was against Willowbrook. The Rams won the hard fought defensive battle, 14-13. The last two games of the season brought defeat to both Proviso West and West Lyden.

The Junior Varsity Rams, coached by Mr. Ron Hilt, showed both team spirit and ability in winning the Des Plaines Valley conference title. Their spirit and ability proved to be a perfect pair for the JV gridders who compiled a 5-2-1 record.

The Rams suffered a slow start by tying their first game and dropping their second but bounced back, beating St. George 47-0. Moving on to beat Willowbrook in a close game, 13-12, the juniors gained confidence and crushed all their other opponents. Proviso West, East Leyden, and West Leyden, were among the teams that fell to the Junior Rams.

In the Willowbrook game, with the Rams leading 6-0 at the half, the Warriors scored, tying the game 6-6. At the close of the 3rd quarter, Don Cummings, quarterback, broke loose and ran 48 yards for a touchdown. Sam Bass kicked the extra point putting the Rams ahead, 13-6. However in the final minutes of play Willowbrook scored another touchdown, attempt for the extra point failed again, giving the Rams the victory.

Adding to the excitement of the Junior's schedule, the Rams played East Leyden in the Homecoming game. With the Eagles in the lead by 1 point in the closing 15 seconds, Cummings passed to Jim Wallace halfback, who raced 20 yards into the end zone, clinching another win.

Outstanding players of the '65 season were Jim Wallace, Don Cummings, Greg Wilhite, Bob Krause, Jim Doiron, Tim Pederson, Harry Knudson, Bob Aseltine, Pete Oehler, Dave Strother and Sam Bass.

Sophomores boast 6-0 conference standing

Glenbard East's sophomore football team compiled an enviable record this year. The sophomore team captured the Des Plaines Valley conference title, posting a 6-0 conference standing and 7-1 over-all standing.

Coached by Mr. Grothe and Mr. Thompson, the team won their first game, against Immaculate Conception 27-0. The sophomore Rams also shut out the first conference opponent Morton West, 20-0.

The sophomores tasted defeat for the only time in a non-conference game against Elgin. Although the Rams played good ball, they came out on the short end of the score, 6-0.

Swinging back into conference play, the sophomores handily defeated the Downers Grove South eleven, 27-13. The next Saturday, Homecoming, the team started the festivities by beating East Leyden 33-0.

When the Rams met Willowbrook, the fur flew. Up to this game both GE and the Warriors were tied for first place. Neither team scored until the second quarter, when Art Malm caught a pass and went over the goal-line. The score remained 6-0 until the last quarter, when Kevin Hanson scored a touchdown. The last touchdown was tallied by Tom Sandberg who recovered a blocked punt. The gun went off with GE ahead 19-0.

The sophomores ended the year beating Proviso West, 20-6, and West Leyden, 19-6.

Kevin Hanson playing tailback position provided a consistent scoring threat, scoring a touchdown almost every game. Tom Corcoran, quarterback, provided a passing threat, keeping the offensive strategy well-balanced. Defensively, Hank Harrison won honors with 82 tackles. Art Malm was second with 46 tackles.

Frosh team enters conference competition

Glenbard East's freshman football teams, A and B, entered their first year of conference competition battling with seven other schools in the DesPlaines Valley Conference for the first place. The "B" team was most successful, ending the year with a 6-0 record and cinching first place honors in the DesPlaines Valley Conference.

Although the "A" team didn't place as well, they showed the fight and team spirit that is prevalent in Rams athletic teams.

The frosh beat their first conference opponents, Morton West, 12-6. However against Wheaton Central and Downers South, the "A" team suffered two defeats.

Snapping back from the two defeats, the "A" team beat East Leyden, 21-0. Willowbrook and Proviso West beat the freshman Rams in their next two games.

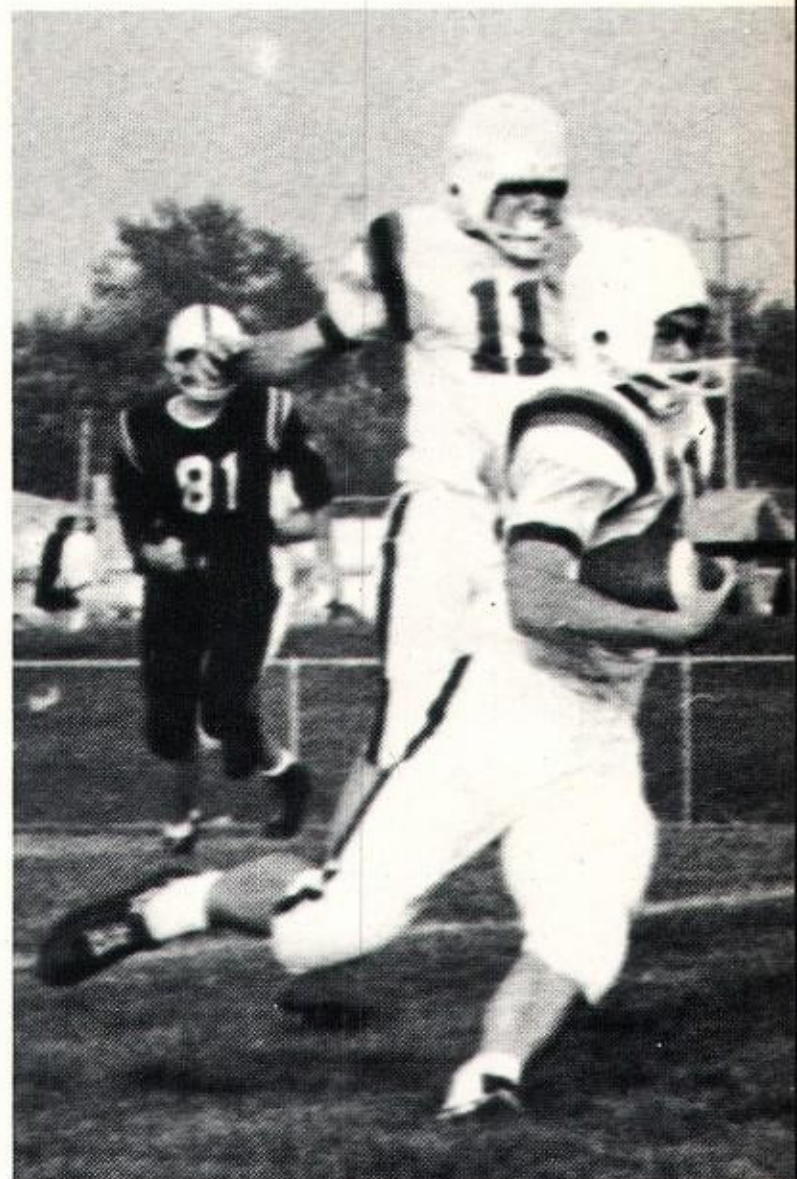

Spectators of the frosh's last game of the season saw the "A" team handily beat the West Leyden players 29-6.

Bob Gardner lengthens his stride as he nears the finish line in a conference meet.

After a slow start, this year's varsity cross-country team finished strong, ending the year rated as the third best team in the state. The outstanding quality of the team was its great determination to overcome all hardships. The Rams, won seven dual meets while losing only one.

According to Coach Dekan, this year's varsity squad was "the best cross-country team in the history of Glenbard East." Five members of the team ran 9:48 or better, which was the record for the home course established in 1964.

Ram harriers overwhelmed the competition at the seventeen-team Tinley Park Invitational, scoring a low of 27 points, compared to the 76 points the runner-up school scored. Glenbard placed second in the Des Plaines Valley conference to defending state champion Proviso West.

The Rams qualified for the State Meet by finishing second to York at the District Meet. Glenbard East scored 153 points down state, enabling the team to capture third place behind York and Rockford Guilford.

Seniors Ray Sherry and Dave Truesdell led the way for the bunny-chasers. Sherry, the team captain, set the Glenbard record by running a fine 9:41 on the home course. Truesdell, the Most Valuable Runner, ran a great race at District, placing second of 168 runners.

Ken Lykken, Bob Gardner, and Doug Lalla battled each other throughout the season. Lykken, in addition to winning the Downers South meet, finished third of 119 competitors at the Tinley Park Invitational. Gardner took first honors at Willowbrook, and set the Willowbrook course record of 9:43. Lalla came through in all the big meets. Providing the depth that is essential in cross-country were Bob Mott, Ron Sholand, and Leif Lindholm. These three boys contributed many valuable team points.

Varsity Harriers take third in state

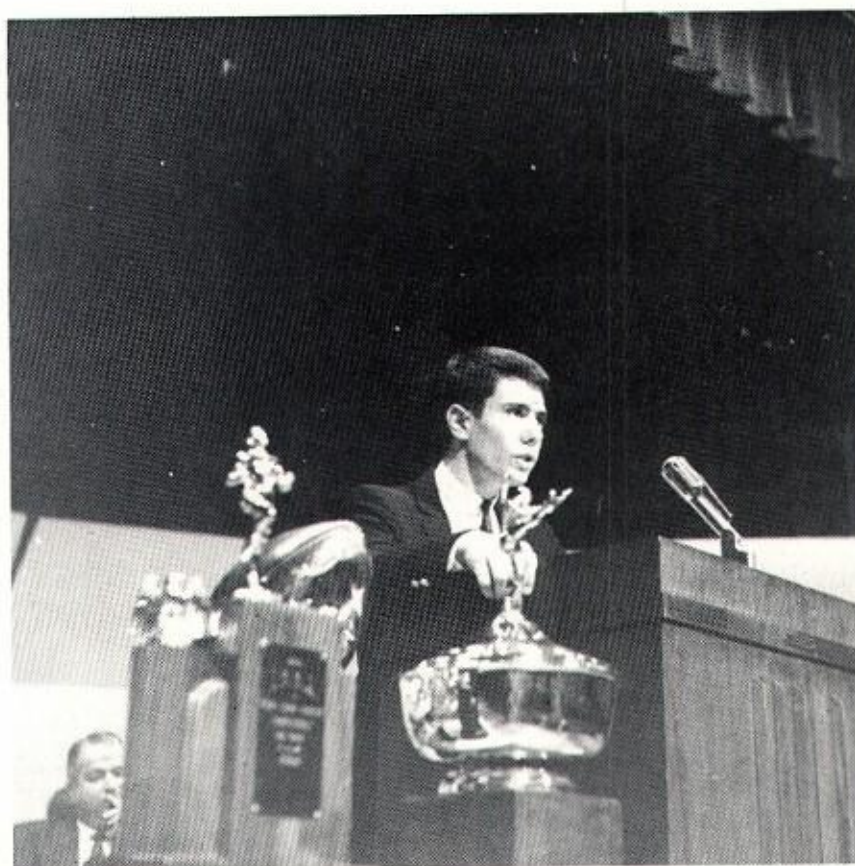

Glenbard East's sophomore cross-country team, under the guidance of Coach O'Brien finished the season with seven wins against only one defeat in dual meet competition. The sophomores were second in the conference to Downers South. Glenbard narrowly missed the chance to tie for the crown when Downers scored a very slim victory in the conference meet.

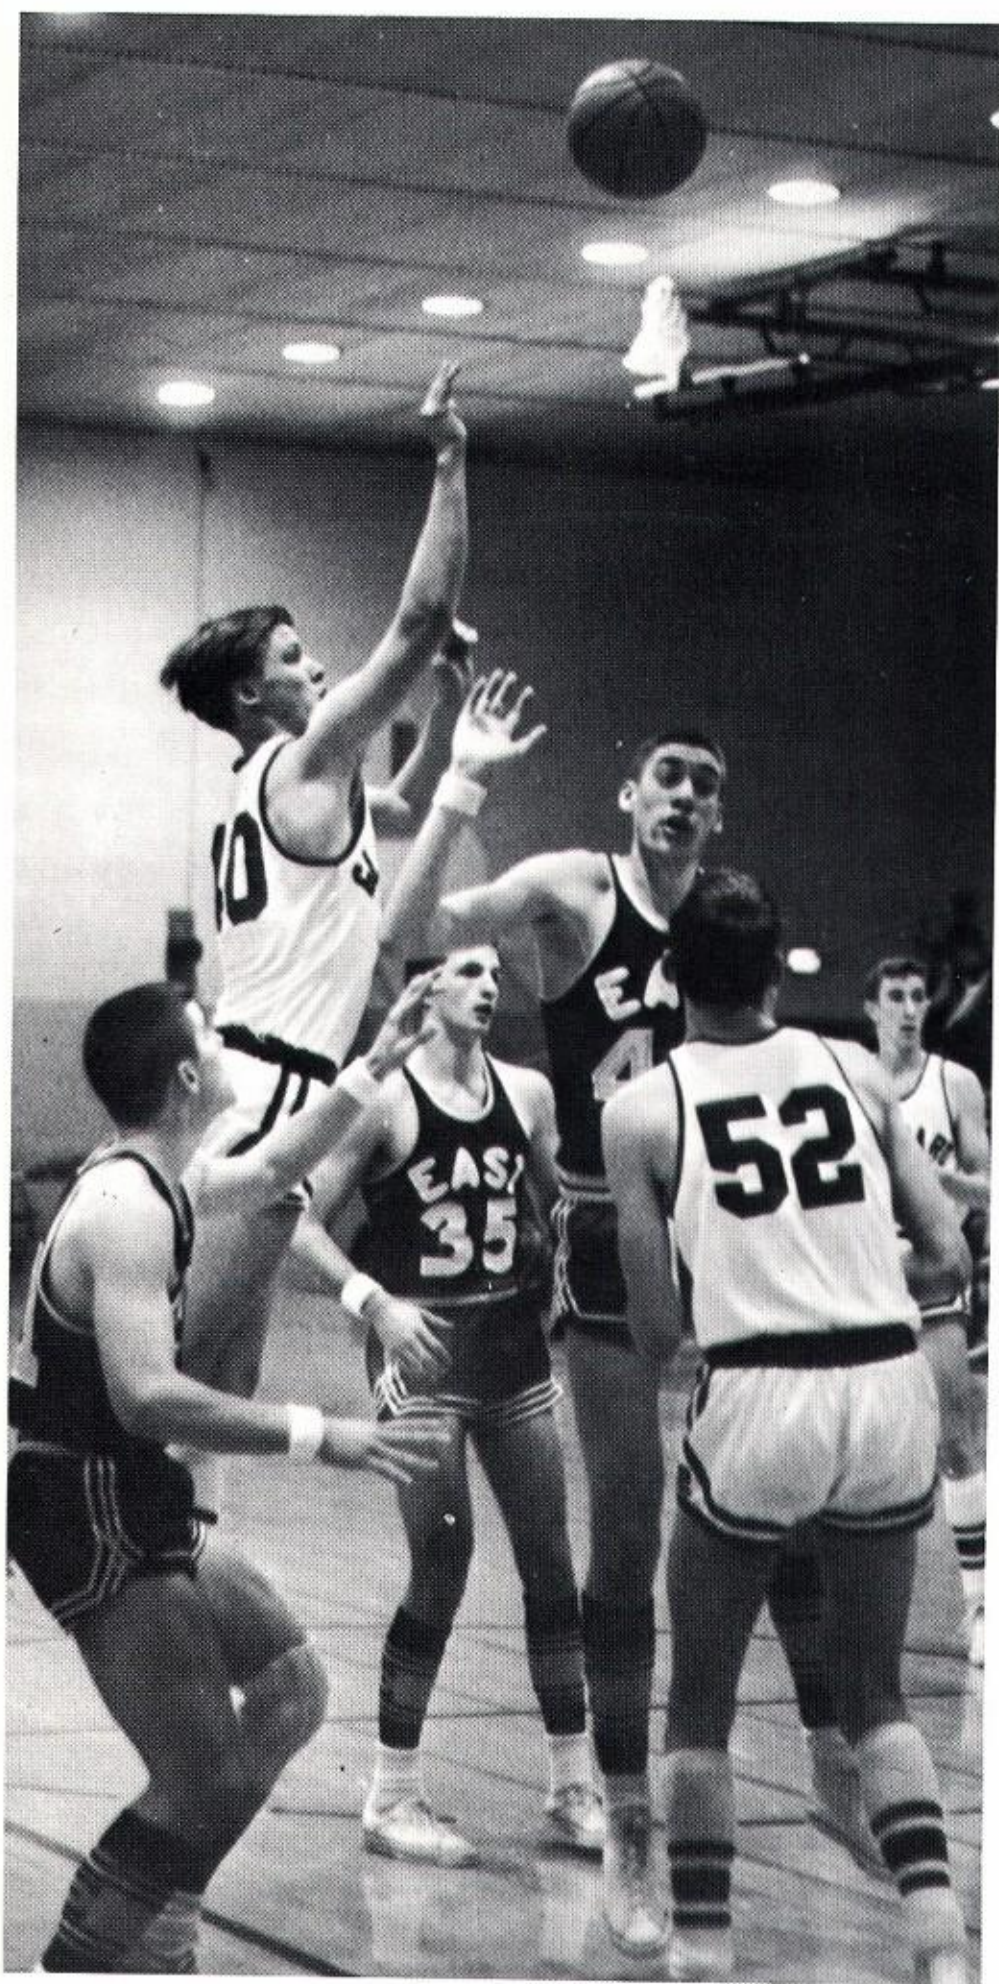

Leif Lindholm, Jim Teague, and Jim Jessen were the top men on the squad. Lindholm, the frosh-soph conference champion, and Teague tied for the Dick Brossard Memorial Award. This award is given annually to the outstanding sophomore runner. Other consistent runners were Tom Goble and Glen Bauer.

Despite their success in dual meets, the sophomores had their troubles in major meet competition. The team placed fourth at Tinley Park, although Lindholm and Jessen finished second and third, respectively, of 119 runners. The Rams took a distant fifth at the Proviso West Invitational, and fourth at the DuPage County Run.

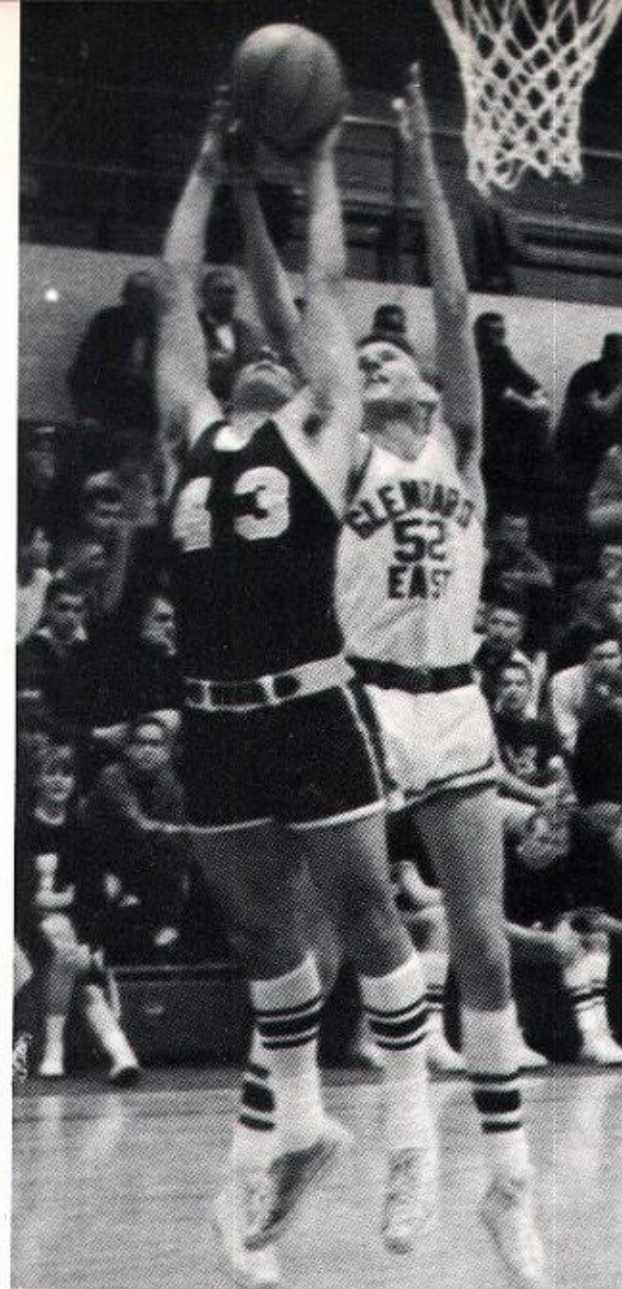

One of the highlights of the season for the squad was the triumph over previously undefeated Proviso West. Jim Teague placed the team in this meet, copping first place. The future appears bright for next year's team, as many good freshman runners will be back to head the squad.

Varsity Rams gain experience

Losing seven of their seventeen scheduled games, the varsity basketball team encountered especially strong competition in the Des Plaines Valley Conference. With their only varsity experienced player gone the Rams relied heavily upon juniors as well as the seniors.

Mr. Weber, head coach during Coach Stevenson's sabbatical leave, attempted to build a team for next year's competition and provide juniors varsity experience. Several games were lost by just two or three points, indicating that next year's Rams should be contenders.

Defeated in their first three contests, the Rams defeated West Leyden, 49-48, in a closely contested game. However, the Rams were defeated twice again before finally winning a second game.

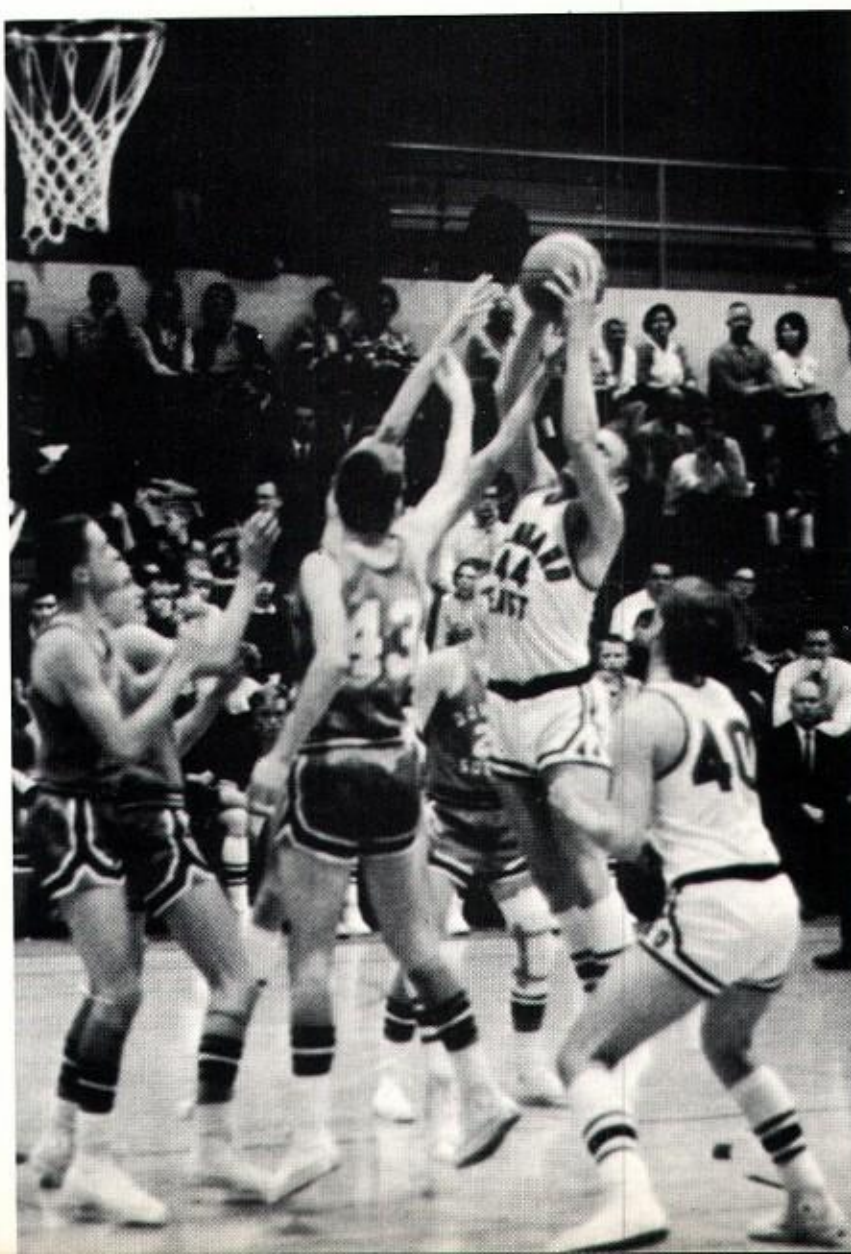

Losing the traditional game with Glenbard West, 73-62, the Rams surveyed the competition for the regional games.

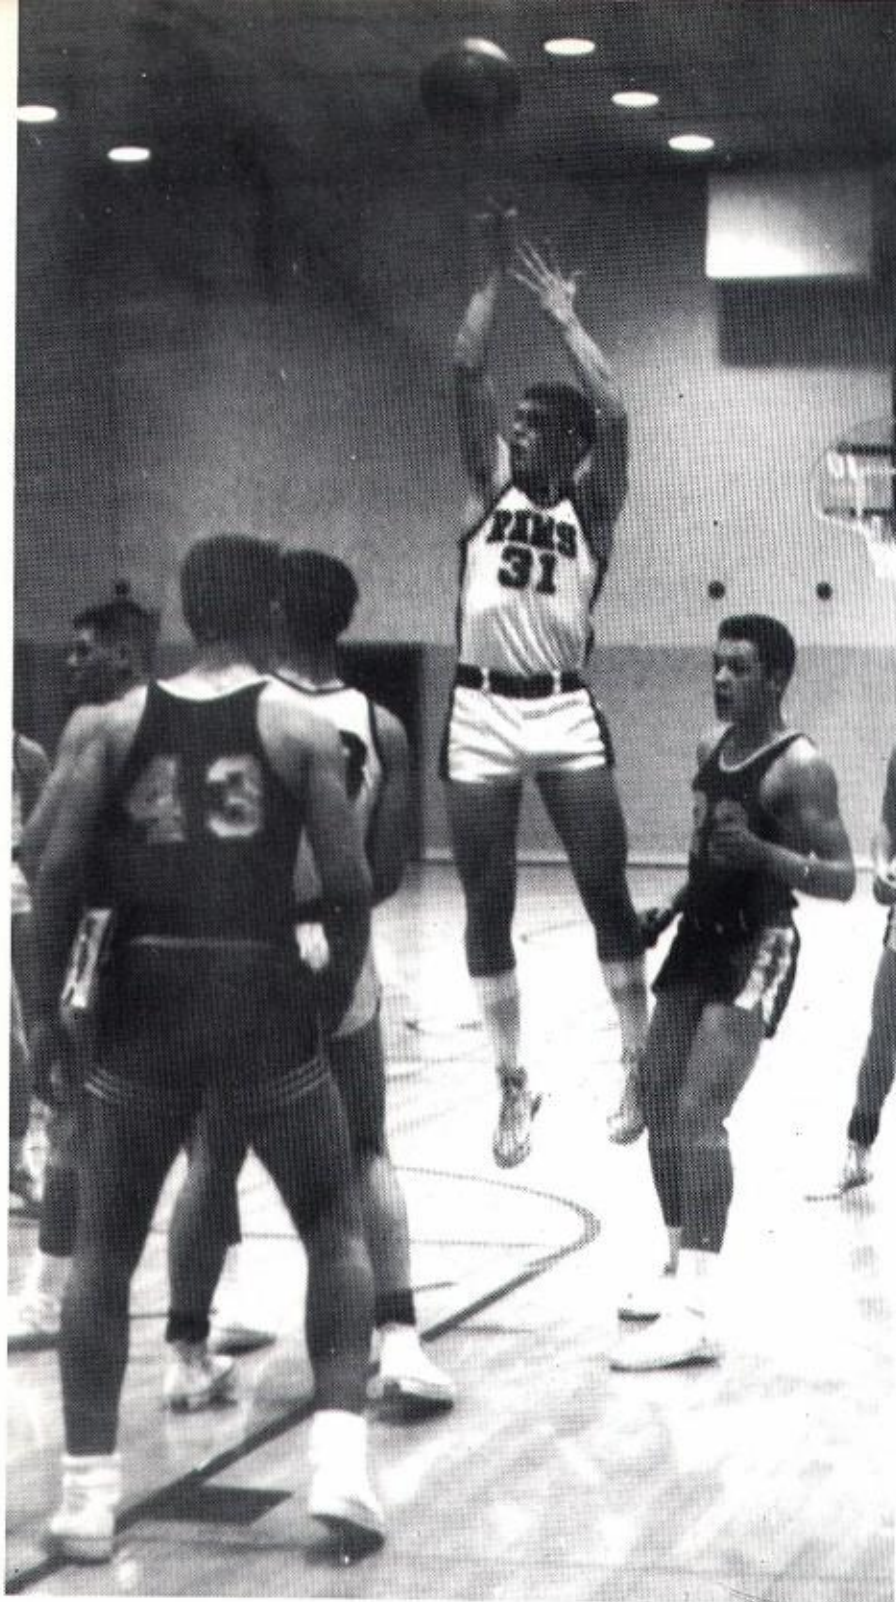

At the end of the season the Rams posted a 7-10 overall and 4-8 conference records, leaving the Rams in 4th place in the Des Plaines Valley Conference standings.

Individual honors were won by Jim Roberts, senior, and Randy Mateling, sophomore. Roberts, who played forward, won an all-conference berth and Mateling won Honorable Mention.

In Regional play, the Rams lost their game to Wheaton Central, which made the Sweet Sixteen ranks in state competition.

J. V Cagers face rough competition

Losing the majority of their last year's players to the varsity, the JV squad produced a disappointing 3-8 conference record. One brighter note was a 7-8 overall record, proving that the Des Plaines Valley Conference provides rough competition.

Dropping their first seven conference games to Proviso West, West Leyden, Willowbrook, and Morton West, the JV's finally won their eighth game against Naperville, a non-conference team.

The JV also beat their next six opponents, the bulk of which were non-conference opponents. Unfortunately, the Rams began clicking during these non-conference games, resulting in a poor conference standing.

Snapping the JV's winning streak, East Leyden defeated the Rams 53-46 in the last game of the season. Players that added to GE's defensive and offensive attack were Skip Caldwell, Paul Lindsey, and Joe Obucina.

Sophomores take second in conference basketball

Posting an enviable 11-4 overall win-loss record and a 7-2 conference record, Coach Zigman's sophomore basketball team ended the season with a second place standing in the Des Plaines Valley conference.

GE's sophomore team beat their first opponent, Wheaton North, 53-30; but lost their second game against a conference contender Proviso West, 40-29.

Beating West Leyden 73-43, Rich Central 64-40, East Leyden 59-45, and Hinsdale South 69-62, the sophs lost to Hinsdale South in a second game, 53-52.

However, the Rams popped right back after the defeat and beat Downers Grove South 72-20, East Leyden 98-50, and West Leyden 59-45, before losing to neighboring Willowbrook 65-40.

Finishing up the season the soph cagers defeated Morton West 58-49, Willowbrook 57-37, and Lake Park 56-35, before dropping the last game to rival Glenbard West team 49-42.

Both freshman teams, A and B, turned in excellent records of 13-2 and 15-0, respectively. In conference competition both the A and B squads won all of their scheduled games.

Starting the season off the A team defeated its first opponents Proviso West and West Leyden, before losing to Hinsdale South and Wheaton Central.

The frosh A squad later defeated East Leyden, Downers South, West Leyden, Willowbrook, and Morton West, and lost to Glenbard West and Wheaton Central.

The B squad defeated all of its opponents and never was seriously threatened. In their first game, against Proviso West, the frosh team ran away with the score, triumphing 71-21. Although in most of the following games the B team did not enjoy such a wide point spread, the B squad's score in each game dwarfed the opponent's score with plenty of comfortable margin.

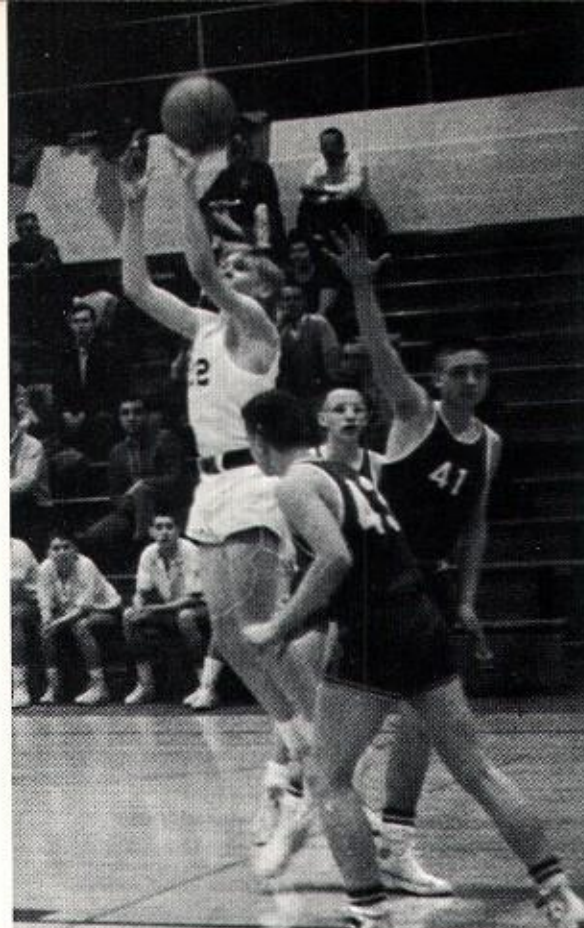

Both teams finished first in conference standings and turned in the best performance of any of the G.E. basketball teams.

Turning in an excellent 13-1 record, Glenbard East's varsity gymnastic team finished the year in second place, following Willowbrook, which was the only team to defeat the Rams.

Glenbard East started the season against their sister-school, Glenbard West. Following this victory, the Rams continued to defeat their opponents until the last meet, which was against Willowbrook.

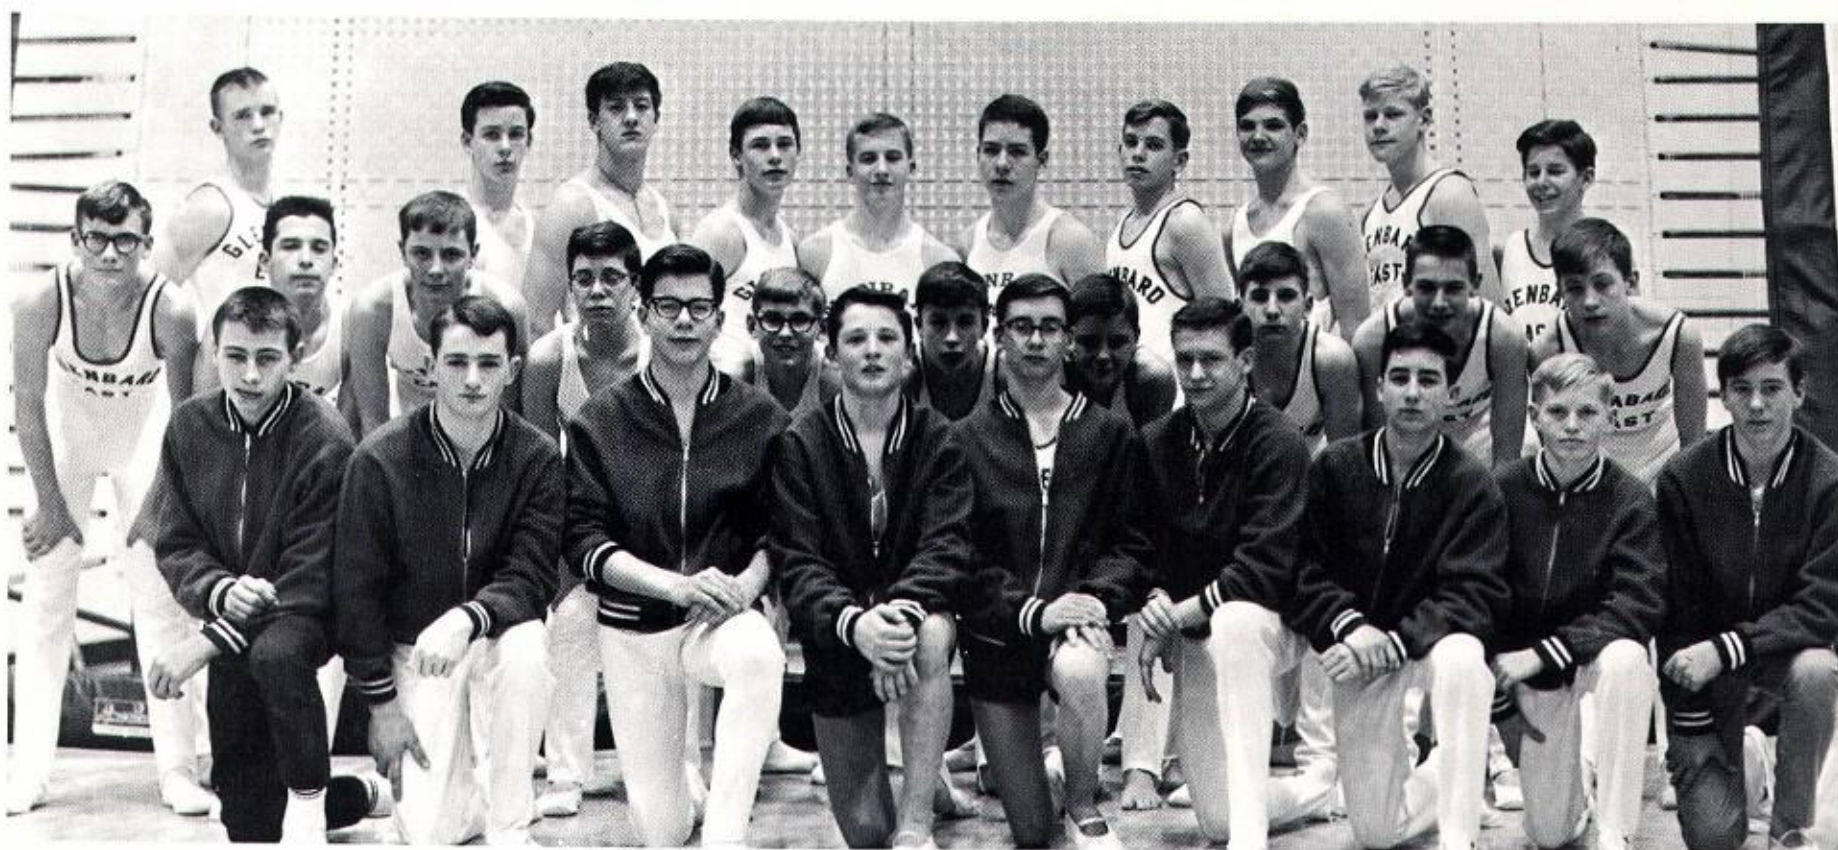

Running into rough competition against York High School, the gymnasts won by a scant one-point margin, 66.5 to 65.5. This match was evenly balanced in the individual abilities of the two teams and not until the last event, tumbling, did the Rams finally pull ahead and win.

Willowbrook, conference champs, defeated GE's team by three points and served as a constant blockade to Glenbard East's plans in the district meet.

In state competition, GE ranked 10th in standings. Individual gymnasts who produced excellent performances were: Chips Lidicker, 5th in Horizontal Bar; Marty Olson, 6th in Rings; Ray Carnahan, 10th in Rings; and Ross Bauer, 8th in Tumbling.

Junior Marty Olson attempts the olympic cross in Willowbrook meet with form that earned him number six spot on the rings in the State Meet.

Frosh-Soph gains needed experience

GE's Frosh-Soph gymnasts recorded a 7-8 overall record, learning the various routines and stunts that are required of gymnasts. Although the season was average in the record book, the gymnasts entered each meet with admirable determination and spirit.

Winning their first meet 70-62, GE competed against Barrington in a dual meet. However, the team lost the next matches against Maine South, Rich Central, Willowbrook, and Glenbard West.

During the rest of the season GE was defeated only four times, by Thornton, Hinsdale, Proviso West and York. The Rams defeated Willowbrook, Hinsdale South, West Leyden and East Leyden in dual meets.

Varsity racks up impressive record

Dave Inglis exhibits form which allowed him to set the new school record for shot-put.

In the 1965 outdoor season, the Varsity track team had a successful year. Many previous records were broken in both the track and field events. The Rams gained a great deal of experience that will be valuable in the coming year as nine of the twelve top scoring members were juniors.

Top scorer was John Engman with 72.62 points. Juniors also held second place with 68.5 points compiled by Brian Johnston. Dave Truesdell, class of '66, was in fourth place with 64.38 points. There was a tie for fifth place, 42.5 points, between junior Ray Sherry and senior Craig Parker. George Vanicek, (32 points), Rick Chana (28.7 points), Bruce Myer (27.5 points), Neil Falconer (32.2 points), and Doug Lala (23 points), complete the top junior scorers. Among high-scoring seniors were third place Dave Inglis (65 points), Craig Parker (42.5 points), and Neil Scheben (27.5 points).

One of the highlights of the season was when Brian Johnston broke the records for the 880 and the 440 runs, running them in one minute, 55 seconds, and 50 seconds respectively. Ray Sherry provided another highlight when he ran the mile in four minutes, 32.6 seconds, and the team of Dave Truesdell, Ray Sherry, Doug Lalla, and Brian Johnston ran the two mile relay in eight minutes, 4.6 seconds.

Important record-breakers in field events occurred when Rick Chana broke previous records with a high jump of six feet, one inch. Dave Inglis put the shot 54 feet three inches, and Dick Gerlach threw the discus 151 feet, seven inches.

Glenbard East did well in conference competition, coming in first in a triple meet with Wheaton and Naperville, and coming in second in a triple meet with York and La-Grange. The Rams finished first in the Glenbard East relays with 93 points, and second in the Upstate Eight Conference.

Sophomores take first in conference meet

Glenbard East's sophomore track team had a very good season last spring. Winning five of their meets, they also took first place in the Upstate Eight Conference meet. The freshmen, through lack of experience, did not fare as well.

High scorer on the sophomore team was John Banez (132.25 points). Jim Soderstrom (76.75 points) and Chuck Kress (71.74 points), both of the sophomore team, occupied second and third place. A freshman, Jim Jessen (71.25 points) was fourth on frosh-soph point totals.

Nineteen of the twenty-eight sophomore members received their letters and seventeen freshmen received numerals.

Members completing the sophomore team were Tom Hoffrage, Jim Doiron, Tom Burgess, Scott Douglas, Ken Lykken, Steve Collings, Dale Meyer, Brent Dumper, Jim Bartholomew, Bob Watson, Paul Luczak, Darcy Gray, Terry Peyton, Mike Bercos, John Hughes, Dennis Church, Rich Beckwith, and manager Tom Adamek.

Freshmen who competed on both the frosh and soph levels were Leif Lindholm, Jim Jessen, Jim Teague, Terry Wrobel, Kevin Hanson, Larry Bixler, and Don Asay.

Varsity experiences good year

The Glenbard East Varsity baseball team posted an impressive 10-6-1 overall record for 1965 and left the tough Upstate Eight Conference with an 8-4 conference record, as co-champs with Elgin Central.

In non-conference activity, the Rams downed Downers Grove 5-3, lost the Willowbrook contest 8-7, and played a tough West Chicago team into a 0-0 deadlock.

Led by coach Don Andersen, the Rams swept both games from Dekalb, and co-champs Elgin, as the Glenbard East Varsity ended the season.

The Rams entered the State Tournament with high hopes. After edging Wheaton 1-0; however, the Ram Varsity was eliminated by arch rivals, Glenbard West in a heartbreaking 6-5 decision. This game ended a highly successful season, the best in Glenbard East history.

Both juniors and seniors played on the Varsity Squad during the year. Excellent pitching by Corky Parvin and Ken Parker and hitting by senior Harry Oehler and junior Ray Novak was responsible for the great record.

Starting the season by beating Willowbrook 2-1, the sophomores rarely ran into trouble. Their only defeats of the season were served by Elgin Larkin, Elgin Central, West Leyden, and Aurora East.

Willowbrook, Wheaton North, Naperville, Aurora East, Larkin, Dekalb, Wheaton, and Elgin fell to the Ram's players.

An efficient pitching crew and excellent defensive and offensive players provided Coach Zigman with the necessary talent for a good team.

Frosh gain successful season.

Winning seven of their twelve games, the frosh baseball team completed a fairly successful season.

During the first half of the season, the Ram's future did not look too bright. The frosh team, beating only two teams lost, four games to West Chicago, Wheaton North, St. Charles, and Wheeling.

However the second half of the season proved to be much better. Losing only one of the games to West Leyden, the Rams beat Fenton, West Chicago, Glenbard West, Wheaton North, and Naperville.

Pat Fuller exhibits good form as he returns a volley, during varsity tennis practice.

Glenbard East's 1965 Varsity tennis team suffered a disappointing season finishing eighth in the Upstate Eight conference with a record of one win and fourteen defeats.

High scorer in singles matches on Coach Thompson's squad in conference play was Jack Thompson with a 2-2 record. Following were John Reidel and Pat Fuller with 1-2 and 1-3 record respectively. In doubles competition the team of Jack Thompson and Pat Fuller recorded an excellent score of 2-0, the best score registered by any doubles team or individual on the team.

What the coming season will hold only time will tell, but the faces will essentially be the same with some members of the Frosh-Soph team joining the returning lettermen.

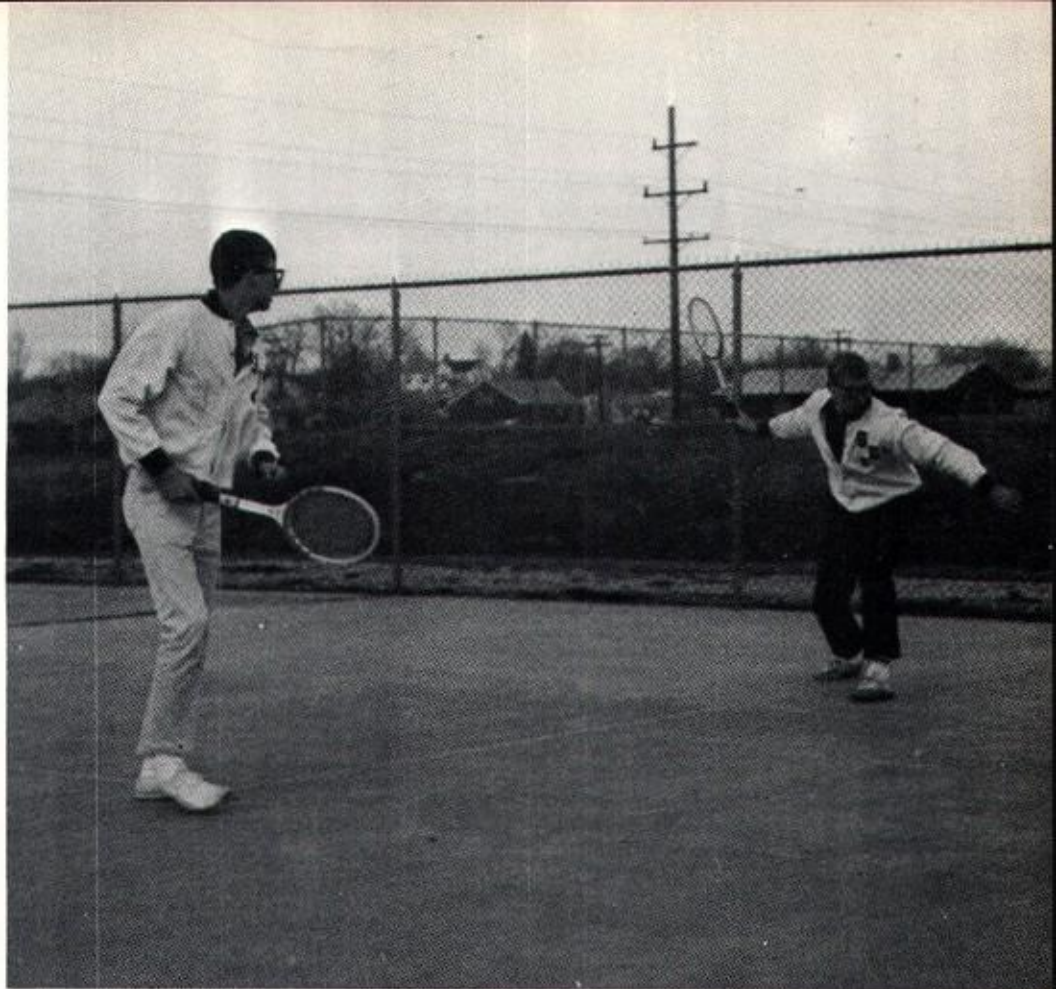

Returning sophomores Jan Heckman and Fred Toft led the 1965 Frosh-Soph Tennis team to an overall conference record of 8-7.

Under the coaching of Mr. Peistrup, the team took fourth in conference competition and in the conference meet.

During the conference playoffs, freshman Mark Smith made a startling victory over his opponents, pocketing first place in East's third singles position. Also returning from the '64 season was Sophomore Bruce McClure, who, with Fred Toft, composed Glenbard East's first doubles position for the conference meet, where they secured a second place ribbon.

The remainder of the Glenbard East tennis team included sophomores Tom Toft, Joe Martinez, Bob Schroeder, Paul Manoff and David Vail and Freshmen Wayne Moerke, Dennis McClure, Rich Scheiblaue, Dave Robinson, Mike Schrader, Kevin Acker, Keith Acker, Frank Neff, John Keeley and David Bird.

With such a promising record, hopes for good varsity and frosh-soph teams next year are high. Nine members of the frosh-soph team will be returning to play on varsity level. Coming back for frosh-soph team will be returning to play on varsity level. Coming back for frosh-soph competition will be eleven experienced middle classmen. With the addition of any new members, both teams appear to be approaching an even better year than the last.

Varsity golf team participates in Aurora meet

Glenbard East's Varsity Golf Team finished with a tie for seventh place in conference competition and seventh in the conference meet, held at Aurora.

Under the guiding hand of Coach George Dekan, East's Varsity Golf squad won three of the first four matches. With this tremendous beginning, hopes for a good year grew, but, as the season progressed, it became apparent that this was their growing year.

Hew Hopkins and Tom Johnston the two leading golfers on the varsity team, were voted the most valuable players of the 1965 season. The Rams did lack experience since Rex Miller, team captain, was the only returning letterman.

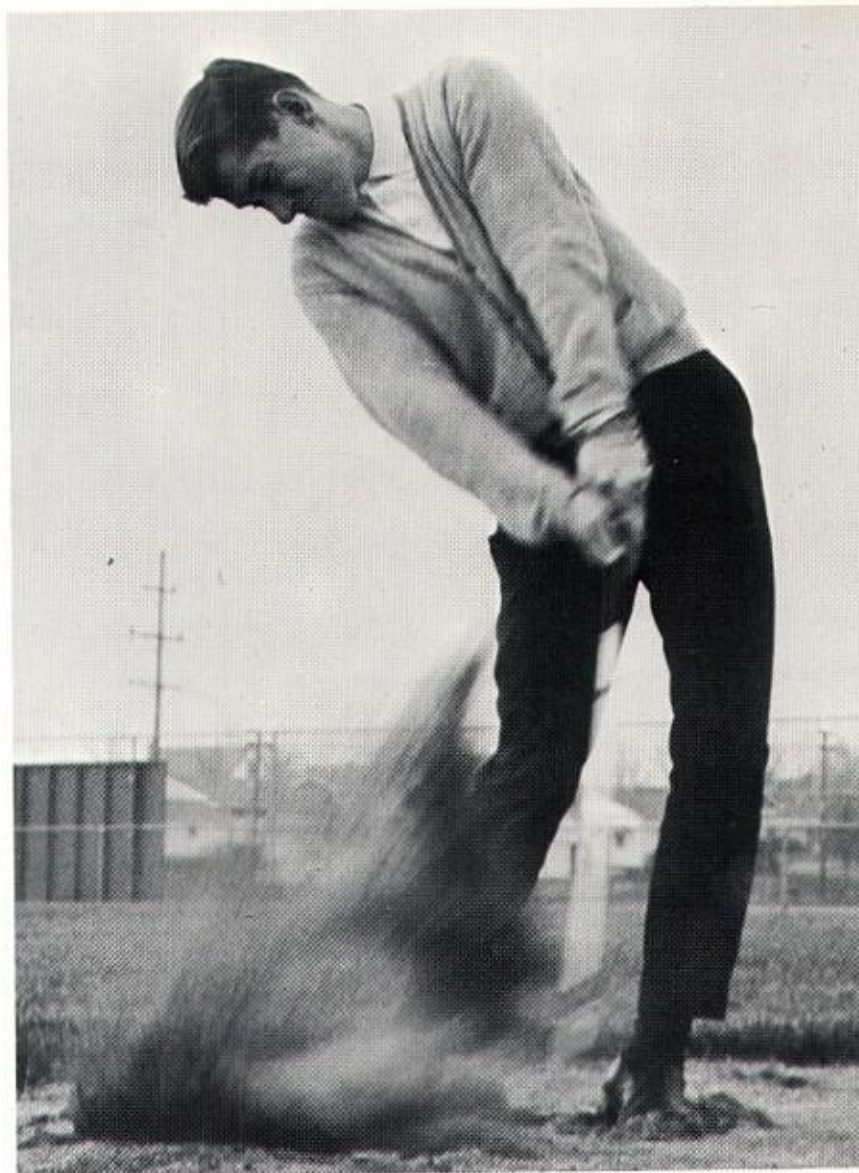

Glenbard East's Varsity Golf team lettermen with their overall averages for nine holes were Hew Hopkins, 42.18; Tom Johnston, 44.1; Rex Miller, 44.3; Jim Goetz, Bob Heller, and John Neitzke finishing last.

John Shuttler blasts out of the sand during a frosh-soph golf practice.

Frosh-Soph take third at conference meet

Under the experienced direction of Coach George Dekan, the Frosh-Soph golf team finished fourth in conference competition and third in the conference meet held at Aurora.

Although the team ended the season with an unimpressive overall conference record, much can be said for the spirit and good sportsmanship displayed by the team.

The Frosh-Soph combined the experience of sophomores Tom Black and Jim Shuttler with the ability of sophomore Randy Spears and freshman Dennis Gallagher to win two out of the last four matches.

The overall average of each team member for nine holes were as follows: Tony Black, headed the list with a 47.8, followed by Jim Shuttler, (47.2), Randy Spears, (47.95), Mike Gray, (48.0), John Shuttler, (48.57), and Dennis Gallagher, (50.6). These golfers all received their athletic awards.

During each of the Varsity and Junior Varsity football and basketball games, the ten cheerleaders from Glenbard East led the crowd's cheers and exhibited the necessary sportsmanship on the sidelines, while the athletes played.

The cheerleaders cheered and urged Coach Lovin's football players onto victory, until the undefeated season was over and the Rams captured 1st place in the conference.

During basketball season, the cheerleaders showed Coach Weber and his team that the team was supported, regardless of the score and the outcome of the game.

Practicing their various cheers, the cheerleaders stayed after school several times a week under the expert eye of Miss Tavlin, their adviser. Miss Tavlin was aided by Barb Bullard, cheerleading team manager.

The cheerleaders were more closely linked with Pep Club activities this year, and together they sponsored several money-raising activities.

At a summer workshop held under the auspices of the National Cheerleading Association Summer Cheerleading Camp, the cheerleaders were awarded 1st place ribbons for each of the nine events, which were composed of skill tests.

Feeling that girls as well as boys should be offered a chance to participate in sports activities outside of P.E. classes, G.A.A., The Girl's Athletic Association, offered interested members and non-members the chance to compete in various sports. Archery, tennis, bowling, badminton, field hockey, gymnastics, and basketball were the after-school intramural programs GAA offered.

Interscholastic competition was offered for only members; however, area high schools were included in the competitive schedule. Instructors and students alike developed a healthy respect for the heady power of victory.

However, the GAA did not limit its scope to girl's participation. Co-ed Play-nights, open to GE's students of both sexes, were held. GAA also sponsored socials after several basketball games, and other money-making projects were planned and carried out.

A mother-daughter banquet was held at the end of the year and a new council, composed of capable members, was announced at this time.

G.A.A provides sports for girls

Among the activities offered by the Glenbard East Girl's Athletic Association, bowling and badminton were most popular with G.A.A. members.

Bowling began in November. Twice weekly G.A.A. members boarded buses and headed for Hesterman's Bowling Alley in Glen Ellyn. At the end of the bowling season, in December, the top scores of the ten best members were compiled and sent to the G.A.A. state office in Champagne for the Postal Bowling Tournament.

Badminton began in March, with practices twice weekly. In addition to the regular intramural program, G.A.A. sponsored an interscholastic team. The members of this team participated with badminton teams from Lyons Township High School, in LaGrange and Hinsdale High School in Hinsdale.

Offering several sports programs for the girls, the Girls' Athletic Association, provided interested students the opportunity of participating in two programs; tennis and archery.

Both members and non-members were eligible to participate in the intra-mural program. After school the girls competed against one another in friendly competition.

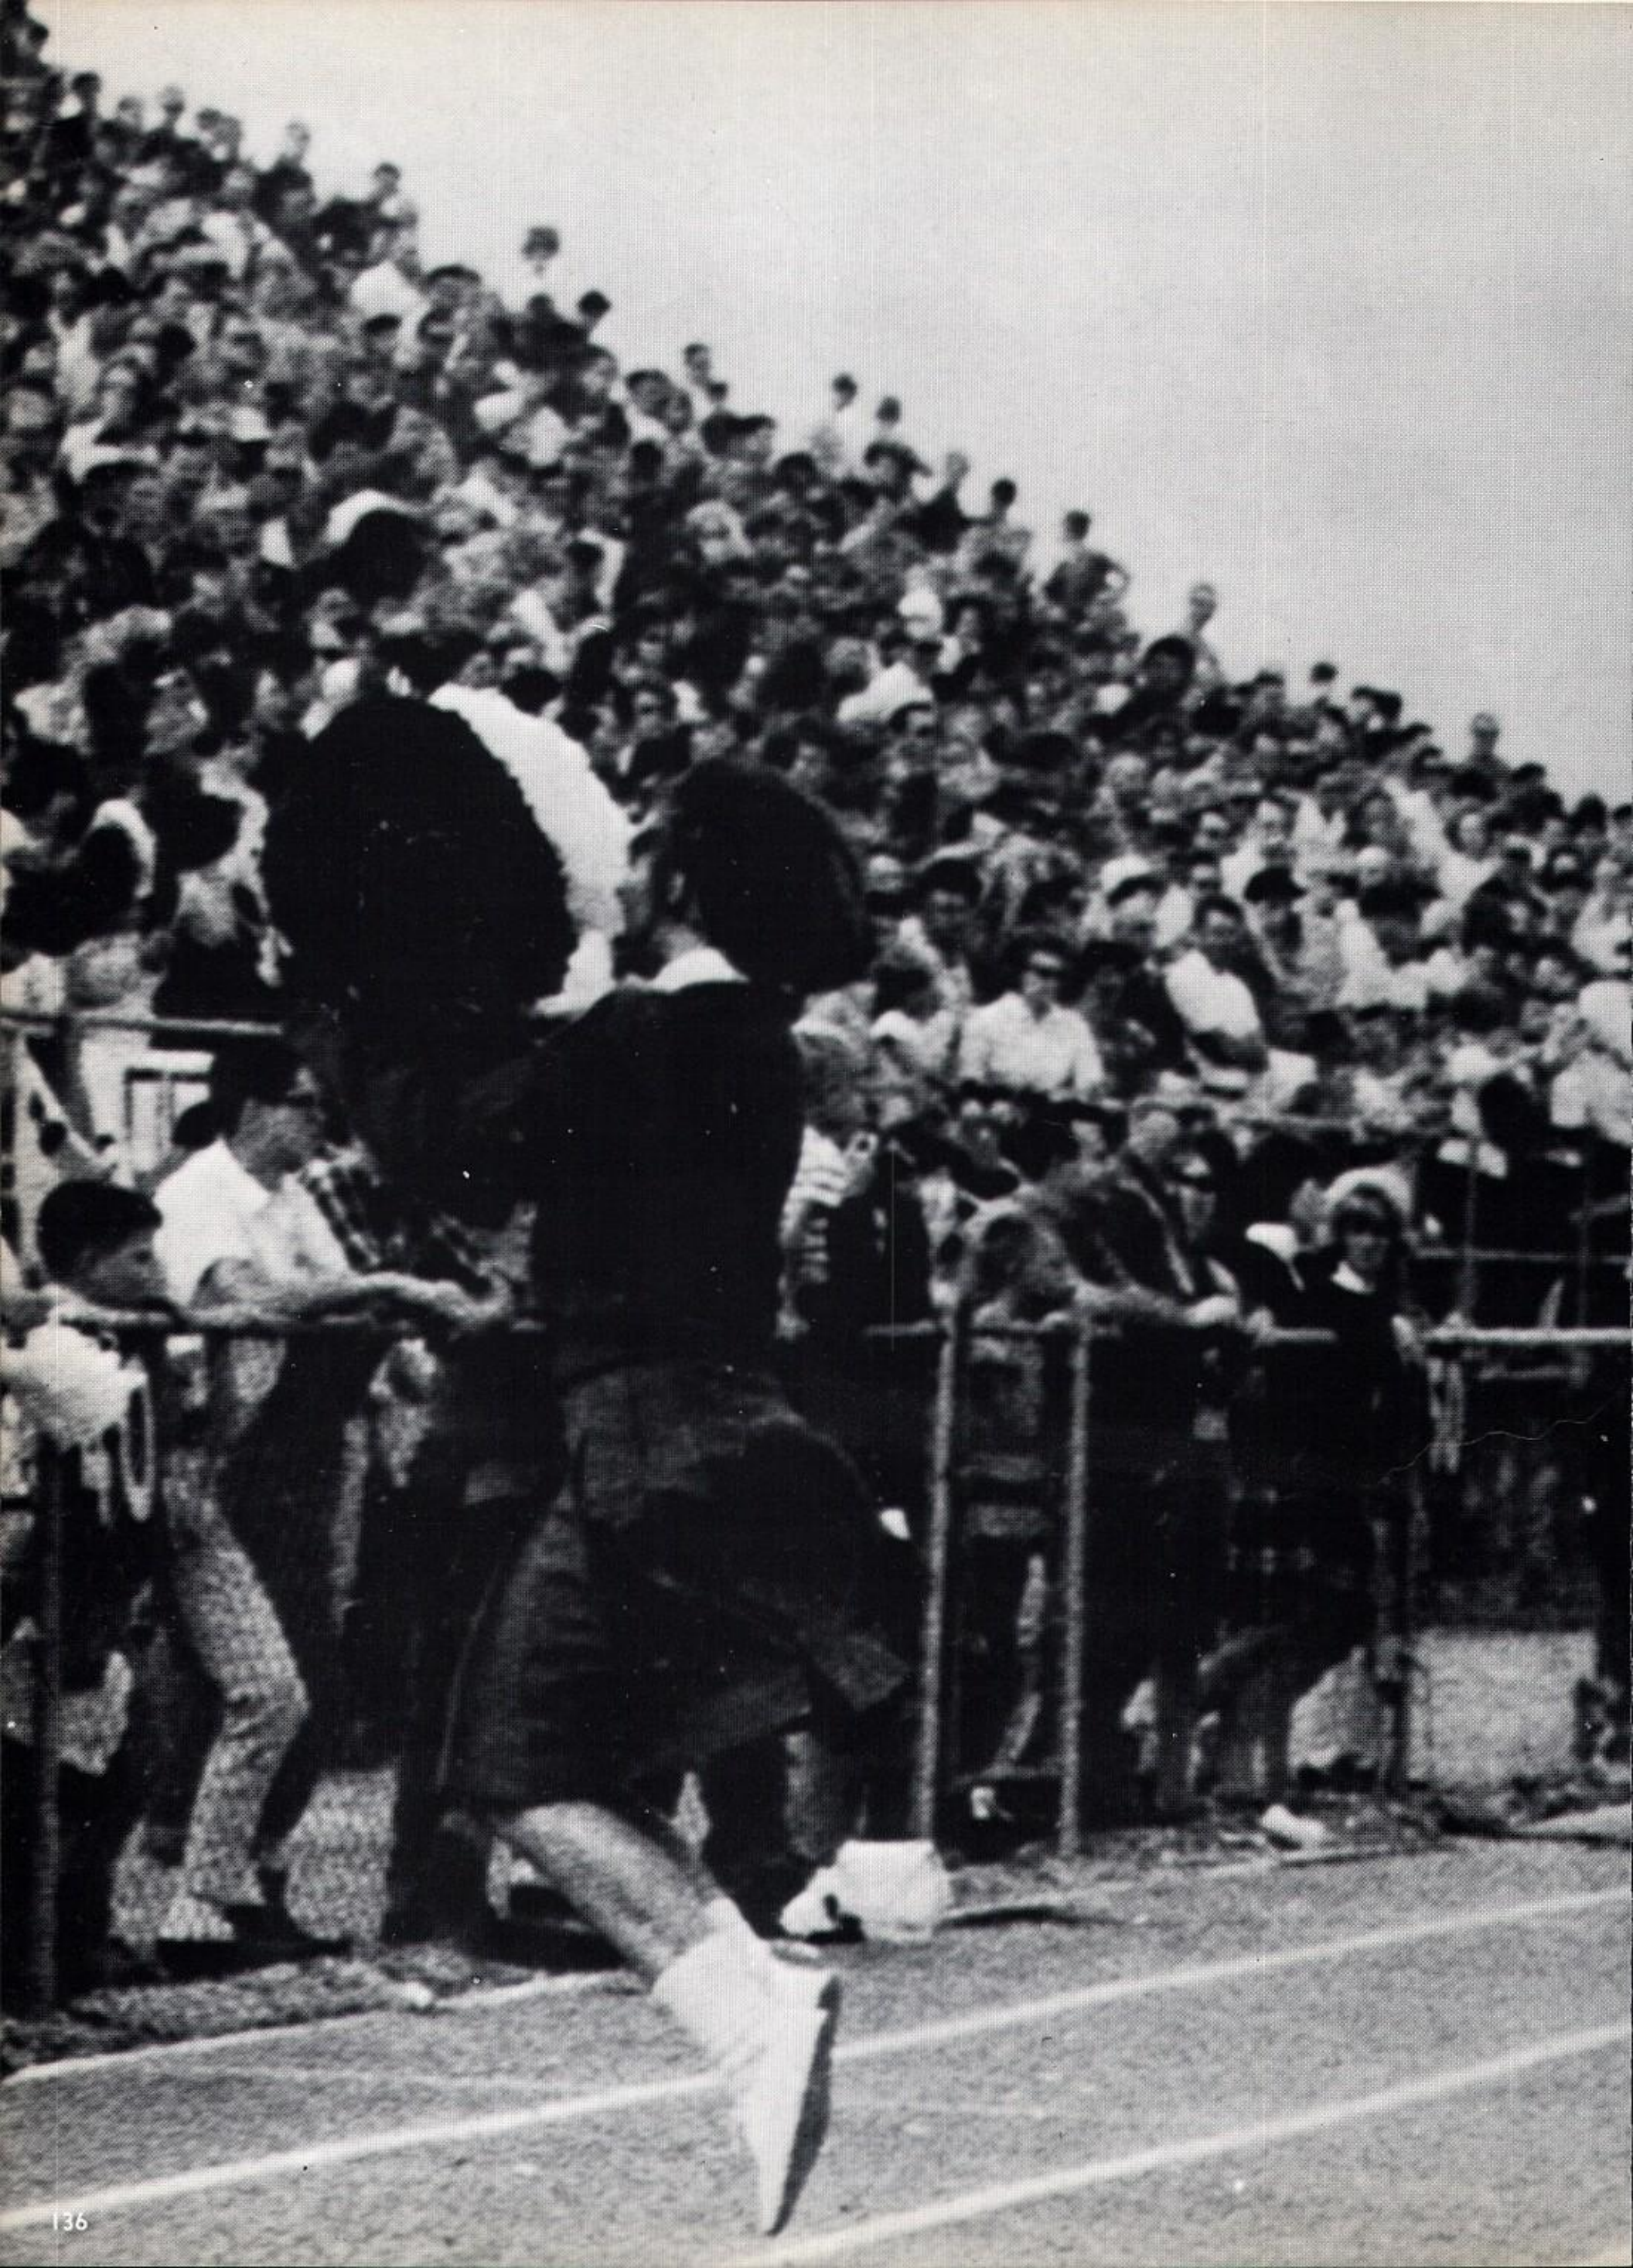

Tennis practice and games were played on the courts at GE, enabling the GAA advisers and physical education teachers to advise and instruct the participants in the proper fundamentals of tennis.

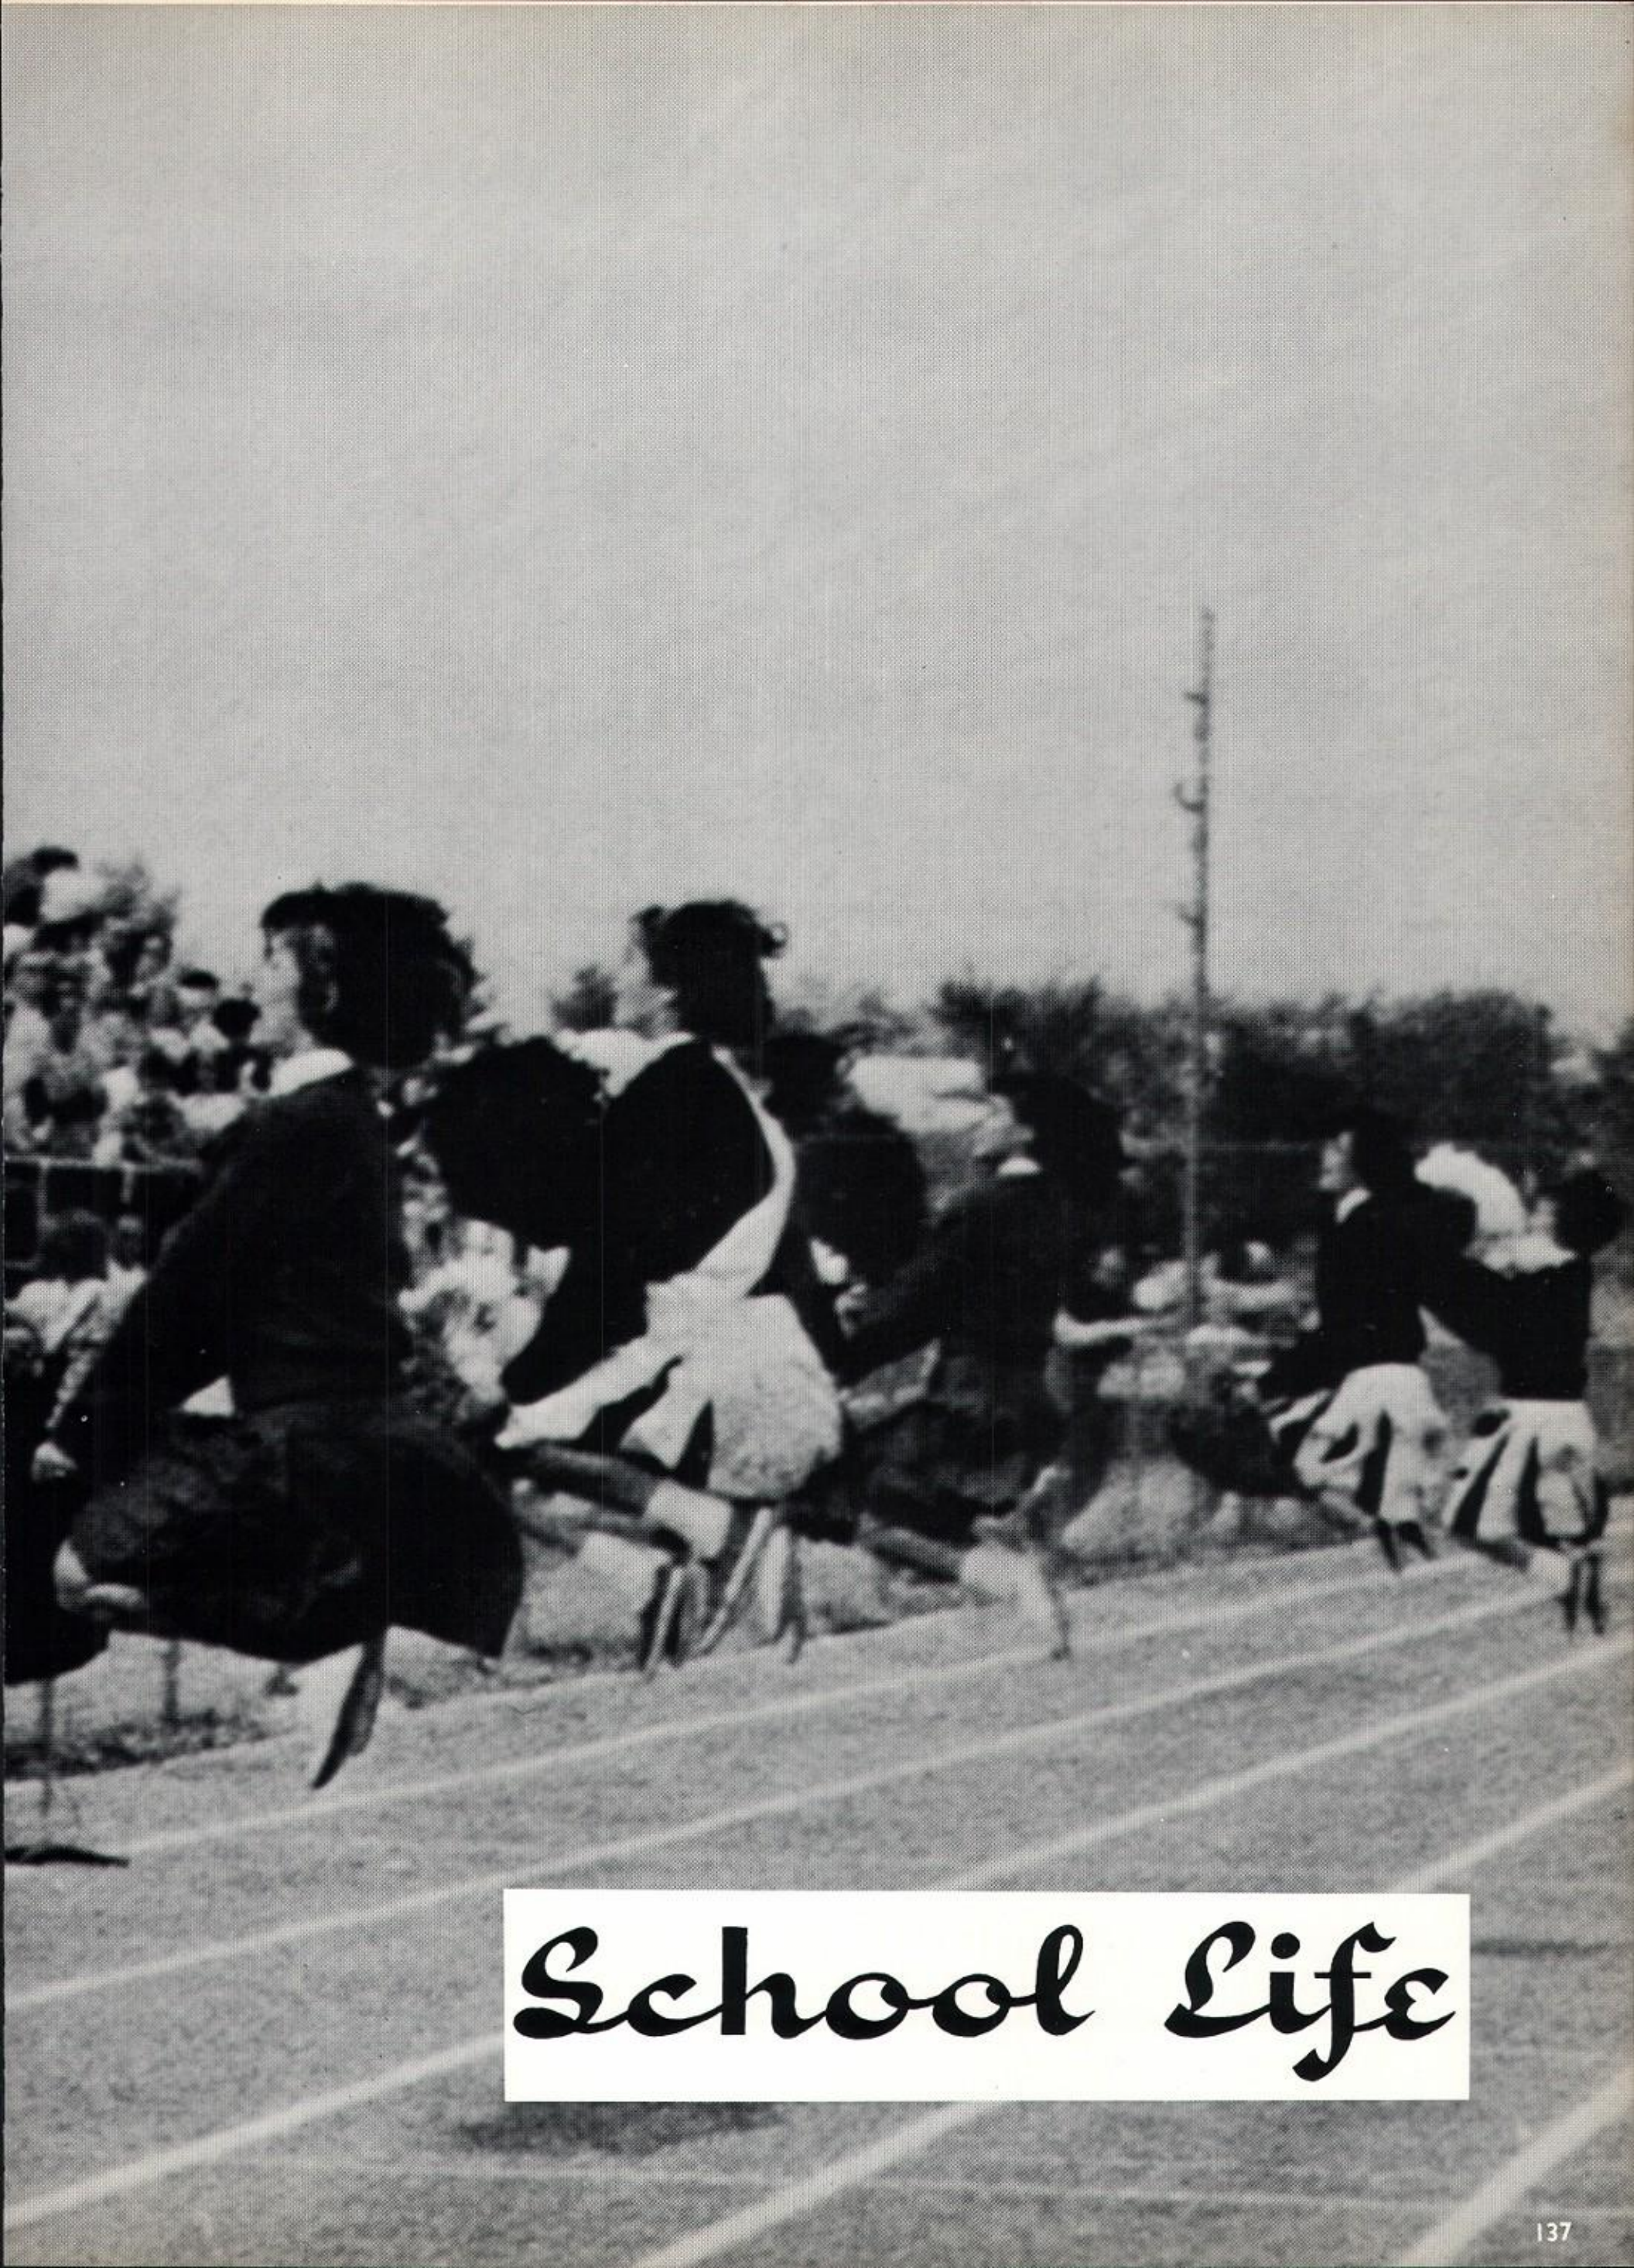

Archery was also held on the school's grounds, which provided the girls enough open space to safely shoot their arrows.

At the end of the two programs, GAA advisers considered that the time and energy were well spent.

School Life

Queen Barb Kretz and king Dave McGown reign over "A Little Bit of Heaven", the 1965 junior-senior prom.

Juniors transform gym into heavenly sight

Glenbard East had its own "Little Bit of Heaven" for the 1965 Junior-Senior Prom. The class of '66 transformed the gymnasium into a heavenly paradise for the evening of May 22. Prom goers entered a world of clouds and angels through the golden gates of heaven. Juniors and seniors danced with their dates to the music coming from the live band or ate rosettes in the south side of the gym.

The announcement of the royal court highlighted the evening. Barb Kretz and Dave McGown were "Queen and King of Heaven." The court consisted of princesses Laura Ray, Kris Hoglund, Linda Swanson, and Joy Kesler, and princes Bill Olson, Mike Fleming, Neal Scheben, and Mike Knapp.

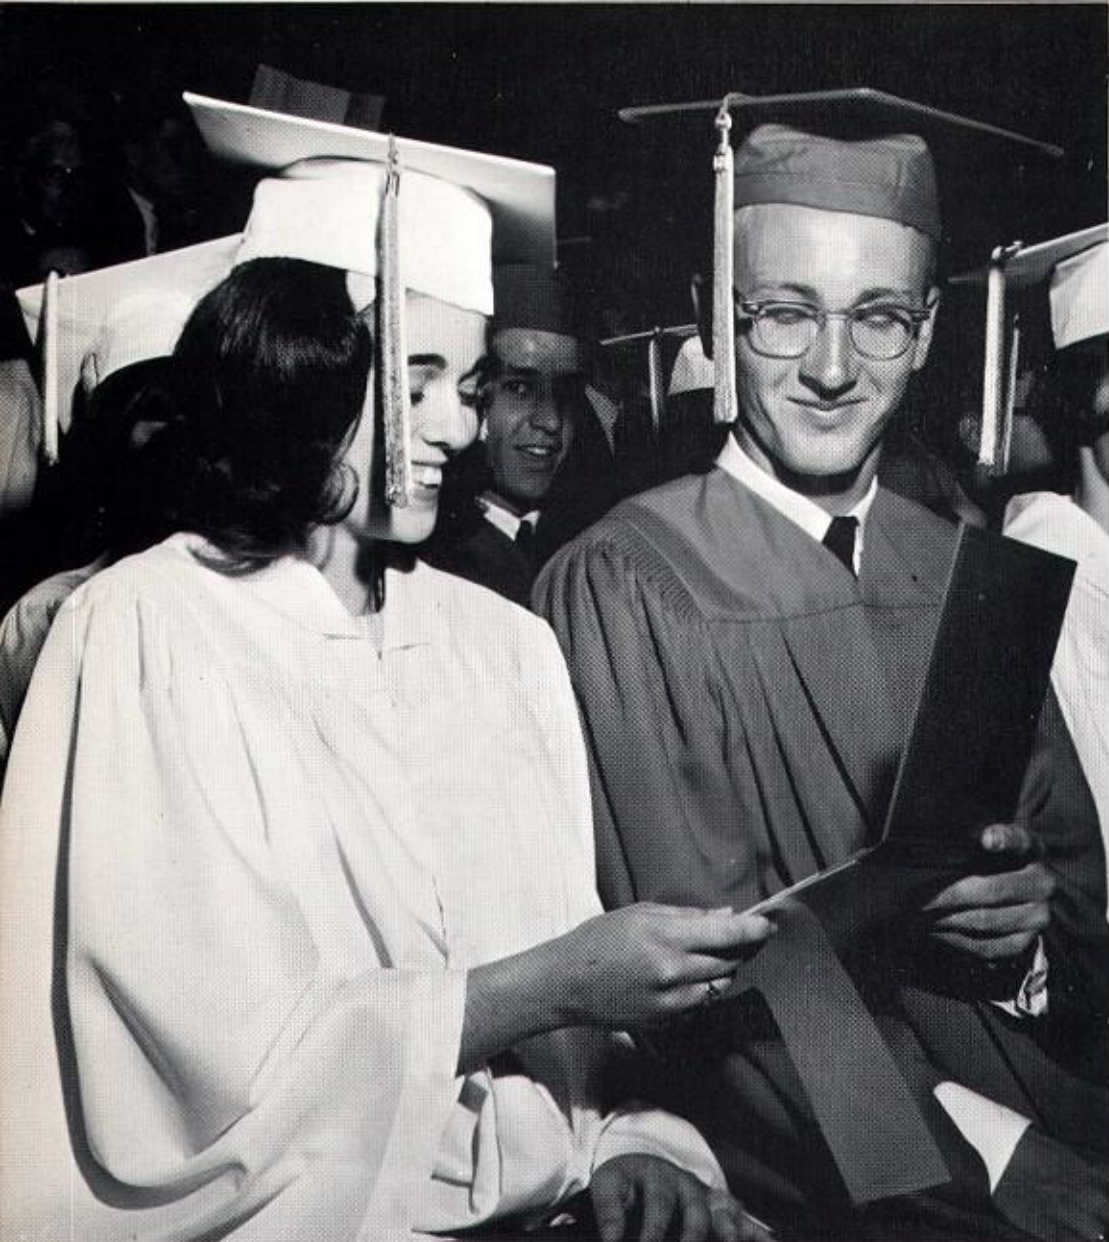

Prom festivities continued after the dance for many. While some went off for an evening of dinner and dancing, most of the celebrants crowded into buses for the all-night "Rams Romp". The party took place at Illinois State Beach Park, in Zion, Illinois. Dinner awaited the guests when they arrived. Entertainment included the songs and jokes of Sir James, a comic singer, the acts of a magician and his assistant, and a humorous presentation provided by a mass hypnotist. For the entire time, a recreation room and snack bar were open. After breakfast and a church service, the indoor pool, tennis courts, and bicycles were available for those who still had enough energy left after the night's celebration. At noon the students gathered for the last meal together in the lodge lunch room. The trip concluded, the weekend of Prom activities and the exhausted prom goers returned home.

After the coronation of queen Barb Kretz at the Prom, "A Little Bit of Heaven", Jeff Kalinowski and Lois Montgomery gaze at the gala festivities.

Glenbard East's gym was transformed into "A Little Bit of Heaven" for the junior-senior prom.

Carol Burke and Gary Carlson wear the proud look of achievement as they admire their diplomas just after commencement.

Some four hundred seniors reached one of the major milestones in their educational career when they graduated from Glenbard East, June 14, 1965. Commencement meant more to most of them than just receiving a diploma. It meant four years of invaluable intellectual growth and fun.

To the teachers, each commencement lends a feeling of satisfaction at having helped another group of immature freshmen become responsible graduates, ready for further education or a position in the world. This satisfaction comes partly from seeing the graduates realize some of their tremendous potential as students, athletes, and musicians.

Valedictorian Jean Rittmueller and salutatorian Dale Sherman represented the high scholastic achievements of the class of 1965, and gave short talks on ideal and existing attitudes toward education. A somber moment occurred when Mimi Sahami, the foreign exchange student, tearfully said good-bye to the student body. The final highlights before the awarding of diplomas were filled with a trombone solo by Bruce Braun, senior musician who has toured the country with a music group, and the announcement of the twenty-five scholarship winners.

Seniors bid G.E. farewell

Looking on to their future goals, GE graduates Barbara Lowry, Rex Miller, Renee Berkshire, and Vernon Beltz proceed to their seats during the commencement ceremony.

Seniors anxiously wait to receive diplomas after four years of hard work in high school.

"The New Tenant," Dave Vander Linden, stares intently toward the audience as the movers, Al Sulzenfuss and Rob Lindley, gaze in wonder at the furniture.

Student, Chris Kovach, submits to the tyrannical teachings of her teacher-dictator, Keith Miller, in the play "The Lesson."

Students interpret Ionesco's symbolism

Rider Hall, on the sixth, seventh, and eighth of May, 1965 was the scene of "The Strange World of Ionesco" as the drama department presented Eugene Ionesco's "The Lesson" and "The New Tenant". Both plays were directed by Mr. Ray Mikesh with help from student assistant Bob Aseltine.

Ionesco uses symbolism to make his point in both plays. In "The Lesson," the professor (Keith Miller) symbolized a dictator who gained all of his strength from a newly-captured country, the pupil, (Chris Kovach). Changing from a very weak character in the beginning to a strong one in the final moments, Keith Miller merely personified tyrannical rule.

Furniture, symbolizing materials to represent important events in the tenant's (Dave Vanderlinden) life, filled the stage during "The New Tenant." The movers (Rob Lindley and Al Sulzenfuss), who represent society's inability to understand and accept materialism, piled the furniture nearly to the ceiling. Backstage crew members had a detailed map to enable them to quickly hand the articles to the movers.

The expressions of disbelief and incomprehension on the face replaced dialogue as the play progressed. Most of the ideas were expressed by use of dim lighting, eerie music, and the weird make-up of the tenant.

Prop crews for "The New Tenant" worked hard to find the articles required including two wagon wheels and a skull. Getting rid of the props during the performance presented another problem. All members of the crew and cast had to help move the objects into the hall behind the auditorium between the plays.

Workshoppers produce first summer musical

Glenbard East presented its first summer musical July 27-31 in conjunction with the musical workshop held this summer during June and July. Approximately fifty students, working on a minimum of three production crews each, took part in Cole Porter's "Anything Goes". Working areas included costumes, scenery, promotions, props, lighting, box office, orchestra, as well as roles.

Because "Anything Goes" was staged in Rider Hall, the cast had less trouble projecting their voices, in both song and speech, than did the students who performed "Damn Yankees" in the larger Biester Auditorium. Many members of the crew had had helpful previous dramatic experience. Both Bob Aseltine and Linda Gerardi, as well as many minor characters, had performed in the first musical. Keith Miller had had important parts in plays presented in the 1964-65 school year. Additionally, since the musical was a summer workshop project, the time allotted for preparation and rehearsal was much greater, enabling participants to give a more polished performance.

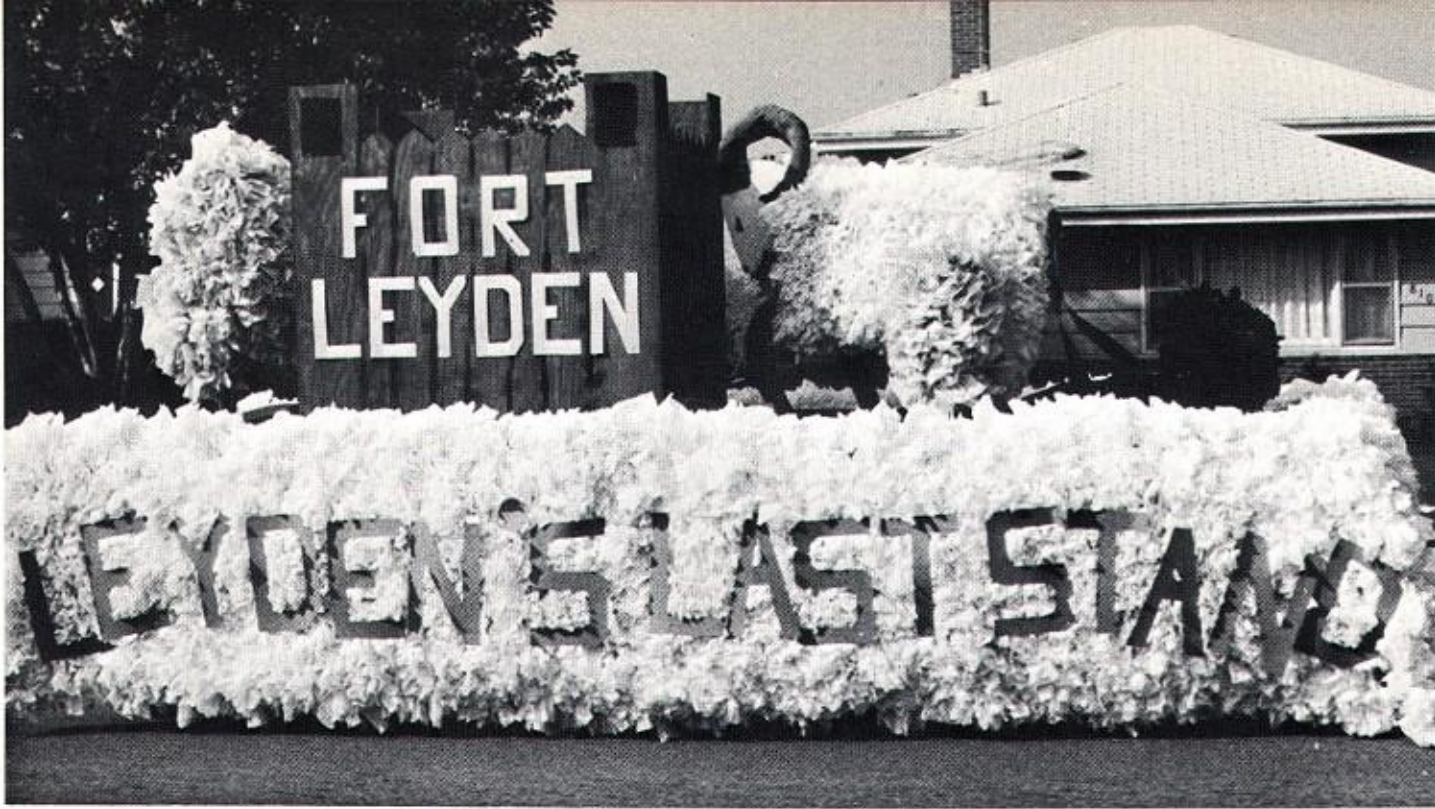

This was Glenbard East's Drama department's first attempt to stage a large musical in Rider Hall and to run the musical for five nights. Mrs. Meyer felt the hard work made it a huge success, since attendance all five nights was excellent. In spite of this, the summer musical will not become a tradition, because, said Mrs. Meyer, "We want to give these students experience in a variety of dramatic productions, and that is exactly what is being accomplished."

Homecoming features western flavor

Glenbard East's Homecoming weekend was launched Friday, October 15, with a bonfire, tug-of-war, and pep rally held in back of the school after which Mark Erickson and Tom West, co-captains of the football team, presented the queen and her court. Following these festivities, Student Council held a social in the gym.

Saturday morning, an Alumni Breakfast was held in the teacher's lounge and shortly afterward, the Homecoming Parade took place. In float competition, first place went to Pep Club for their "Leyden's Last Stand"; GAA captured second place with their float, "Don't Fence Us In", and Tri-S Teens received third place for "Gun 'Em Down". All floats incorporated the Homecoming theme "Ram Round-up".

In both junior varsity and varsity games, Glenbard East's Rams defeated East Leyden's Eagles. An additional highlight to the afternoon, the band presented "Arabian Nights" and the queen, court, and award winning floats were presented.

In the evening, the highlight of the weekend, the 1965 Homecoming Dance, "Westward-Ho", took place in the cafeteria. The couples danced to the music of Jim Bestman's band while in the background "wanted posters" and gun murals adorned the walls. Adding to this western setting was a town jail, complete with lawmen and prisoners whose names had appeared on the "wanted posters". Hot apple cider and cheese were served in the "Saloon", formerly the Teachers' lounge.

Through the efforts of Student Council and many other people who gave their time for a successful Homecoming, the weekend was one of the best Glenbard has ever had.

"Diary of Anne Frank" has capacity crowd

Glenbard East's first play of the 1965-66 year was "The Diary of Anne Frank" by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett. The drama department presented the play on October 21st, 22nd, and 23rd, in Rider Hall.

The exuberant and perceptive diary, kept by a young Jewish girl in hiding from Nazi arrest with her family and four other Jews, was the basis for this Pulitzer Prize play. Both the diary and the play presented the loves, fears, joys, and tensions, that these eight people experienced in the two years before their capture as well as the trials of adolescence that Anne went through.

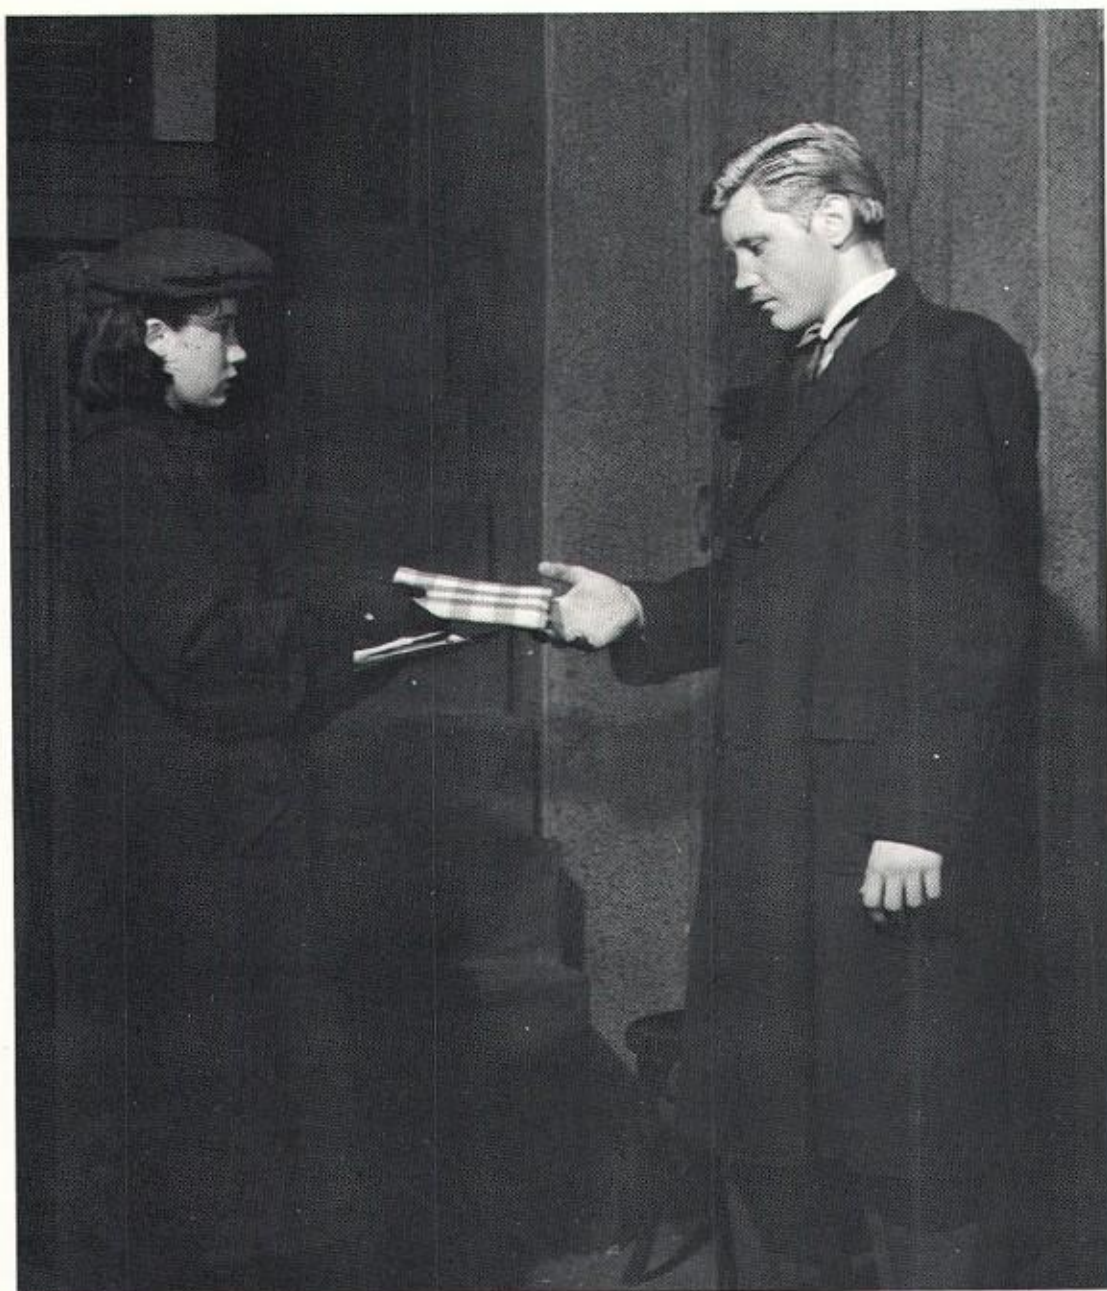

The drama took place in the cramped attic of a business building. Stagecraft classes constructed this "Secret Annex", complete with upstairs levels, and a room which extended beyond the stage. Blackouts, instead of curtains, marked the ends of scenes, and enabled the actors to make quick costume changes backstage. Set props crew had to move furniture and make beds without bumping into the hand props crew which was changing table settings and rearranging books in the darkness. Even the actors helped carry props off the stage at the end of scenes.

Mr. Frank, played by junior Bill Langer, headed the group of eight refugees. Sophomore Denise Domke, portrayed the young Anne Frank. Her mother was sophomore Vicki Bienz, and her sister, Margot, was senior Claudia Collins. In the other family, Mr. and Mrs. Van Daan were seniors Mio Villagomez and Sue Foley; junior Joe Martinez characterized their son Peter. Keith Miller, sophomore, was the eighth occupant of the "Secret Annex". Mr. Dussel, Miep and Mr. Kraler, the refugees' contact with the outside world, were Kathy Rardin and Bob Penington.

The three faculty members of the Drama Department, Mrs. Meyer, Mr. Mikesh, and Mr. Berglund were in charge of the production. Mrs. Meyer directed the play; Mr. Mikesh and Mr. Berglund supervised the construction of the set.

The Occupants of the Secret Annex are overjoyed at the news of the Normandy Invasion.

Miep, Kathy Rardin, presents Mr. Frank, Bill Langer, with Anne's forgotten diary which describes the lives of eight people in hiding.

Anne listens mockingly as Mr. Frank makes an error in algebra while Anne's sister Margot, Claudia Collins, and Peter Van Daan, Joe Martinez, listen intently.

Keith Miller questions eccentric Joe Martinez about why Joe is lifting nurse Debbie Haight.

"The Man Who Came to Dinner," written by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart and directed by Mr. Charles Berglund, was presented in Rider Hall on December 8, 9, and 11.

Keith Miller gave a convincing and witty performance as Sheridan Whiteside, the pampered and ill-tempered man who came to dinner. After slipping on the icy doorstep of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stanley (Mike Ward and Alice McFadden), Mr. Whiteside was restricted to a wheelchair in their suburban home, where he proceeded to disrupt the lives of his secretary, (Sue Foley), the Stanley's children, Richard and June, (Clifford Brown and Marcia Rittmueller) and just about everyone else he came in contact with.

Whiteside was kept busy, while staying in the Stanley home, screaming at his private nurse, Miss Preen, (Debbie Haight) and trying to break up a romance between his secretary and the editor of a smalltown newspaper, Bert Jefferson (Mike Lane), as well as creating other mischief. Although he was irritated by most people, he seemed to take a liking to the children. He even gave them some fatherly advice, encouraging Richard to leave home and June to get married, naturally upsetting the Stanleys.

The stage was realistically set, with the props and scenery adding to the credibility of the plot. The makeup and costumes enhanced the plot further.

The dialogue was updated by Mr. Berglund, who added names that were more well-known to the audience than the originals.

As the curtain closes, Keith Miller falls again, throwing the household into a deeper despair.

Bob Aseltine, flamboyant Hollywood personality, conspires with Sue Foley in order to rid Sue of competition for her boyfriend.

Drama department features second play

Keith Miller confides with newspaperman Mike Lane about the three convicts, who are to be reformed.

On her first trip to the footbridge with a man, Ellen Martin (Marian), sings "Till There Was You" to Bob Aseltine, Harold Hill.

"Music Man", directed by Mrs. Margaret Meyer, was one of the most popular plays presented by Glenbard East. For each of the three performances, the audience applauded vigorously and extensively and, culminating the three day run, a standing ovation was given by the audience at the Sunday matinee.

The play was also well received before its actual presentation. Tickets for the two scheduled performances were sold out a week before the play was given, and a third unscheduled presentation was offered. Over 5,600 were regally entertained.

Boasting the largest cast of any GE production, "Music Man" used over 50 students for dancers, singers and actors. Both the cast and the 100 crew members totalled a sizable number of GE's students.

The stage, artfully designed by Mr. Ray Mikesch and Mr. John Paoletti, heightened the reality of the set.

Choreography was handled by Mr. Charles Bergland, technical director was Mr. Raymond Mikesch, and Mrs. Meyer was assisted by Claudia Collins and Keith Miller. Mr. Thomas Wisniewski, orchestra director, and Mr. Donald Volz, vocal director, collaborated on the musical score.

The audience and their imaginations were quickly transported to River City, Iowa, where one fast talking Music Man, Professor Harold Hill, played by Bob Aseltine, sold the River City inhabitants band instruments and uniforms. However, complications arose when Professor Hill is infatuated with Marian, the Librarian, played by Ellen Martin.

Mary Hazard, (Lady Shinn), directs the Ladies' Auxiliary and the school board through their number "It's You" in preparation for the annual ice-cream sociable.

Ineke van Kessel contemplates future travels as she looks at the map of the world.

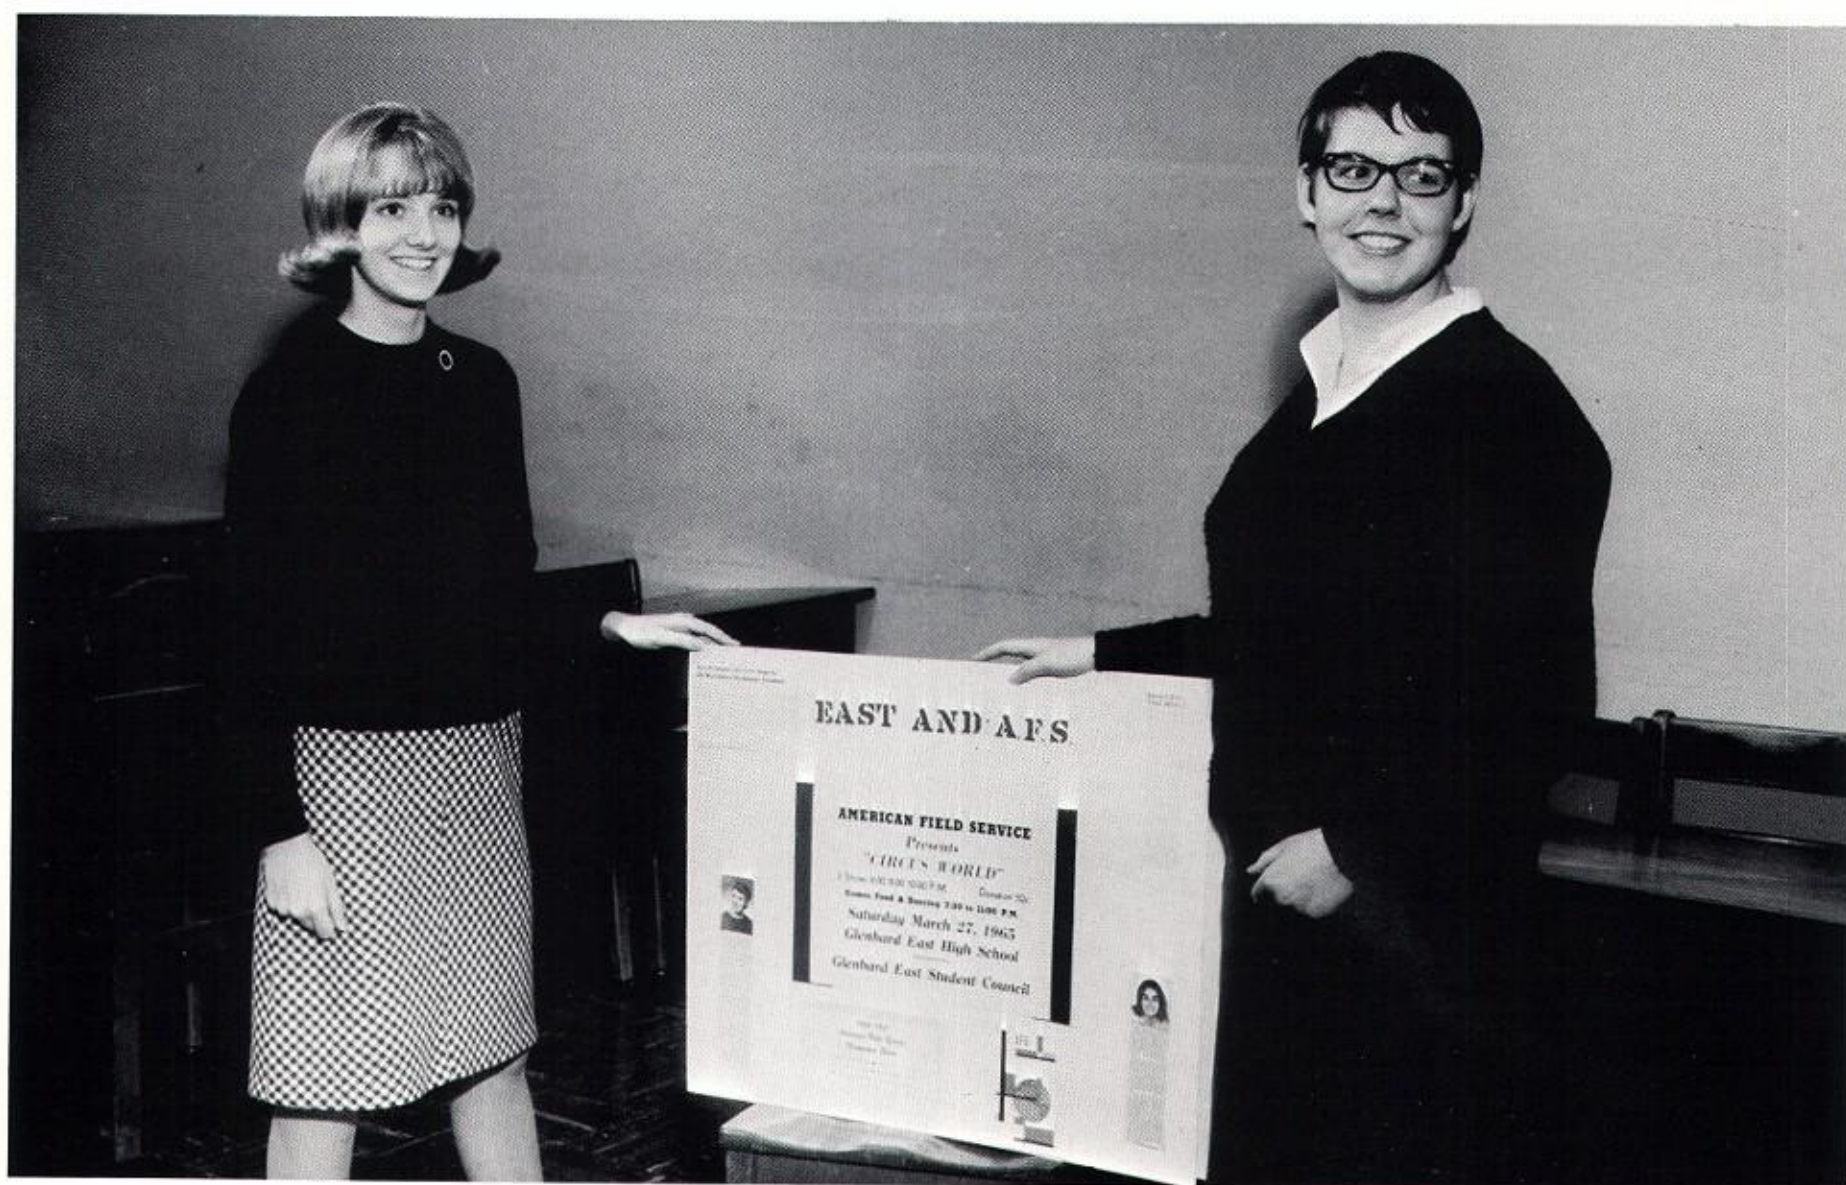

Ineke van Kessel, East's A.F.S. student for the 1965-66 school year, arrived in Lombard the last of August from Roermond in the Netherlands. During the year she lived at the homes of Sandy Killelea and Chris and Claudia Collins.

Glenbard's fourth A.F.S. student participated in such activities as ECHO, F.T.A., and Student Council while becoming Americanized through study of U.S. History and American literature. Ineke often provides interesting insights into Dutch life in her articles in the ECHO about her native country. While helping to decorate a display window for an organization after school, Ineke learned that the extracurricular activities were an important part of Glenbard East life.

Glenbard East's annual A.F.S. Circus World was held in March. The circus, sponsored by Student Council, included a Miss Friendship Contest, a circus performance, a talent show, and a midway with typical circus games. Many students worked during A.F.S. Week to help make the circus a huge success. The funds gained from this carnival helped Glenbard East obtain another exchange student for 1965-67.

Junior Suzy Beavers, cheerleader and ECHO page editor, was Glenbard East's A.F.S. semi-finalist this year. Suzy became a semi-finalist after completing a series of interviews and screenings with adults from the local A.F.S. chapter. She will not learn if she has been accepted for A.F.S. placement until after school is out.

Seniors receive academic honors

The 1966 DAR and SAR Award winners are Lynn Ostrowski and Ray Novak.

Karl Will, winner of the Bausch-Lomb Award and other science awards, takes advantage of a few spare minutes to study his science.

Glenbard East's motto of Right Attitude Means Success includes not only the athletic events but also the scholastic events of many outstanding scholastic honors.

The National Merit Scholarship Commission awarded ten Glenbard East students a Letter of Commendation for their fine performance on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Tests and seven students the rank of semi-finalist for outstanding test scores in addition to personal achievements. The semi-finalist had the opportunity to take another test and perhaps become finalists in this scholarship program. This was the largest number of students Glenbard East ever had attain the rank of semi-finalist or receive Letters of Commendation.

Specific departments such as home economics or math often give awards for outstanding achievement in the department. Linda Hallman, senior, won the 1965-66 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow award for the highest score on a written examination. Also in the home economics department, Linda Burt won Glenbard East's cherry pie baking contest and became East's representative at the Northern Illinois Gas Company's annual pie baking contest and became first alternate for this district.

Bill Trojan received the highest score in the Math Contest held in March. The Math department annually sponsors this contest; the winners' names can be found on the math honors plaque in the main hallway.

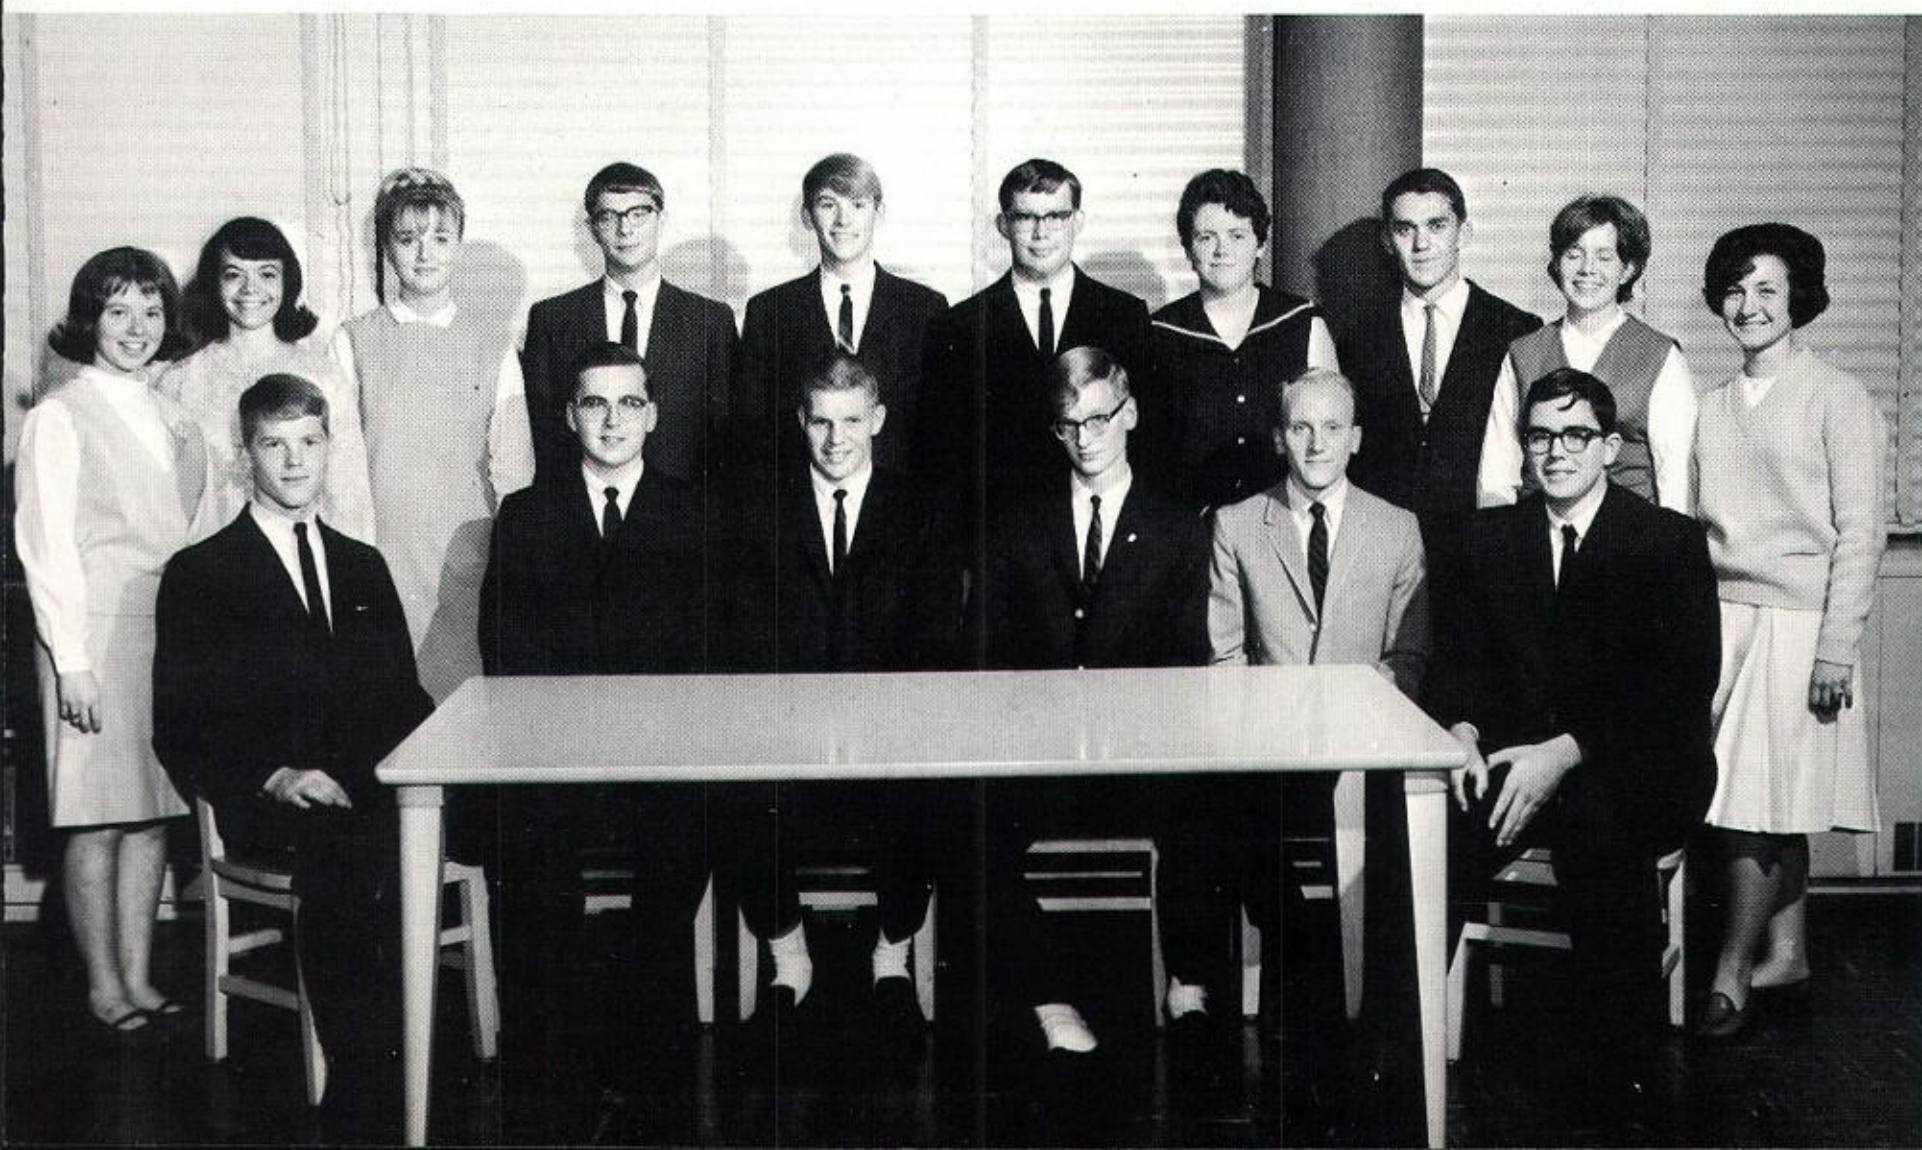

Lynn Ostrowski and Ray Novak, seniors, won the annual DAR and SAR awards. The seniors elected preliminary candidates for these honors. Qualities considered by teachers, who had the final vote, were leadership, citizenship, conduct, and popularity.

Many students received various other scholastic awards after this book went to press. These awards are good examples of excellence in scholastic fields and are a credit to Glenbard East's academic program.

The 1966 "It's Academic" team included Bruce Thompson, captain, Bill Trojan, and Sue Mintern.

Classes

Officers of the class of '66 are: Dave Gunn, vice-president; Karen Smith, secretary-treasurer; Jeff Messenger, president.

Seniors take pride in past four years

Senior, Tom Hartung, is caught doing homework just before the first bell rings.

During the 1965-1966 school year, the class of '66 participated in every activity open for upperclassmen. The seniors provided the necessary leadership and support of the clubs and athletic teams. Virtually all activities were at least partially supervised and supported by the seniors.

As the year progressed, the class of '66 looked harder at the future. The choice of colleges, jobs or the military services became a primary source of serious thought. At the end of the year, the senior class looked back at the activities of the past four years and felt the mixed emotions of happiness and sadness but most important pride.

Four years of athletic events have resulted in a feeling of pride for GE and its teams. Most memorable were the Elite Eight games downstate in Champaign in 1964 and the Rams first football championship in 1966.

Four years of participating in clubs and organizations and the accompanying sense of accomplishment have resulted in a feeling of pride for GE and its clubs and organizations.

As each school day passed, the senior class recognized, with a feeling of both anxiety and hesitation, that graduation day was becoming more of a reality. With graduation day, the relinquishing of Glenbard East to another group of students was the final act of the class of '66.

Some seniors shy from shutterbugs

G.E. students enthusiastically cheer the varsity basketball team after their victory against West Leyden.

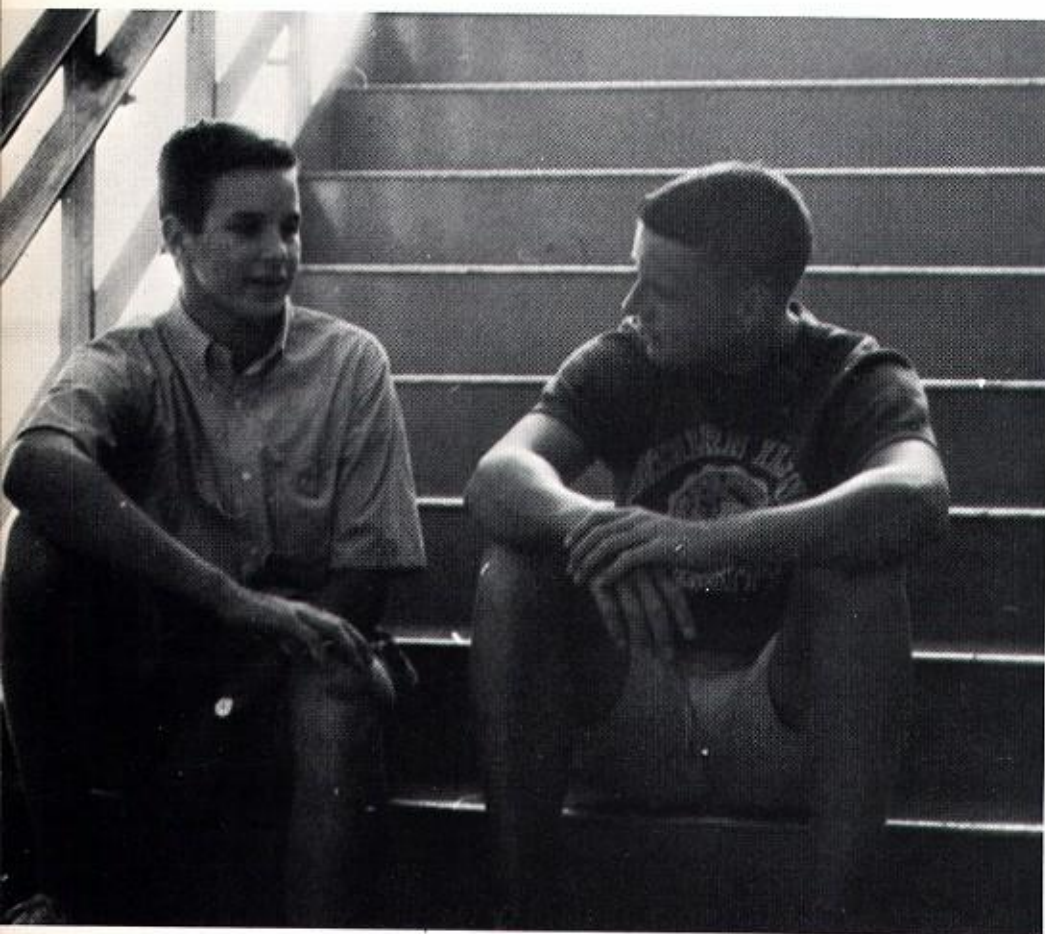

President Marty Olsen, Vice President Bob Heller and Secretary Toni Zwarts assume leadership for the juniors.

Leaders skillfully guide Junior class

Becoming upperclassmen requires acceptance of more responsibility on the part of the class members. Under the leadership of Bob Heller, Toni Zwarts, and Marty Olson, the class of '67 assumed the responsibility necessary to assert itself as a leader. In the scholastic area of school life, the juniors have distinguished themselves since they were freshmen. Junior representatives on both junior varsity and varsity teams have exhibited skill, perseverance and good sportsmanship. By their participation in many extra-curricular activities, juniors have demonstrated the ability and the will to work.

Junior participation in scholastic clubs such as Mu Alpha Theta, Spanish, and French clubs, as well as in classrooms, has shown the high quality of their intellectual resources. Efforts of the class of '67 to produce Echo, Ramblings, and Aries proved the juniors' capabilities as journalists and writers. The juniors' entries in the Science Fair have demonstrated their capacity for original thinking. In all these areas they demonstrated enthusiastic spirit and loyalty to Glenbard East.

In other extracurricular organizations of social, musical, and governmental nature, the juniors have worked hard and uncomplainingly. The class's largest project, the 1966 Prom, was one of the most successful in GE's history. Talent shown by the junior membership in the band, orchestra, and chorus reinforced the quality of these musical organizations. Active student council work of the junior members made such projects as the Christmas post office useful to the entire student body.

Juniors practice sportsmanship

Juniors Mike Law, Steve Weinert, and Stan Morrison compete in a strenuous soccer game during their physical education class.

President Wayne Fisher, Vice President Joe Fernandes, and Secretary-Treasurer Marcia Wipert ably lead the class of '68.

Diane Brenner in a proper archery stance, releases an arrow in the archery class during P.E.

Sophomores aim for leadership

As members of the class of '68 began to assume leadership in their sophomore year, they demonstrated their ability to guide, to create, and to work as conscientious students. Though eagerly participating in many extracurricular activities, the sophomores have not forgotten the importance of scholastic achievement. By making use of Glenbard's extensive athletic program, they have taken advantage of everything East has to offer.

Sophomores showed their diversified talents by membership in the band, orchestra, and chorus, and by voluntary work on drama casts and crews. They offered their services to many extracurricular organizations, including Student Council, Glen-Teens, and Campus Council.

Scheduled in classes of various levels, members of the class of '68 have always worked to the best of their abilities. Through experimentation, discussion, and research, they have begun to realize the importance of concentrated study.

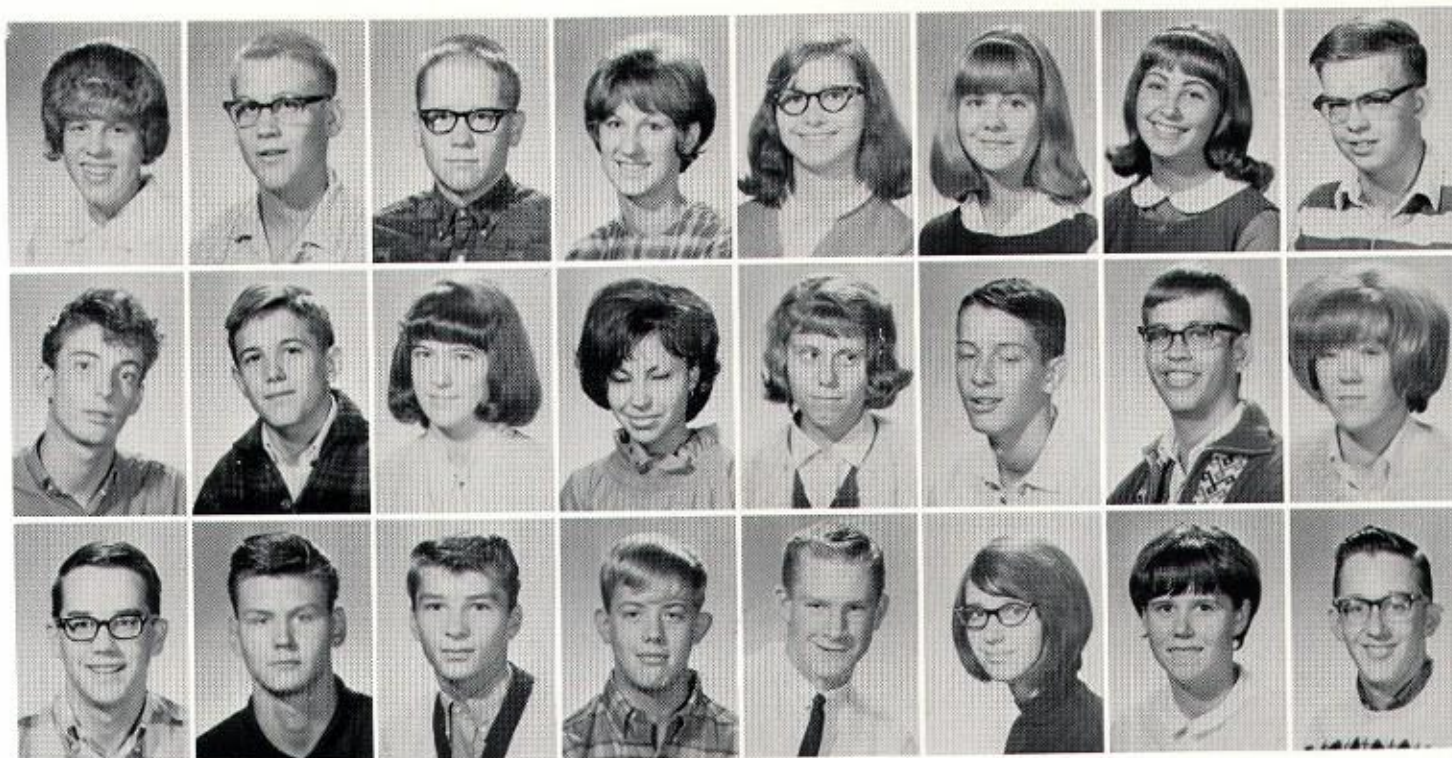

By working with others in various activities and sports, they have gained a knowledge of the necessity of cooperation, and feeling of pride in their class. The rewards of athletic practice have shown in the development of team spirit, as well as in victories.

Throughout the 1965-66 school year, sophomores assumed the responsibility and maturity befitting their class. Regardless of the outcome, they showed good sportsmanship and true Ram spirit. Successful in many areas of school life other than the classroom, they gained an understanding of the difficulties of producing anything worthwhile. In their future years at Glenbard East, the class of '68 will continue their diligent work in all areas, scholastic as well as extracurricular, and will contribute to the success of Glenbard East.

Sophomores Joe McShane, Tony Sang, Frank Cubica, and Pete Maxon find time for relaxation and relief from the school-day tedium during lunch.

Freshman Phil Bosworth and Rick Kania purchase texts for their first year's classes at East during registration.

As freshmen, the class of '69 has done well in gaining the respect of the other classes. They have perhaps even surpassed the previous scholastic and extracurricular excellence that other classes had achieved.

Participating in many athletic, dramatic, musical, and social organizations, freshmen have also become well adjusted to the general confusion of high school life. Besides making valuable contributions to Student Council such as work on Homecoming, A.F.S., and sweatshirt sales, they have distinguished themselves in academic fields.

While eagerly participating in many of Glenbard's activities, the freshmen have acquired a feeling of pride in their school. Whether cheering at a football game, or exhibiting at the Science Fair, the freshmen have developed class spirit as well as a loyalty to their school as a whole.

Often the unknown workers behind finished productions, the class of '69 has learned the values and rewards of hard work. While laboring long hours on the school publications freshmen have come to realize that knowledge gained from actual experience is sometimes more valuable than that gotten from a book.

While working in the classroom and putting their ideas into action, the freshmen have become ingrained with school spirit. Their participation in many areas of Glenbard East's activities has shown that the class of '69 will always excel in the fields of knowledge, skill, and determination. Later, as sophomores and upperclassmen, the members of the class of '69 will continue their commendable work in all fields of school life for the betterment of Glenbard East.

Freshmen prepare for their first year.
